SUPPLIES NEW DETAILS

Becker, He Says, Feared Rosenthal, Who Had Betrayed Other Gamblers to Him.

"MEN HIGHER UP" INVOLVED

Witness Asserts They, Not Becker, Put a Patrolman in Rosenthal's Place—Shapiro Shaken.

"Billiard Ball Jack" Rose testified yesterday that Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, was a stool pigeon for Charles Becker, the ex-Police Lieutenant now on trial before Justice Seabury in the Supreme Court on a charge of having murdered Rosenthal. That new feature in the testimony of the chief witness for the prosecution caused surprise, and it was intimated that Martin T. Manton, Becker's counsel, would use it to-day in cross-examination of Rose as a base upon which to build up the defense.

Rose's picture of Rosenthal as a spy on gambling houses who aided Becker in the collection of evidence for raids was entirely novel. He did not call Rosenthal a "stool pigeon," but he did put Rosenthal in that category. No such statement was made in the first trial or in the police graft investigation. If the defense could show that Rosenthal was a stool pigeon, it was pointed out, it would go far toward establishing the old theory that Rosenthal's death was the result of a gamblers' feud; that Rosenthal was killed by agents of other gamblers who hated him because he was a traitor.

The witness had been on the stand less than half an hour when he sprung the revelation of Rosenthal's life. He was talking about Rosenthal's hatred of Becker, brought on by Becker's repeated demands for money from the proceeds of the gambling house in West Forty-fifth Street in which, as alleged, Becker and Rosenthal were partners. He told how Becker had sent him (Rose) to Rosenthal for $500, which was wanted to defend Plitt, Becker's press agent, on a murder charge. Rosenthal had refused to give up the $500 and Becker had threatened a raid on him. Here was Rose's testimony on this point:

"'No, I can't do it,' Rosenthal said to me, 'and tell Becker there isn't a chance in the world. I won't pay him $500 and I will let him raid me if he can get the evidence legitimately. But there will be no friendly raiding around my place.'

Rosenthal as a Spy.

"I said to Herman, 'There's no use talking that way; he started you, why don't you do this and save everybody a lot of trouble?' Rosenthal then said to me, 'You don't know what I've done for that fellow Becker. I've been doing things for him I wouldn't have done for anybody else on earth. It was me that made it possible for him to raid practically every place along the avenue so as to help him make a show. If Becker couldn't get the goods on a place I would go in for him and get the layout, and I would bring a couple of fellows out of the gambling house and parade them on the sidewalk. You know Patrolman Foye on the Strong Arm Squad. It was me who placed him on the squad, and he's Becker's best man. When I got the fellows out on the sidewalk Foye was standing across the way. He would get all the dope on the men. That is the way he got his evidence.

"'If Becker gave me $5,000 instead of the $1,500 which he gave me to start this gambling house he could not even begin to pay me for the smallest part of what I done for him. Why, only last week he was able to collect $1,000 on a place in Brooklyn that I wised him up on.'"

To-day promised to be one of great importance in the Becker trial. Reports were circulated that Mr. Manton would spring a surprise on which the fate of Becker would hang, and there were many guesses as to what it would be. The conjectures centred on the possibility of a breaking down of District Attorney Whitman's star witness. It was intimated that Rose would be questioned about how he got the details for his remarkable story; that he would be asked whether the story was not concocted in the West Side Prison when he was with the other accomplices. A suggestion also was made that a dictagraph record of conversations in this prison would be produced. While Mr. Manton declined to deny this report, it did not gain much credence.

Another report concerned the preparation of the District Attorney's case. It had been charged that Mr. Whitman's investigators were shadowed as they went about getting evidence for Becker's new trial. It was believed that the defense would try to show some of the State's witnesses were coached, and that an attempt would be made to lay the blame on some one in authority. The first step in this plan, it was rumored, would concern Rose.

When Rose first told the intricate story of Rosenthal's death on Oct. 12, 1912, he was led to the Criminal Court Building out of a cell in the West Side prison. When he appeared yesterday he came fresh from his own country home near South Norwalk, Conn. He did not appear in the role of the gambler-murderer. This time he was a "reformed gambler," a "lecturer" who admonished young boys all over the country against the evil ways of life; a "writer" on the underworld who drew lessons of morality

"Jack" Rose In Tears.

Tears filled the eyes of the "reformed gambler" when he had nearly finished his story. He did not like to wipe them away and they dried on his face. The tears were seen just at the moment when he was sketching to the awestricken jury the reunion of conspirators immediately after the murder. This reunion was held in the shadows of a doorway near Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street. Rose was there and with him were "Bridgie" Webber, Harry Vallon, and, according to the story he

BOAT BURNS; TWO MEN LOST

Third Member of Party Swims Two Miles to Land.

NEW ROCHELLE, May 12.—After swimming two miles in Long Island Sound this afternoon, Oscar Stoneberg, a shipbuilder, living at 20 Main Street, New Rochelle, told how his two companions, Thomas Clancey and Walter Muller of 11 Franklin Avenue, this city, were drowned when the thirty-foot power launch they were in was burned and sank in the Sound.

The launch was owned by Fowler Ward of 228 Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, who bought it last Fall from James K. McGuire of 41 Elm Street, New Rochelle, formerly Mayor of Syracuse. Stoneberg had put the launch in repair, and, with Clancey, a mechanic, and Muller, foreman of the Diamond Motor Company of New Rochelle, went out in it to test the engine.

According to Stoneberg, the engine acted badly when they were half way between Huckleberry Island and Execution Reef Lighthouse. The launch and their clothing caught fire. The three jumped overboard to extinguish the flames in their clothing and climbed back into the boat to fight the blaze.

When it was seen that they could not save the boat, Stoneberg ripped up the seats, tore up part of the floor, and made a raft. The bottom of the boat burned so that the engine fell through and the hulk sank in a short time.

Finding that the raft was too light to hold the three and that neither Clancey nor Muller could swim, Stoneberg threw off his clothing, in which he says he had about $50, and started to swim to Huckleberry Island, two miles away. He had swam about 100 yards, when he looked back and saw the raft, but the two men were gone. He believed they were drowned because no boat was within hailing distance of them.

MANY INJURED IN STORMS.

Havoc in Pennsylvania — Rain Swamps Michigan, Illinois and Ohio.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 12.—The second disastrous wind, rain, and electrical storm in less than twenty-four hours struck the Pittsburgh district and the Allegheny Valley this evening, injuring scores of persons, many of them probably fatally, and doing hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of damage.

The worst of the storm was felt at Kittanning, Penn., in the Allegheny Valley, thirty miles from here. There many persons were caught by flying débris when wind unroofed two factories. An apartment house and thirty or forty other buildings were damaged. The roof of the apartment house was blown 300 feet away. A large tree in front of the building was uprooted and hurled against a trolley car. The car was knocked from the rails.

Hundreds of trees in the town were uprooted, practically every window broken, and all wire service put out of commission.

DETROIT, Mich., May 12.—All Southern Michigan has suffered severely because of the unusually heavy rain storm which has prevailed since yesterday morning with no immediate prospect of abatement. Reports indicate that at least one life has been lost. The property damage will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., May 12.—A rainfall of 3½ inches, the heaviest in 25 years occurred throughout last night. Belated reports tell of a bridge gone on the Lake Erie & Western Railroad at Carlock and one thousand feet of track at Saybrook and a washout on the Illinois Central at Belleflower. Six barns were struck by lightning and much live stock perished by fire.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 12.—Wire facilities were badly demoralized throughout this State to-day by a storm and almost complete prostration of telegraphic communication was reported by telegraph and telephone companies that operate in northern and northwestern Ohio.

STORM WARNING FOR TO-DAY

Wind and Rain Drive Crowds After Theatre to Shelter.

Following reports of bad weather on the Atlantic brought here by the Captains of incoming liners, the local Weather Bureau issued a storm warning last night, which read:

"Hoist northeast storm warning, 9 P. M., Boston to Delaware Breakwater. Strong northeast winds, probably reaching gale force to-night and Wednesday. "BOWIE."

The sky was overcast yesterday and gave warning of the rain which fell heavily at 10 o'clock at night, with the wind blowing from the east. Frequent squalls made it difficult for persons to hold up their umbrellas. The majority of the theatregoers apparently had not taken the precaution to prepare for the rain, and they had to take shelter in doorways, waiting for an opportunity to get to the street cars or the Subway. By midnight the rain had formed deep pools at the principal crossings along Broadway.

There were no straw hats visible in the streets, and many people wore their Winter coats.

Sullivan Shoots Cannon as a Sequel to a Quarrel in Court.

GRAYCOURT, S. C., May 12.—John M. Cannon, Judge Advocate on Gov. Blease's staff, was shot dead here to-day by Joseph G. Sullivan, member of a prominent family and a political leader in his section, as a sequel to a quarrel that arose during the trial of Sullivan's brother in a Magistrate's court.

The tragedy occurred only a short distance from the court room. The principals walked away from the court after adjournment and the quarrel was renewed. Sullivan drew a revolver and fired five times. Four shots took effect in Cannon's body. The victim died instantly.

Cannon was well known as a lawyer and was prominent in politics in Laurens, his home town. Sullivan is in jail.

ANTI-TRUST BILLS ALONE TO BE PASSED

WILSON BARS RURAL CREDIT

President Rejects Measure as Drafted—Warburg and Wheeler Opposed for Federal Reserve Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Democrats of the House in caucus to-night, at the bidding of the President, adopted a programme for the rest of the session which practically obligates them to devote their time exclusively to anti-trust legislation and the annual appropriation bills. The only deviation permissible under the agreement would be the Urgent Deficiency bill for the army, which may be taken up in case of necessity, and which would take right of way over every other matter of legislation.

Representative Underwood presented a resolution incorporating the wishes of the President. It was adopted after one of the stormiest meetings ever held by the majority party in Congress, in the course of which Representative Ragsdale of South Carolina openly charged that President Wilson had broken faith in refusing to accept rural credits legislation as a part of the programme.

The Underwood resolution provides for the adoption of special rules to expedite the passage of the bills on the programme. These include in their order on the House calendar the Covington Interstate Trade Commission bill, the Clayton Anti-Trust bill, and the Stock and Bond Issue bill, the latest named recently reported from the Interstate Commerce Committee.

Failure to include national prohibition and woman suffrage in the list of subjects to be considered looks like the death knell to legislation of that character for this year at least. These things now can come up only through the operation of a special rule, and Representative Henry of Texas of the Rules Committee announced after the caucus had adjourned, that he would refuse to call his committee together for the purpose of considering prohibition and suffrage until specifically required to do so by the Democrats in caucus. As another caucus is unlikely, it looks as if House members, after all, will not be compelled to go on record on the two propositions which they feared more than anything else would give them trouble in their districts this Fall.

While many individual Democrats sought to be heard to-night, the most obstreperous of all was Representative Ragsdale, who is a member of the Banking and Currency Committee, and had his heart set on rural credits legislation at this session. He made an impassioned speech, in which he declared that the President had refused to accept the Rural Credits bill because the sub-committee of the Banking and Currency Committee would not draft it according to the President's dictation. The President, he said, demanded the withdrawal of all Governmental aid from rural credits banks, and the sub-committee insisted upon the Government sponsoring the banks.

"The President would not include the bill in the programme because the sub-committee did not do his bidding," said Mr. Ragsdale. "We were promised when the Currency bill passed that rural credits legislation would be put through at this session. The farmer has lost out, as I thought. He knew when they brought in this tolls repeal proposition it was going to knock out all good legislation for the session."

Mr. Underwood told his fellow-Democrats that his request to follow out the President's wishes probably would be the last he would make of them as their leader. He referred to the fact that he ends his career in the lower body at the close of the Sixty-third Congress, having been selected for Senatorial honors from his State, Alabama. The remark was taken by some to indicate an intention on the part of the majority leader to turn over the reins as leader to another with the beginning of the short session next December.

The discussions took a wide range after Mr. Underwood sat down, and sentiment was generally felt out as to what other lines of legislation might be followed in addition to those suggested in the request from the White House. Representative Levy of New York introduced a resolution calling for a programme to include only the passage of the rest of the annual appropriation bills and then a quick adjournment. There was only one vote in favor of this proposal, and that was Mr. Levy's.

One after another the proposals to extend the programme were turned down by the caucus. A motion by Representative Bathrick of Ohio to incorporate rural credits drew only twenty votes out of an attendance of more than 200 Democrats. A general proposition to open the programme for everything was lost in a roar of "noes." The general sentiment with respect to rural credits was that the proposed legislation had not progressed far enough in committee consideration to entitle it to be dignified by the caucus as a matter for immediate action.

Representative Lever of South Carolina, Chairman of the Agriculture Committee, pleaded long and loudly for the inclusion of cotton and grain futures legislation, but failed to muster sufficient strength to make a showing.

RURAL CREDIT PLAN SHELVED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—An open and complete difference of opinion between President Wilson on one side and a joint sub-committee of the House and Senate on the other over the rural credits legislation resulted to-night in the definite elimination of that item from the legislative programme of the session. On information from the White House Majority Leader Underwood to-night omitted rural credits from the programme he asked the Democratic caucus to approve, and when Representative Bathrick offered an amendment including credits in the programme his amendment was overwhelmingly rejected.

The joint sub-committee of twelve members of the two Committees on Banking and Currency, after months of study, had prepared a measure involving material Governmental assistance in the financing of farm land banks. To this provision in particular the President expressed himself as absolutely opposed, and he withheld without qualification his approval of the plan of the members of the committee to introduce in the two houses the bill as drafted.

The Real Russia of To-day.

No country has inspired so many exaggerated statements as Russia. The revolutions, the pogroms, the Beiliss case have all added to the puzzle of what the real land of the Czar is. The New York Times commissioned the German author and student, Kurt Aram, to visit that country and study conditions first hand. His first article appears

ROOSEVELT MADE ANGRY BY DOUBTERS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The members of the expedition are elated by their discoveries and by the general success of the undertaking.

Col. Roosevelt's health is greatly improved, but he is still much shaken by the severe attack of fever from which he suffered, in addition to the effects of the abscess on his leg.

The Colonel and the others of the party are indignant at the reports from London saying that Sir Clements Markham, ex-President of the Royal Geographical Society, and other geographers have expressed doubt in regard to the discovery of a river in Brazil.

Col. Roosevelt ridicules the suggestion that he become a candidate for the Governorship of New York.

The latest Mexican developments have evidently surprised Col. Roosevelt, but he refuses to discuss the situation at present.

BRIDGETOWN, May 12.—Col. Roosevelt expects that his recovery will be complete by the time he arrives in New York.

The members of Col. Roosevelt's expedition say in regard to the skepticism displayed in various quarters as to the discovery of a hitherto unknown and important river running into the Madeira, that the existence of the Rhine, the Elbe, or the Hudson might just as well be questioned.

FIALA SAYS ROOSEVELT KNEW.

Had Latest Brazilian Maps Charted with Newest Theodolite.

Capt. Anthony Fiala, who was a member of the Roosevelt expedition in the Amazon country, told a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday that Col. Roosevelt knew exactly where he was when he found the new river and followed it for 1,000 miles. Capt. Fiala explained that while the published maps of Brazil are not reliable, the Roosevelt party had the benefit of the geodetic data of the country prepared for the use of the Brazilian Government. He said:

"Savage Landor's criticism of Col. Roosevelt's work in South America sounds very funny to one who has been over the ground, and the statement that Col. Roosevelt must have come down the new river in a steam launch would only be made by a person profoundly ignorant of the conditions in the Matto Grosso region of Brazil and on the watershed of the Madeira and Tapajos Rivers. These rivers and their tributaries pass over large waterfalls and numerous cataracts and rapids before they reach the quiet waters that join the level of the Amazon.

"Of course, the new river could be no exception to the general rule, as it is placed between the two rivers mentioned and has the same character of country to pass through.

"The maps of Brazil published to date are very unreliable, and particularly so in regard to the river systems south of the Amazon. Rivers are shown hundreds of miles out of position and flow in every direction but the right one.

"Col. Rondon and Lieut. Lyra, the two Brazilian engineers with Col. Roosevelt on his descent of the Riodo Duvida, had been engaged for a number of years for the Brazilian Government mapping the region we traversed, and we fortunately had their original maps to follow. Col. Rondon is well known for his wonderful work in the placing of the 500 mile telegraph line from Anjaba to the Madeira River through the primeval wilderness of the Matto Gosso. Lieut. Lyra is a very careful geodesist, having been educated in Germany for the work.

"The positions on these maps were astronomically determined with a six-inch Hyde theodolite, fitted with micrometer adjustments—the latest construction. A new instrument of this type was carried by the Roosevelt party down the Rio da Duvida. Both the new river and the Papagaio (the latter the river down which I came) were carefully mapped, and the results will be used by the Brazilian Government in the map of the country to be printed before long."

HOME TALENT FOR CARNEGIE

He Buys Sotter's Pittsburgh Landscape for His New York House.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, May 12.—Struck by the beauty of a bit of Pittsburgh landscape painted by George Sotter of this city, Andrew Carnegie, it was learned to-day, made a single purchase out of the 342 paintings in the present international exhibition. "The Hill Road," hanging just inside the first large gallery in the Institute, will be added to the Carnegie collection in the ironmaster's New York home. The picture will be sent to New York immediately after the close of the exhibition.

On the occasion of his recent visit to Pittsburgh Mr. Carnegie made a tour of the galleries. The gray-blues and whites of the snow-covered landscape, with the clusters of South Side houses dotting the hillside, and the half-hidden road winding down until it was lost in the mist, caught his eye, and he decided at once to buy the picture.

Mr. Sotter has had seventeen paintings hung in the various international exhibitions in the last ten years. Most of them were Pittsburgh scenes.

GIRL ORATOR IN AUTO STOPPED BY POLICE

A meeting held to interest employes of Stern Bros'. department store in West Forty-second Street in the Union of Retail Clerks was broken up last night by the police of the East Fifty-first Street Station, and Miss Elizabeth Dutcher, suffragist and social worker, who lives at 39 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn, and Paul Howard Douglas, a student in Columbia University, were arrested. Miss Dutcher was charged with disorderly conduct, and a charge of interfering with an officer was made against Douglas.

The trouble started when an automobile containing Douglas and several women stopped in Forty-third Stree, near Sixth Avenue, in front of the employes' entrance to the store. Miss Dutcher began to make an address from the auto, and a crowd soon collected which blocked traffic. The others in the automobile were Miss Hildegarde Kneeland, Mrs. Frank Cathern, Mrs. Herbert N. Warbasse, wife of a lawyer of 386 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, and Mrs. James P. Warbasse, wife of a member of the Municipal Civil Service Commission living at 384 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn.

Sergt. Smythe of the East Fifth Street Station, believing that a series of addresses was planned, stepped up to the automobile and ordered its occupants to "move on." Miss Dutcher remonstrated, and a wordy dispute ensued. As a result of it, Sergt. Smythe placed Miss Dutcher under arrest.

At that juncture Douglas protested and caught hold of the Sergeant's arm. The women in the automobile also voiced their indignation. Sergt. Smythe was obdurate, however, and took Douglas along with him to the station house as well.

The women protested that they had a permit for the meeting, but the Sergeant held that the permit did not give them permission to block traffic. Miss Dutcher, he said, had caused a great crowd to collect by her words, and he had a hard time shouldering his way to the automobile.

Mrs. J. P. Warbasse offered her residence in Brooklyn as bail, and the two prisoners were released under bonds of $500 each to appear in the Yorkville Court this morning.

Miss Dutcher is a Vassar graduate. She testified before the Senate committee investigating factory legislation in 1912, and was a candidate for Alderman on the Socialist ticket in 1911.

At her home in Brooklyn last night Miss Dutcher said that she considered the action of the police outrageous. She was given no chance to speak, she said, before Sergt. Smythe appeared. She said that she would seek redress for the indignities after her arraignment to-day.

DOMINICANS STILL FIGHTING

Representatives of Both Factions Confer Without Reaching Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Fighting continued yesterday and to-day between the Government and revolutionary forces at Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, with no definite results. The forces of President Bordas have completely invested the town, laying siege to the place on the land side, and blockading it from the sea in an effort to starve out the besieged revolutionists.

Capt. Eberle of the American armored cruiser Washington, who has been endeavoring to adjust the differences, has arranged for a conference between the leaders of the two factions on board the Washington to-morrow. The following dispatch was received at the Navy Department from Capt. Eberle to-day:

"Brisk attack by Bordas on east side Puerto Plata yesterday afternoon, and light attack to-day noon, with no decisive results and few casualties. Town practically surrounded by Federals, and country supplies cut off. Bordas cut off water supply some days ago, but town has wells and cisterns. No reported casualties among foreigners or non-combatants. Both sides are observing promise not to use artillery near town. Will send about twenty foreigners by Seminole, when that vessel arrives off port. Both parties have agreed to conference on United States cruiser Washington and hope to meet to-morrow or as soon as Bordas's representatives arrive from the field. Fairly quiet in Puerto Plata, and business suspended owing to blockade and siege."

A later dispatch from Capt. Eberle, sent from Puerto Plata at 4 o'clock this afternoon and received at the Navy Department to-night, said:

"Four representatives of each party conferred on the United States steamship Washington four hours to-day without reaching an agreement. Puerto Plata quiet. Send thirty-four foreign subjects by Seminole."

NAVAL WINE BAN STANDS.

Order Effective July 1 Despite Contrary Reports, Says Daniels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary Daniels said to-day that in spite of reports to the contrary, his order abolishing the wine mess on vessels of the navy would go into effect on July 1. It had been reported that the order would require the approval of the President, who would not sign it.

Mr. Daniels would not indicate whether it was necessary for President Wilson to approve the order, but he made it sufficiently plan that, whatever the formula of approval required, that approval would be given.

Secretary Daniels read the following extract from a private letter he had received from Admiral Fletcher:

"During the nine days that we occupied the City of Vera Cruz I was unable to learn of a single case of drunkenness or intoxication among our men. I think this is unparalleled in history."

Mr. Daniels echoed Admiral's Fletcher's comment that such a record was unparalleled.

TAMPICO ALL DAY UNDER HEAVY FIRE

RESULT IS NOT REVEALED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The battle of Tampico was resumed with heavy artillery this morning and continued through the day. Up to 11:30 o'clock to-night the Navy Department was without information, official or otherwise, as to the progress of the attack. At that hour this bulletin was issued on the basis of a message received from Admiral Mayo:

> While no definite information a sto the progress of the attack on Tampico has as yet been obtained, Admiral Mayo reports at 9:20 o'clock that heavy artillery and rifle fire has been going on all day, and still continued at the time of his dispatch. The German and Dutch cruisers which were in the river have moved down.

The only official message received during the day regarding the progress of the battle at Tampico was one filed at Vera Cruz at 2:40 oclock this afternoon, which stated that Admiral Badger had received this message from Admiral Mayo during the afternoon.

"Heavy firing commenced on shore about Tuesday 9 A. M. and is continuing."

The Constitutionalist confidential agency in Washington was without news as to the progress of the battle up to a late hour to-night. Efforts to obtain such information for Constitutionalist agents in Juarez were without avail. But it was said by Constitutionalists here that they understood that Gen. Pablo Gonzales was leading the main attack from the northwest on Tampico.

Admiral Mayo reported to-night that the German and Dutch cruisers had moved down the river from Tampico. It is believed this was done to place these vessels beyond the range of the guns of the Constitutionalists whose shells would come toward the river from the high ground northwest and north of Tampico, where their artillery is placed.

The situation in Tampico is such that the attack by the Constitutionalists could only be made from the north or northwest, unless they should cross to the south side of the Panuco river. Tampico is on the north side of the Panuco and of the Tamesi river which parallels the Panuco, skirting the southern edge of the city. Just west of the city the Tamesi swings around to the northwest while the Panuco curves toward the southwest. On the northern part of Tampico is a great laguna about a mile and a quarter long, and more than half a mile wide.

In making their attacks on Tampico the Constitutionalists are blocked by this lake, and forced to swing around it. To meet such attacks the Federals have placed the gunboat Vera Cruz in the Panuco at the western end of the city, while the Federal gunboat Bravo has been stationed at the bend in the Panuco at the eastern end of the city. The Vera Cruz has up to this time been able to check any attack from the northwest, while the sweep of the guns across the narrow strip of hillside east of the city, has blocked all attempts to enter the city from that side. The Mexican gunboats have had a clear sweep also of the southern bank of the river and prevented any attack from that quarter.

Besides the gunboats, the Federals have also had a number of field cannon and modern machine guns in Tampico. Some men in Washington familiar with the situation have suggested that the battle might last three days, and unless won in that time would have to be halted to enable both sides to bring up more ammunition for the big guns.

Admiral Mayo's earlier report from Tampico to-day stated that he had detained the American chartered transport Mexico until this morning, and communicated with all the foreign commanders and received their assurances that they did not need to use her for the accommodation of refugees. Admiral Mayo said that the Mexico had accordingly sailed for Tuxpam.

The Mexico will pick up a number of refugees at Tuxpam who assembled there from Pineapple City. The Mexico will take them to Vera Cruz, and will probably sail for New Orleans with about seventy-five refugees on Thursday. The British cruiser Suffolk arrived at Vera Cruz last night and sailed to-night for Tampico.

She will there join the British cruisers Hermione and Essex, under command of Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock. This will give the British three cruisers at Tampico, the largest force they have had at any one point in Mexican waters since the situation became acute.

OIL THREATENS TAMPICO.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Information of a serious character regarding the oil wells and tanks in the Panuco, Topila and other petroleum fields in the Tampico-Tuxpam region of Mexico was submitted to Secretary Garrison to-day.

It embraced the statement that unless something was done to prevent it all the oil wells in the Panuco and Topila fields would be pouring their product into the Panuco River within the next ten days. The flow of oil cannot be shut off entirely on account of its great pressure. It can only be shut down to a minimum flow.

This minimum flow is 50,000 barrels a day in the Panuco field and 10,000 barrels a day in the Topila field, according to information submitted to Secretary Garrison, and this would mean, he was told, that unless provision was promptly made for getting this oil out of the field there would be a daily overflow of not less than 60,000 barrels of oil into the Panuco River.

The ignition of this oil would probably result in a great catastrophe, endangering property along the river, threatening the destruction of all the wells in the Tampico district, the city and people of Tampico, and shipping.

This information was presented to Secretary Garrison by a committee representing American refugees from the Tampico district, headed by Col. W. E. Lucas. The other members of the committee were W. M. Hansen, L. M. Fouts, Jr., Dr. W. M. Turner, and J. B. Wood. These men have lived in Mexico for periods ranging from fourteen to twenty-five years, and are thoroughly convers-

BERLIN, May 12.—Experiments with wireless telephony conducted by the Telefunken Company at Nauen, have resulted in further successes.

Pieces of music sent by wireless from the station at Nauen were clearly heard at Vienna.

To-day conversations took place between Nauen and Pola, the Austrian fortified seaport. The distance between the two stations is nearly 600 miles, and the wireless route is over land all the way.

DESTROYER BEATS RECORDS

ROCKLAND, Me., May 12.—The torpedo boat destroyer McDougal broke all mile speed records for her type in standardization trials to-day. She plowed the water at the rate of 32.07 knots an hour on her fastest mile. The average of her five full speed runs was 31.516 knots.

John S. Hyde, President of the Bath Iron Works, builders of the destroyer, said to-night that she would probably be in commission by June 10.

Mme. Schumann-Heinck Quiets Fears of Audience in Dark.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Mme. Schumann-Heinck by a commendable display of coolness last night prevented a panic at a concert in St. Joseph's Tabernacle, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Mme. Schumann-Heinck was singing "The Rosary," when following a terrific peal of thunder and continued flashes of lightning, the lights went out, leaving in complete darkness 2,500 persons, many in a panicky condition. Realizing the situation, Mme. Schumann Heinck continued to sing, and the fears of the audience had been dispelled when the lights flashed up again.

WINS TURTLE VACCINE SUIT.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, May 12.—A jury before Justice Mills in the Supreme Court today returned a verdict of $225 in the action instituted by Mrs. Margaret A. Mulford, who alleged that she expended that amount in having the turtle vaccine treatment for tuberculosis given to her husband by Dr. Maurice A. Sturm of New York. The jury was out only five minutes.

Mrs. Mulford charged that the treatment did the patient no good, and he died within seven days after the vaccine had been administered.

Dr. Sturm, who was a witness, testified that he had made affidavit that he did not know Dr. F. F. Friedmann's turtle serum secret in order that Friedmann might obtain $75,000 on a contract giving a corporation headed by Morris Eisner the American right to manufacture and use the vaccine.

NORDENSKJOLD IS SLAIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, May 12.—According to a telegram in The Neues Wiener Tagblatt, the Nordenskjöld South American exploring expedition has been lost.

It is said that the leader of the party, Baron Erland von Nordenskjöld, youngest son of Baron Adolf Erik Nordenskjöld, the Swedish explorer, has fallen a victim to Beni Indians.

This statement comes from a missionary named Holler, who is now in Styria and who received the news from Beni, in Bolivia.

After no news had been received from Nordenskjöld on two successive mail days, one of his companions, streaming with blood, reached Santa Anna, and, before falling down dead, uttered words indicating that the explorer had been killed by savages.

BISHOP'S UNOFFICIAL WAGER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 12.—What he calls an "unofficial wager" has been made by the Bishop of London, and he wants Londoners to help him to win it.

Speaking at a meeting in support of his fund for building churches in the metropolis, the Bishop said that at a great banquet given in his honor in New York, he made the "unofficial wager"—it would not have done for a Bishop to make a bet, he added—that he would make London a better, purer, and nobler place before they could make New York such. There was now a sort of friendly rivalry between the two nations as to which could make the finest town in the world, he said.

"You don't want to see me beaten, disgraced, and ashamed to go to New York again," remarked the Bishop amid encouraging cheers.

RAILROAD CHAIR AT HARVARD

$125,000 Professorship in Hill's Honor Almost Endowed.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 12.—A professorship of railroading for the graduate school of business administration of Harvard University has been almost completely endowed, it was announced to-night. The chair will be named in honor of James J. Hill.

The total amount required is $125,000, of which $100,000 has been pledged. It is proposed to raise further endowment funds to the amount of $250,000.

The Hill professorship plan was initiated, it is understood, by Howard Elliott, Chairman of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad; Robert Bacon, former Ambassador to France, and Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co.

ENVOYS WORKING ON PLAN TO GET HUERTA OUT

BOARD OF FIVE MEMBERS

Two Named by Huerta, Two by Rebels, and One by the Envoys.

HOPEFUL OF CARRANZA

WILSON HAS A PLAN, TOO

Would Offer to Police Mexico if Rebels Take the Capital, It Is Said.

THUS COULD RESTORE ORDER

Hope Not Abandoned of Finding a Way Out if Peace Conference Doesn't End Too Suddenly.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Elimination of Gen. Huerta and the establishment of a Provisional Government in Mexico in which both the Huerta and the Constitutionalist factions would be represented is contemplated in a plan which the three South American envoys now are working out to be proposed for the solution of the entire Mexican problem.

This, the first intimation as to the details of the peace plans, became known to-night, though neither the envoys nor State Department officials would make any statement as to how nearly complete is the plan to be submitted to the American and the Mexican delegates when they meet at Niagara Falls, Canada, next Monday.

It was learned that the proposal might be that the setting up of a temporary Government be undertaken by a commission composed of five persons, two of them to be named by Huerta, two by the Constitutionalists, and the fifth by the envoys.

While the envoys have withdrawn their invitation to the Constitutionalists to send delegates to their conferences, it is generally believed that information is being sought as to whether the Constitutionalists would consent, in case of the elimination of Huerta, to some form of temporary government in which he would be represented. Those close to the mediators say it is believed that some such arrangement as this is the only possible one under which peace may be restored in Mexico under conditions satisfactory to all Mexican factions and to the United States.

Since the recent withdrawal of the invitation to send delegates to the Niagara Falls conference no efforts have been made by the envoys to have the Constitutionalists send representatives, and it has been stated positively in authoritative quarters that none will be made. Nevertheless it is known that the peace envoys intend to consider the Constitutionalist side of the problem in their plan, and therefore would welcome information as to their attitude in case of a possible elimination of Huerta.

Carranza Party Opposed.

EL PASO, Texas, May 12.—The plan for the pacification of Mexico now being worked worked out by the South American conferees, and which it is announced would eliminate Huerta and establish a Provisional Government in which both the adherents of Huerta and the Constitutionalists would be represented, will not be acceptable to the Constitutionalists, according to Constitutionalist officers here.

They will agree to nothing less than the complete elimination, not only of Huerta, but of his entire party. They say that the ousting of Huerta, the individual, would be but an empty victory, unless the system for which they hold Huerta and his followers stand were to be abolished.

"The plans of the Constitutionalists Government can contemplate nothing less than complete victory for the reforms for which we are fighting," said Roberto V. Pesqueira, confidental agent of Gen. Carranza here. Mr. Pesqueira spoke simply as a member of the Constitutionalist Party, but his utterances heretofore have accurately outlined the expressions which later have followed from his chief.

"Why should we compromise with them?" he asked. "We have beaten Huerta at every turn, and why should we yield our advantage when we have the reforms for which we strive almost within our grasp? This has been a fight of a hundred years for reform, and we will not be content to have these years of fighting wasted."

Other Constitutionalists expressed the belief that there was no basis on which the adherents of Huerta and the Constitutionalists could work together in a provisional Government.

IF THE REBELS WIN

President Wilson's Plan of Policing Mexico May Be Proposed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The South American envoys who are using their good offices to bring about peace between this country and Mexico spent some time to-day considering the Huerta protest against our taking possession of the lighthouse on Lobos Island, and also the inquiry concerning the arrest of South Americans accused of sniping at Vera Cruz.

But among those who have an inside understanding of the progress of the peace proceedings the idea prevails that these and other similar incidents will have no real bearing on the course of the envoy. They are regarded as of minor importance and will not be permitted to interfere with the ultimate outcome of the envoy's work.

The real importance of the situation produced by the agreement of the United States and Mexico to accept good offices, it is understood, is the influence expected to be exercised by the envoys toward a practical plan for the pacification of Mexico in the fulfillment of which this Government will have a part.

President's Plan for Peace.

It is the understanding in offical circles that President Wilson has "in the back of his head," as it was expressed to THE TIMES correspondent, a scheme for restoring normal conditions in Mexico through the co-operation of the United States and the forces now known as the Constitutionalists. While the President's plan is not disclosed in any detail, it is said to be based on the confident belief that the Constitutionalist forces will soon be successful, and that Gen. Carranza will set up a Government in Mexico City.

According to the talk among those who seem to have some knowledge of what is in contemplation, the United States Government will tender its services to Gen. Carranza for the purpose of aiding him in bringing about a condition of complete law and order throughout Mexican territory.

These services, it is said, probably will take the form of the organization of a constabulary to be composed principally of Mexicans and Americans, who will maintain their organization until the work of pacification has been completed.

It is recognized that such a proposal may not receive a cordial reception from the victorious Constitutionalist authorities, and the Washington Administration is credited with the intention of asking the envoys to use their influence toward persuading Gen. Carranza and his advisers to accept American co-operation of the character mentioned.

It is important therefore that the peace conference shall not come to an end before the expected triumph of the Constitutionalists.

That the envoys are sincerely anxious to go ahead with their undertaking in the hope that it will lead to some result beneficial to all the parties concerned in the Mexican situation there is no room for doubt. They are honest and energetic in their efforts, and have been highly commended by neutral observers for their tact and common sense. If the conference to be begun at Niagara Falls, Ontario, next Monday is prolonged beyond the time of the predicted entrance of the Constitutionalists into Mexico City, the United States Government will be in a position to bring forward whatever plans it has in mind for establishing conditions in Mexico that will insure what this Administration hopes will be a permanent peace.

Salute Issue in the Past.

The differences between the United States and the Huerta governments have gone beyond the point, it is believed here, where firing a salute to the American flag will be accepted as reparation for the indignity at Tampico on April 9.

One widespread opinion in Washington is that within a short time the Huerta Government may not be in a position where it could fire the demanded salute at a seaport place even if it were inclined to do so.

The Constitutionalists are confident that they will take Tampico soon, and there is a growing conviction that the Huerta Government will begin to topple to its fall shortly thereafter.

TO PROTECT DELEGATES.

U. S. Offer Is Sent by A B C Envoys to Mexico City.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 12.—This dispatch from the A B C envoys was made public to-day by the Foreign Relations Department:

> Washington, D. C., May 11, 1914.
> To Minister of Foreign Relations, Mexico:
> We take pleasure in communicating to your Excellency the fact that the Secretary of State has asked us to convey this Government's desires to offer to the representatives designated for the mediation conference any safeguard or protection that might be necessary within the territory of the United States.
>
> Although we have informed him that in our opinion there was no necessity for such measure, we discharge our duty in transmitting to your Excellency the assurances of our high consideration.
>
> D. DA GAMA,
> Ambassador of Brazil.
> R. S. NAON,
> Minister of Argentina.
> E. SUAREZ MUJICA,
> Minister of Chile.

In answer to this message, Señor Esteva Ruiz said:

> Mexico, May 12, 1914.
> Informed of the desires of the United States Government, transmitted to this Chancellery through your Excellencies' kindness, to offer to the representatives of the Government of Mexico, designated for the mediation conference, any safeguards or protection in the American territory, I entreat your Excellencies to be pleased to make manifest the appreciation of this Government for said courtesy, and I leave to your Excellencies, in concert with the delegation on its arrival, to determine as to the desirability of accepting the offer in question.

DISCLAIMS LOBOS SEIZURE.

Certificate of Force Was Merely Formal, Administration Explains.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary of State Bryan to-night delivered to the A B C envoys the response of this Government to the protest of the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs in regard to the Lobos Island incident. Denial is made that there was any seizure of the island or the lighthouse in a military sense. This denial is based on two telegrams received from Rear Admiral Badger, commanding the American naval force on the Mexican east coast.

The full text of one of these telegrams and what appears to be a paraphrase of another were made public by the Navy Department this evening. According to Admiral Badger's explanation contained in these dispatches, Lieut. Commander William N. Jeffers, commanding the torpedo boat destroyer Fanning, found that the lightkeeper intended to desert his post and take with him parts of the machinery necessary for the operation of the light.

Offers to furnish provisions and supplies for the lightkeeper and his assistants if they would remain were refused. Lieut. Commander Jeffers declined to permit the lightkeeper to remove any part of the machinery on the ground that the operation of the light was necessary for the safety of commerce, but in order that the lightkeeper might be protected fully in the explanation that would be demanded by the Mexican authorities, Jeffers gave him a certificate that the light had been taken by force. This certificate forms the basis of the protest of the Huerta Government to the envoys. It is asserted that the truce between the two Governments was broken.

The first telegram of Admiral Badger on the subject was in response to an inquiry of the Navy Department as to the facts regarding the alleged seizure. As given out by the department to-night, this telegram reads as follows:

> Replying Department's midnight Sunday, destroyer flotilla is using anchorage in lee of Lobos Island as a base for fueling, provisioning, and repairing. About one-half flotilla habitually there and one-half off Tampico. Only inhabitants of island were lighthouse keepers, who abandoned island four or five days ago. They were offered provisions and supplies if they would remain, but declined to do so. Since then flotilla has maintained light and guarded property on shore. Lighthouse keepers were told they were free to come and go as they pleased. No occupation in military sense has occurred. BADGER.

The second dispatch, which the Navy Department says "is given in its entirety and literally" in the statement prepared for the press this evening, tells of the certificate that the light was taken by force which Lieut. Commander Jeffers gave to the lightkeeper. This telegram follows:

> Referring department's midnight Sunday, determined that the only thing that could be construed as occupation of Lobos Island was that lighthouse keeper, when leaving light, was prevented from taking away with him certain essential parts of light machinery, and for personal protection of lightkeeper he was given by commanding officer of Fanning a certificate that light was taken by force. The operation of this light is considered of greatest importance to all vessels on this coast.

The Administration's Reply.

The response of the United States Government to the protest of the Mexican Minister for Foreign Affairs is along the lines of the following statement made by the Navy Department to-night:

> From these two telegrams it is evident that there was no intent to seize the island or to occupy it in any military sense. The light on this island is essential to navigation, not only for the ships of the navy but for the merchant vessels of all nations frequenting the coast. Apparently on his own responsibility, the lighthouse keeper not only abandoned the light, but desired to permanently disable it by taking away essential portions of the machinery. To have permitted this would have exposed not only our ships but the merchant ships of all other nations to great peril, and it was obviously necessary to refuse to let the lighthouse keeper practically destroy this important aid to navigation.
> The commander of the Fanning, wishing as an act of courtesy to the lighthouse keeper, and to save him possibly serious consequences for his desertion of his post, gave him a certificate that he was in no wise to blame for his failure to bring the parts of the working machinery with him which he was directed to leave behind.
> The department is not advised of the exact wording of this certificate, but its intent is perfectly obvious, and it is in no way to be construed as a certificate that the naval forces had seized the island, but only that the commanding officer of the Fanning had deemed it his duty to insist that the necessary machinery for operation of the light was left behind by the keeper. Further information has been requested, and the misunderstanding will be explained to the mediators.

Asks Envoys to Help Snipers.

The Huerta Government has made another protest also through the envoys against the arrest and confinement by the United States military authorities at Vera Cruz of three Chilians, a Peruvian and a man who asserts that he is a Brazilian, but who is said to be a Venezuelan citizen. These five men are accused of having engaged in sniping American bluejackets and marines on April 21, the day the American armed forces seized Vera Cruz. This particular sniping came from a Norwegian merchant vessel lying in the harbor, and it was made known to-day that Rear Admiral Fletcher served warning on the commander of the Norwegian ship that his vessel would be sunk if the sniping did not cease. Subsequently the five South Americans were delivered to Rear Admiral Fletcher and were placed in confinement at Vera Cruz.

When Brig. Gen. Funston became Military Governor of Vera Cruz the prisoners were transferred to his custody. Gen. Funston informed the War Department that he had received, through William W. Canada, the American Consul at Vera Cruz, a request made by the Brazilian Minister at Mexico City that the men be released. Gen. Funston asked to be instructed, and Secretary Garrison informed him that the matter had assumed a diplomatic phase and had been referred to the State Department. It was admitted at the State Department to-day that a protest had come through the envoys from the Huerta Government.

This protest, it is understood, is based on the ground that as Vera Cruz was Mexican territory, the United States had no right to take measures against foreign citizens there, who were under the protection of the Huerta Administration. This makes the third protest regarding alleged violations of the truce which the Huerta Government has made to the envoys.

The first was based on the charge that the American forces had extended their lines beyond Vera Cruz in violation of the agreement to take no aggressive action.

The United States Government on its part has protested to the envoys against the arrest and confinement of John R. Silliman, the American Vice Consul at Saltillo.

The State Department announced to-day that it had received assurances from the Mexican Government through the Brazilian Minister in Mexico City that Mr. Silliman's release has been ordered and that he would receive safe conduct to Vera Cruz by way of the capital.

REACH HAVANA TO-MORROW.

Peace Delegates Will Probably Catch the Morning Boat to Key West

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, May 12.—The Hamburg-American steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie, bringing the Huerta delegates to the peace conference, is due here Thursday morning.

The delegates will probably be able to catch the Thursday morning steamer for Key West. In that case they will arrive in New York on Saturday night. If they miss the Key West boat on Thursday they cannot reach New York until Sunday night, and will have to go on immediately to arrive at Niagara Falls in time for the scheduled opening of the conference on Monday.

You'll have your eyes opened.

Compare the cost of doing business with that of five years ago—yes, even three years ago—and you will have your eyes opened.

You are doing more business, probably; but it costs more to get and handle.

One place where you can save is in your accounting department—monthly statements and ledger posting. With an Ellis Adding-typewriter you can do both AT ONCE, save 50 per cent. of the cost and have your trial balance and statements out on the first—not the tenth—of the month.

The price is $500 and up; but an Ellis will do twice as much work as a $15 a week clerk. And its first cost is almost its only cost.

Phone us and one of our service men will call and explain the method.

PARKS EXECUTED, FUNSTON SAYS

Believes He Was Tortured Before He Faced Maass' Firing Squad.

M'CORMICK REPORTS KILLING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, May 12.—Gen. Funston this morning announced that he had information that Private Samuel Parks of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, who strayed into the Mexican lines a few days ago, had been executed on May 7 and that he had been tortured before being shot.

Despite his evident insanity, due to the oppressive heat, the Mexicans gave him no examination by a physician, and, though he knew absolutely no Spanish, did not give him an interpreter during his farcical examination by a drumhead court. The soldier's condition was pitiful in the extreme, and he faced the court-martial dazed and unable to understand a single question asked him.

He was quickly adjudged guilty as a spy and sentenced to be shot by a firing squad composed of the roughest of Gen. Maass' men and commanded by an officer of the so-called Mexican Engineer Corps—although Huerta's army has no corps worthy of the name, most of the officers being as ignorant as the most untutored officers of the rurales.

Lieut. Col. Taggart's blooded horses, with which Parks broke across the line, are held by Gen. Maass, and inquiries made about them by Gen. Funston have been ignored by the Mexican commander.

It is believed that Gen. Funston will demand a full explanation from Gen. Maass of the execution, but it is doubtful if Gen. Maass will make one. The affair has aroused great indignation among the American troops, especially of the regiment to which Parks belonged.

It was rumored that Gen. Maass had taken another American soldier prisoner, but this story proved to be unfounded.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 12.—According to Medill McCormick of this city, leader of the Progressive Party in this State and now war correspondent in Mexico, Private Samuel Parks, whose singular disappearance from the American lines outside of Vera Cruz has been a matter of considerable conjecture and apprehension, was executed on Friday morning last by order of the commandant of the Mexican Federal post at Tejeria, and his body was burned.

Mr. McCormick bases his report upon information which he deems trustworthy, and narrates the last hours of the unfortunate American soldier. Mr. McCormick gives the story in detail in a cable dispatch to The Chicago Daily News from Vera Cruz as follows:

"Private Samuel Parks of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, who disappeared Thursday, was shot at dawn Friday morning by order of the commandant of the Mexican post at Tejeria, just outside the American lines. His body was burned. This information I gave to Gen. Funston. It is based upon information which I believe to be certain, but I cannot give you the name of my informant, lest it cost him his life.

"When Parks strayed from the lines Thursday he fell in with a Mexican patrol which seized his horse and beat him almost into insensibility with the butts of their rifles. He was dragged to Tejeria. There he was bound hand and foot and thrown into a room in the commandant's house to await his execution in the morning.

"The man through whom I learned of Parks's death, caught sight of him from the door of another room and managed to get near enough to Parks to whisper to him unnoticed by the other Mexicans present. Necessarily, he could hear little of what Parks said. He told me he caught the words, 'Samuel Parks, Twenty-eighth Infantry. Tell my commanding officer.'

"He thought Parks was a Lieutenant because he was mounted on an animal good enough to be forwarded to Gen. Maass for his use.

"Parks's messenger—for so I call him—dared not return to the American lines before dawn. A little after daylight, Parks was led out before the firing squad. He went like a man and a soldier, the messenger said. He called out 'Good-by' as he went.

"As he had not been able to save Parks, the messenger felt that he must carry out Parks's last request to get word to his commanding officer. It fell to my lot to bring the message to Gen. Funston, and thus to learn that Private Parks and not Lieut. Parker had been the first soldier to join the marines and the bluejackets who fell here.

"When I prepared the dispatch which I filed before this I wrote with the greatest reserve and consequently without confirmation from American sources, and I sent you no word of the murder at Tejeria or of the reasons for the instructions which it was reported had been given to Gen. Rubio Navarette. It was said in the capital that Gen. Navarette was united with Gen. Huerta in a determination to bring about war. They are reported to be as determined to do so as Villa is to reach the capital to loot it before the American army leaves the coast."

WON'T ADVANCE ON FUNSTON.

Gen. Navarrette Says He Will Carefully Observe the Armistice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, May 12.—A letter received here from Gen. Guillermo Rubio Navarrette denies the report that he is advancing on Vera Cruz.

He states that he has received orders to observe the armistice and will fully abide by the rules of warfare.

Lieut. José Azueta of the Mexican Army died to-day as a result of wounds received in the fighting here. Signal honor was paid to him by Mexican civilians, more than a thousand following the body to the grave and blocking street traffic for some time. The casket was draped with the Mexican flag and his military cap placed on the top. Flowers were carried by relatives. Perfect order prevailed.

All was quiet at the outposts to-day.

By The Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, May 12.—Pending action by the Niagara Falls Peace Conference there will be no beginning of hostile action by the American forces here, and there is no reason to believe that the Mexican Federals will advance their lines.

The recent charge by Gen. Blanquet that the Americans were breaking the armistice caused Gen. Funston to confer with his legal adviser, Col. Porter. They agreed that while no armistice, nor truce, either implying hostilities, which none but President Huerta admits, exists, there is a tacit understanding that neither side will begin hostilities. So far as this agreement affects the movements of troops within their own lines, Gen. Funston and Col. Porter asserted that both the Mexican and American forces had this right. It is expected that Huerta will move some of his troops toward the coast, while behind the American lines such minor changes of position as are required will continue to be made. The interpretation placed upon the agreement by Funston and Porter would allow the unlimited strengthening of both Mexican and American forces so long as no advance was made.

Slight changes were made to-day in the position of the American forces, to which the Mexican authorities might find objection, but which are regarded by Funston and Porter as justified beyond any question of dispute. At the Tejar waterworks station there was a detached outpost. Between this post and the main body of troops there were only connecting posts, but on account of the necessity of protecting the water supply of Vera Cruz patrols were ordered all along the pipe line.

The water supply is as plentiful as ever, but the increasing population, due to the influx of refugees, has made its conservation one of the most important matters to be considered by Funston.

Several schools reopened to-day in addition to those which were re-established yesterday, and the departments of Public Health and police continued their work of restoring the city to normal conditions. The work of the native officers has been quite satisfactory, according to Capt. Bamford, head of the Police Department. Thus far the native officers have escaped the disapproval of their fellow-countrymen except in a few instances where they were made the victims of jeers and taunts. When such instances occurred, the prompt arrest of the offenders has resulted in a display of more respect for the work of the native police by Mexicans generally.

Americans here, who own property in various parts of Mexico, report that from information received from refugees and other sources many plantations west and south of Vera Cruz, which were abandoned by the owners, have been looted.

Richard Harding Davis and Medill McCormick, correspondents, who went through the lines to Mexico City last week and later returned to Puerto Mexico, arrived here last night. Davis carried credentials from the Brazilian Consul here, and McCormick had a letter from the British Consul. These credentials were accepted by Federal officers, but a companion, who attempted to pass the lines as an American, was turned back.

Rear Admiral Fletcher is short one Filipino who had proved himself to be an excellent servant, and the indications are that the Mexican army is strengthened in proportion to the Admiral's loss.

Formal notice of the Filipino's disappearance has been posted, and all outposts are watching for him. He was last seen boarding a train in the direction of Gen. Maass' lines. His ship's clothing had been discarded for flannels and a Panama hat, and he carried a pistol.

The disappearance of the servant has been the cause of some slight vexation, and it is not improbable that he may have carried to the Mexicans some information regarding the American forces.

The chartered steamer Mexico arrived late to-day with a few more Americans, taken out of Tampico and a few from Tuxpam, where the residents are convinced the rebels will soon appear. The refugees, who have been held on the transport Hancock, will be transferred to the Mexico, which will proceed to New Orleans.

Consul Canada has a list of 200 Americans in Mexico City who have signified their intention of remaining there.

With the exception of one family at Alvarado, and four persons at Tuxtepec, all Americans residing south of Vera Cruz are believed to be out. Arrangements have been made for the relief of these people.

FUNSTON DISCOUNTS ALARMS.

Tells Washington Waterworks Can't Be Taken—No Hostile Moves.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Administration circles are well satisfied with the situation at Vera Cruz. Gen. Funston has not only sent reports that satisfy Secretary Garrison as to the condition of affairs under the new Military Government, but has discounted many of the reports in circulation concerning prospective attacks from the Federals.

According to Gen. Funston the Tejar waterworks are not in any danger, and no actual hostile movement of troops has been made by the Federals. On the basis of messages from Gen. Funston, Secretary Garrison to-day issued this bulletin:

"The General says that in case alarming reports are made with respect to possible attempts of Mexican troops to cut off water supply at Vera Cruz it will be safe to say that there is no serious danger of such contingency. There are rumors that such attempts will be made shortly, but it is the opinion of Gen. Funston that these rumors are caused solely by statements circulated by Gen. Maass and Gen. Navarette.

"He states that, so far as he can learn, there is no actual movement of troops that would indicate hostile intentions. He reports the pumping station is well guarded, and will not be taken from us by force and that, if the pipe lines should be severed, he could restore them in a few hours. He says there is nothing in the local situation to cause alarm. He has received no news with respect to Private Parks.

"He says that the last 200 or more sacks of mail, delivered at the Mexican outpost on May 9, are still lying there beside the railroad tracks under the charge of the Mexican outpost."

Reports Private Saunders's Death.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Col. L. W. T. Waller, commanding the marines at Vera Cruz, notified the Navy Department to-day of the death of Andrew M. Saunders, a private of the Second Regiment, who was accidentally killed on Sunday. No details were given, although a press dispatch had said that he was shot by a pistol in the hands of a comrade.

Private Saunders was born May 7, 1888, at Buffalo, N. Y. His next of kin is Mrs. Annie M. Saunders, his mother, who resides in Niagara Falls, N. Y. Saunders enlisted July 20, 1908, at Buffalo, and, after serving a four years' term, re-enlisted.

Vera Cruz Believes Archbishop Mora, Just Arrived There, Was Expelled from Capital.

GOING TO CONSULT POPE

Is Loath to Discuss Political Conditions, but Known to Favor Intervention.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, May 12.—The Most Rev. José Mora, Archbishop of Mexico, arrived here to-day from the capital, accompanied by the Right Rev. Jesus Maria Eschavarria, Bishop of Saltillo. Both are on their way to Rome.

The Archbishop was much exhausted because of his walk across the gap in the railroad tracks in the hot sun this morning, and had apparently suffered from the long trip by train. He had evidently been under great nervous strain, but the specific reason was not disclosed.

When Father Francis P. Joyce, Chaplain of the Fourth Field Artillery, soon after his arrival, called upon the Archbishop at the Swedish Consulate, where he lodged, the Mexican prelate thought he was going to be arrested. Father Joyce was wearing the army uniform, and there was nothing to distinguish him from a regular officer except the collar decoration. Consequently the Archbishop, never having seen a Chaplain in uniform, imagined Gen. Funston was going to take him into custody.

When he learned his mistake, he gave Father Joyce a cordial welcome. Later Father W. H. I. Reaney, Chaplain of the battleship Utah, with Father Joyce, called upon the Archbishop. Both priests placed themselves at the disposal of the prelate, who in turn promised to do everything that was in his power to assist their work here.

Think Huerta Expelled Him.

The Archbishop told Father Reaney that he was bound for Rome to confer about matters of his archdiocese. It is believed in some circles here, however, that the Archbishop, who recently had a sharp tilt with President Huerta, was virtually expelled from the capital by the dictator.

Through Father Reaney THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was able to obtain an interview with the Archbishop, although he was plainly reluctant to answer questions bearing on the political situation, owing to his delicate position.

Persons connected with his party emphasized this point of the delicacy of his position, and intimated that his trip to Rome had not been entirely prearranged.

Huerta "Neither Good Nor Bad."

Regarding conditions in the capital, Archbishop Mora stated that they were quiet when he left there and no disorder was visible. He admitted, however, that some fear had been expressed that the rebels might capture the city, adding that these fears were possibly unfounded and would have to be verified in the light of events.

When asked his opinion of President Huerta the prelate replied:

"So far as the Church is concerned, Huerta is neither good nor bad."

He refused to discuss the report that he was connected with the resignation of Señor Portillo y Rojas, recently Minister of Foreign Relations.

The Archbishop would not criticise any of the political factions, nor express any decided opinion regarding them, except to indicate that the northern rebels were against the Church. On this point he remarked:

"The reports to the effect that the sacred vessels in many churches are being stolen by the rebels, and that priests have been tortured and held for ransom are fully confirmed so far as the northern part of the country is concerned, but the rebels in the south generally respect the clergy and the sacred buildings, with the vessels therein. There is some fear in Mexico City concerning what may happen should the northern rebels take the place, but this has no bearing on my departure at this time, because the trip was planned long ago.

"I believe that the reports that some priests are involved in the desecration of the churches for the purpose of personal gain are untrue, but if there are any isolated instances, these persons will be attended to as unfit to remain as members of the Church, such as was the case in the Philippines, where a priest was practically leading the rebellion as the head of a secret organization, having become the instrument of unscrupulous persons.

"The reported plan of the northern rebels to expel from the country all the priests of foreign birth is absolutely at variance with the precepts of religion, for if the Church is Catholic, it is universal, and there is no nationality within it."

When the correspondent called the attention of Archbishop Mora to the fact that some Protestant missionaries had expressed the fear that the Mexicans who left the Catholic Church and joined other denominations would be persecuted under cover of the present disorganized conditions in this country, he answered:

"I do not believe for a moment that any such persecution will take place. All denominations have equal liberty in Mexico. Certainly the Catholic Church will not countenance any such action, either tacitly or otherwise."

Church's Possible Mission.

It was pointed out to the prelate that the Church in Mexico might do much to make the Mexicans understand the necessity of good government, such as the United States wished to see established here. To this the Archbishop agreed heartily. He did not state what position the Church would take in this matter, but left the impression that this would be one of the questions he would take up after he arrived in Rome.

Archbishop Mora received a visit late in the afternoon from Gen. Funston. He expressed regret at his inability to pay his respects to Rear Admiral Badger, owing to his precarious state of health.

The Archbishop and his party expect to sail for Rome soon, but the date of their departure is not yet set.

Said to Favor Intervention.

By The Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, May 12.—Whatever may be the mission of the Archbishop of Mexico, who arrived to-day from the capital, its exact nature has not been revealed to any one here, beyond the statement that the prelate is bound for Rome, and that his trip concerns the perturbed conditions in the republic.

The Archbishop's efforts in the capital for months to induce Huerta to retire from the Presidency are well known, and, according to trustworthy reports, he has said more than once that he favored intervention, as he was convinced that that was the only means to restore and maintain peace in Mexico.

The alleged determination of Villa to deal severely with the dignitaries of the Church, and the disfavor with which rebels regard those who wear the robes of the Church, are said to have for a basis the financial assistance which the Church has given to Huerta. Early in Huerta's campaigns against the rebels, the Church contributed 7,000,000 pesos, and the amount is said now to have reached 20,000,000 pesos. The churchmen are known to have protested against some of the assessments, but were virtually forced to pay.

The Archbishop let it be known here that he had grave fears regarding the fate of thousands of non-combatants in the capital, and he expressed his belief that should the Zapata forces enter the city there would be a riot of looting, especially of the cathedral and the churches, which are popularly supposed to be filled with treasure.

Frederick Adams, confidential man of Lord Cowdray, accompanied the party, but his interest, he insisted, was merely to look after the churchmen in his capacity as a British subject.

Frightened as They Visit Funston.

Archbishop Mora, whose appearance was more that of a Spaniard than of a Mexican, was a picturesque figure as he alighted from the train. He wore a linen duster and cape cut along the lines of the clerical garb.

Chaplain John F. Chenoweth of the Fourth United States Infantry introduced himself, and told the prelates that he had been instructed by Gen. Funston to extend whatever courtesies he was able. They were too nervous to do more than murmur their thanks.

Their uneasiness increased when the chaplain expressed a desire to take them to Gen. Funston to present them, but after a hasty exchange of remarks and an apparent inclination to hold back, they accompanied the chaplain to the General's headquarters.

Gen. Funston told them that he wished to extend to them all possible courtesies while they remained here, and asked permission to call. Then they were reassured.

Urges Italians to Leave Mexico.

ROME, May 12.—The Italian Government has instructed its Consul in Mexico City to provide for the return of such Italian residents as wish to leave the country, and to pay the expenses of those without funds. The Government especially urges the departure of those at Monterey.

SILLIMAN FREED, BUT CHARGES STAND

ENVOYS ARE NOTIFIED

Consul's Papers to be Turned Over to Brazilian Minister—Probably on Way to Capital.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 12.—The Mexican Government's order for the release of American Vice Consul John R. Silliman includes the turning over of the archives and other papers of the Saltillo Consulate, which were seized by Gen. Maass, to the Brazilian Legation.

The latter probably left Saltillo to-day for Mexico City.

MEXICO CITY, May 12.—In announcing by cable to the South American envoys the order for the release of Vice Consul J. R. Silliman, R. A. Esteva Ruiz, Mexican Acting Foreign Minister, made it clear that the Huerta Government had not withdrawn the charges of aiding the rebels which had been preferred against the American representative. The message said:

"Referring to the telegram of your Excellencies in regard to Mr. Silliman, Consul at Saltillo, I have the honor to inform you that, notwithstanding the acts of said Consul against Federal forces, it has already been ordered that he be sent to Mexico City, under proper guard, and placed at the disposition of the Brazilian Minister in accordance with the desire expressed by him in order to arrange for the return of said Silliman to the United States.

"The Mexican Foreign Office hopes that your Excellencies may see in this action of the Government a further proof of its fulfilling its international obligations and of its showing to the friendly nations the consideration which they merit. I beg to reiterate to your Excellencies the assurances of my high consideration.

"R. A. ESTEVA RUIZ."

Guards Drew Hands Across Throats, Threatening American Captives.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From a Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, May 12.—Several refugees arrived to-day from Saltillo, via Mexico City. Sixteen of them had been in jail. When they left Saltillo, they said, John R. Silliman, the American Consul, was still a prisoner.

F. S. Van Valkenbergh, an American, who was formerly train dispatcher at Saltillo, one of those who was jailed, said:

"When we were first imprisoned by the Federals they threw us into filthy underground cells which were used for the condemned. The guards said to us, 'You will be killed soon,' and drew their fingers across their throats significantly.

"In a cell near us was a Mexican Colonel, charged with treason. He was executed in his cell, the soldiers firing seven or eight bullets into his body after killing him. Then the guards said to us, 'It's your turn next.'

"They have it in for Silliman, but we don't know what they have done to him."

VERA CRUZ, May 12.—American refugees who arrived to-day from Saltillo say that the Vice Consul, John R. Silliman, was still in prison there when they left the city. Mrs. Silliman and other women were being cared for by the British Vice Consul. The latter has not been permitted to visit the Americans who are under arrest.

These refugees, who were prisoners in the hands of the Federals for a time, said that after the first few days, when they were continually threatened with execution, they were treated with consideration. Mr. Silliman, they added, was confined in a good room in the prison facing the plaza.

LIKENS HUERTA TO BOMBA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, May 13.—Medill McCormick cables the following dispatch from Vera Cruz to The Times relative to his recent trip to Mexico City:

"I felt that the trip was necessary because I had learned that your correspondent in Mexico City had been prevented by the censor from sending dispatches covering the situation.

"Together with Richard Harding Davis and Frederick Palmer, the well-known war correspondents, I was arrested as a spy and searched. Palmer was sent back. Davis and I were arrested again on our arrival in Mexico City, both of us being American citizens. With the assistance of your correspondent we were released on giving our word to leave the city within twenty-four hours.

"Mexico City is like Naples under King Bomba. Spies are everywhere, and summary arrests of Americans and Mexicans are frequent. Some British subjects have been unwarrantably arrested, but promptly released.

"I saw important foreign residents of several nationalities, who talked frankly to me. All expect the fall of Huerta through local revolution or defeat by Villa, unless he is assassinated or the Americans intervene.

"Trade is at a standstill, and foreigners are steadily leaving the capital. No freight is moving on the railway, and passenger trains are few because of lack of fuel oil through the occupation of Vera Cruz and the siege of Tampico. The Mexican Railway has for operating purposes been taken out of the hands of the representatives of the British owners.

Americans are very much dissatisfied by Secretary Bryan's intrusting the care of American interests to the Brazilian instead of to the British Minister. Sir Lionel Carden has been instrumental in helping many, and his continued moral support of the Brazilian Minister has been invaluable."

CALDERON IN HAVANA.

Would Not Take Mexican Presidency from Us, He Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, May 12.—Fernando Iglesias Calderon, the Mexican Liberal leader whom the American officers recently released from San Juan de Ulloa prison, arrived to-day from Vera Cruz.

He said he had heard that the United States regarded him favorably as Huerta's successor if the latter was forced to resign, but said he would not accept the Government of his country from the hands of foreigners.

He said he had come to Havana because he could not go to Mexico City on account of Huerta's enmity, and did not care to stay in Vera Cruz under a foreign flag. He asserted that the success of the revolution was Mexico's only hope.

FLOWING OIL THREATENS TAMPICO

ant with the situation. They recently landed at Galveston, where a mass meeting was held by the refugees and resolutions adopted. All are identified in one way or another with the Tampico oil fields.

Secretary Garrison said to-night that Col. Lucas and those for whom he spoke want the United States Government to send several gunboats up the Panuco River, far beyond the City of Tampico, to the very heart of the Panuco and the Topila oil fields.

Mr. Garrison said he told the members of the committee that while he was willing to receive the maps, statistics and other facts presented by them to-day, he had informed them that the sending of gunboats up the river was outside his jurisdiction, and that such a watter would have to be taken up with Secretary Bryan and Secretary Daniels. The members of the committee had seen Secretaries Bryan and Daniels several days ago.

According to statements made by members of the committee, there is also need of protection of the oil wells in the other large fields. Tuxpam and Tampico are the centres of the Mexican oil industry. There are five principal fields, the Juan Casiano, the Topila, the Panuco, the Potrero and the Tuxpam. It is said that the largest oil well in any of these fields is now the Dutch Shell well, in the Panuco field. This is a Dutch company's well in which the Rothschilds are interested. Its tested flow at the start was 137,000 barrels daily. This has been shut down to a minimum flow of 15,000 barrels daily. The Mexican Oil Company, the Southern Pacific, East Coast and Mexican Gulf wells are in the Panuco and Topila districts.

The Juan Casiano field is about 50 miles south of Tampico and the Casiano well in this district, formerly the largest well in Mexico, has a maximum flow of about 100,000 barrels daily, which was shut down to a minimum of 30,000 daily. This field is controlled by the Doheny interests. The oil is brought out of the field in pipes to Tampico.

The interests of the Pearsons are in the Potrero field, about 75 miles from Tampico, which has a pipe line to the Gulf Coast, and two pipe lines to Tampico, where the Pearson interests are building a large refinery that was scheduled to begin operations in June. The largest well of the Pearsons in the Potrero field is represented as having a maximum flow of about 110,000 barrels daily. The other principal field is near Tuxpam, where the Pen-Mex interests are centred.

IT is a modern doctor who speaks. Only ten years ago he would have told you to gargle with some nauseous mixture which would have hastened your relief but little.

Now he prescribes Formamint tablets and tells you to allow one to dissolve in the mouth every hour or two. Instead of a disagreeable liquid you have a delicious tablet.

The doctor has explained how Formamint tablets not only can save you the pain and danger of a sore throat, but may safeguard you also from several serious systemic diseases—diphtheria, scarlet fever, influenza, rheumatism, which are alike caused by germ invasion.

Many deadly disease germs lodge for a while in the throat before attacking the body. The saliva, impregnated with Formamint, becomes itself antiseptic, and kills such germs as they are gathered for the onslaught.

This is why the doctor emphasizes the difference between Formamint and other throat lozenges; none other has the protective power of Formamint. At all druggists. 50 tablets for 50 cents.

"I have no hesitation in stating that in Formamint we have a remedy that is invaluable in keeping the mouth and air passages free from germ infection."

PRESIDENT CORDIAL TO O'SHAUGHNESSY

THANKED FOR HIS SERVICES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, former Chargé d'Affaires of the United States in Mexico City, visited the White House to-night and had what was described afterward as a pleasant hour's conversation with President Wilson. It was the first meeting between the President and Mr. O'Shaughnessy since the latter's arrival here, under orders from Secretary Bryan, last Thursday.

Nothing occurred during the interview, it was said, after Mr. O'Shaughnessy left the White House, to indicate that the President was in any way displeased over the conduct of American affairs in Mexico by Mr. O'Shaughnessy or his reported intimacy with President Huerta. Members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the House Committee on Foreign Relations had obtained the impression from a conference they had with President Wilson just prior to the taking of Vera Cruz by the American forces that the President felt that Mr. O'Shaughnessy's relations with President Huerta were entirely too cordial. They also carried away the idea that Mr. O'Shaughnessy would have been recalled if the appointment of a successor could have been made without giving him letters of credence to the Huerta Government, which would have been equivalent to American recognition of that Government.

Nothing said or done by the President while Mr. O'Shaughnessy was with him to-night indicated that the Chargé d'Affaires had incurred the Presidential displeasure. On the contrary, President Wilson thanked Mr. O'Shaughnessy for the able manner in which he had cared for the interests of the United States in Mexico and expressed satisfaction with the skill and ability he had shown.

A large part of the conversation is understood to have been conducted by the President, although he questioned Mr. O'Shaughnessy as to the character and personality of Huerta and other prominent officers of the Huerta Administration, and desired to know how they conducted their Government.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy is understood to hold the opinion that Huerta has no intention of giving up office and power until he is forced to do so. But it is Mr. O'Shaughnessy's belief that the Huerta Government cannot be maintained much longer, and that the dictator will soon be removed from the post he has occupied.

He told the President that he did not believe the charge that Huerta had planned the Tampico incident to bring about trouble with the United States, and said that the dictator had his first news of the affair from him.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy is credited also with the belief that the Mexican factions can be united through the efforts of the United States. This view, it is said, fits in with the purpose of the Wilson Administration to use its influence, as well as to give its assistance to the Government that may succeed that of Huerta, restoring normal conditions in the perturbed country.

Nothing was said by the President in to-night's interview to indicate any purpose on his part to change Mr. O'Shaughnessy's present official status. He will remain on the rolls of the Diplomatic Service with the rank and pay of Secretary of Embassy. Whether he will be assigned to another post has not been made known.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy's father died recently in New York, and it is his intention for a while to devote himself to the care of the estate. He denied the report that he contemplated running for Congress.

FEDERALS QUIT A PORT.

Troops from West Coast Called to the Capital.

ON BOARD U. S. S. CALIFORNIA, MAZATLAN, Mexico, May 11, (by Wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 12.)—Mexican Federal troops defending San Blas, a seaport half way between Mazatlan and Manzanillo, have evacuated the town. It is understood they were ordered by Provisional President Huerta to proceed to Mexico City to strengthen the force there. It is believed troops at other points on the west coast will be ordered to the capital.

Americans in the Yaqui Valley, reassured by the cordial attitude of the Constitutionalists, have decided to remain on their ranches. Gen. Obregon is said to have guaranteed protection.

Walter Neal, an American wounded by Federals recently near El Favor mine, is now safe with his family aboard the cruiser Maryland at Manzanillo, according to a wireless message received to-day from that vessel. Neal confirmed the report of an attack on the mine on April 26, and the killing of C. B. Hoadley, an American, and of G. E. Williams, an Englishman. Desultory fighting continues at Mazatlan.

The gunboat Guerrero, which left Mazatlan on May 7, carrying city officials and other refugees, touched yesterday at Manzanillo and discharged several passengers.

MEXICAN BORDER DISTURBED.

Rebels Have Not Caught Filibusters Who Threaten Americans.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, May 12.—Conditions along the Mexican border in Chihuahua are becoming so disturbed that United States cavalry is to be sent from Fort Bliss to patrol the border opposite the camps of the Federal filibusters. The Quevedo brothers, Silvestre and Rodrigo, repeated to-day their demand that the ransom of $8,000 be paid at once by American ranchmen or every windmill in the entire district would be wrecked and $500,000 worth of cattle be left to die of thirst.

For every Mexican killed by the rebels sent from Juarez at the request of the American ranch owners, they said, an American would pay with his life. This has alarmed the owners of the Corralitos Cattle Company, the Islamos Land and Cattle Company, and the San Pedro Cattle Company, and all American employes of these companies have been ordered to leave Mexico at once.

Although rebel forces have been sent out of Juarez, they have accomplished nothing in their efforts to capture the roving bands of filibusters who have been equipped by the Huerta Government to harass the rebels and Americans. The Northwestern Railroad running south from Juarez has been out of commission since Saturday, and it is feared that the filibusters have cut the line again.

Reports from Chihuahua say that Doniacno Mapula, a leading merchant of Chihuahua City, has been executed by the rebel Government for alleged Federal sympathy. Mapula is said to have taken no part in the revolution, but had been trying to make a living from his little ranch near the town since his store was looted of everything he owned. He had no trial, it is said, and was shot by a firing squad.

Saltillo continues to wait on Tampico, according to reports from the front. Villa is in position to strike at any time he is sure that Tampico has been taken. Until that time he will execute no aggressive movement for fear of a combination of forces from the two towns. He has promoted Raul Madero, the youngest brother of Francisco Madero, to be a Brigadier General, and he will have command of the famous Zaragosa bridage in place of Gen. Benavides, who has been relieved of his command and made commander of the Torreon garrison.

No reports had been received at the Torreon headquarters of the Constitutionalists to-day about the fall of Tampico.

Zapata will not enter Mexico City until the capital shall have been occupied by Gen. Villa's troops, and Gen. Carranza shall have established himself at Chapultepec, according to a statement to-day by Roberto V. Pesqueira, confidential agent of Gen. Carranza here.

Mr. Pesqueira said that while no definite order had been issued by Gen. Carranza forbidding Zapata to enter Mexico City, there was an understanding with the Southern leader that he should not march through the streets of the capital before the arrival of his chief.

When informed that anxiety had been expressed regarding reports that Zapata would seize the capital and turn it over to his men to loot, Mr. Pesqueira said that many messages had passed between Gen. Carranza, Gen. Villa, and Gen. Zapata, and that a thorough understanding had been reached between them. He said Gen. Zapata had acknowledged Carranza as his chief, and had pledged his fealty to the Constitutionalist leader.

TORREON, Mexico, May 12.—Gen. Carranza, it is understood here, will return to-morrow from Durango, where he has been organizing the State Civil Government, and will remain here until Saltillo has been taken by the Constitutionalist troops.

George C. Carothers, United States Consul at Torreon and special representative of the United States Department of State, arrived here to-day with his family. Mr. Carothers, it said, will accompany the Constitutionalist troops to Saltillo.

TRANSPORTS BEING LOADED.

At the Shewan Dock, Staten Island, where the newly acquired transports, City of Macon and City of Memphis, are being fitted for sea, and at the Robbins Dock, Brooklyn, where the Hawaiian liner Minnesotan, is being fitting out for carrying army supplies and live stock, several hundred men were at work yesterday. About the harbor moved three of the large Quartermaster barges transporting from the harbor arsenal and from piers where supplies have been gathered, the ammunition and equipment which are to be the cargo of the vessels. According to present orders all this cargo is destined for Galveston.

"We are not taking unusual steps," an army officer explained, "we are simply taking advantage of the sailing of the transports to save freight."

The Savannah liners City of Memphis and the City of Macon are to be used as troop ships. The principal work being done on them at present is rearranging the passenger accommodations so that many bunks can be put up. While the carpenters are working in cabins and saloon on both vessels, a force of machinists is working between decks, going over the engines and making needed changes and repairs.

The City of Macon sails for Galveston at 6 A. M. to-day. She will take out supplies and a number of recruits who go down to join various commands now at Galveston. She will be in charge of Quartermaster Sergt. A. J. Roose. One hundred and twenty-five machinists, under a foreman, will go on her. They will continue the work of refitting while the vessel is going down the coast. The City of Memphis will get away by Thursday, the Minnestotan will go on Friday, and the Panaman, another Hawaiian liner and Government freighter, will go on Saturday.

OROZCO IN FLIGHT.

Sought by Secret Service Men in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 12.—Pascual Orozco, the Mexican Federal volunteer leader who escaped from Ojinaga when Villa drove the Huertista army into the United States, was a fugitive to-day from Los Angeles, where Secret Service men were in pursuit of him.

Orozco, it was learned, had been in this city for some time in hiding. He attempted to recruit a band of Federal sympathizers, and when American Government agents sought to arrest him he fled southward on Sunday night with a few followers toward the international line.

Orozco's family has been in Los Angeles since the Madero revolution, and the General joined them after the Ojinaga battle.

BRITISH CRUISER COMING.

Bristol Ordered to Proceed at Once to Tampico.

LONDON, May 12.—The British cruiser Bristol, now stationed at Portsmouth, was ordered to proceed to Tampico as quickly as possible.

The Bristol is a light cruiser of 4,800 tons. Her engines develop an indicated horse power of 20,000. She carries two 6-inch guns, ten 4-inch guns, and four 3-pounder guns. She carries a complement of 376 men. On her trials her speed was 23.8 knots.

VERA CRUZ SAILOR BURIED.

The funeral of John F. Schumacher, one of the seventeen Vera Cruz dead, took place yesterday afternoon from the home of his mother, 74 Suydam Street, Williamsburg.

So great was the throng in front of the dwelling that a detail of police was called from the Hamburg Avenue Station. Only immediate friends of the family and of the dead marine were permitted to enter the house. Besides details of sailors and soldiers, a large contingent of Spanish War Veterans and a squad of Coast Artillery, Camps George H. Tilly, Russell, Hubbell, and Schley, acted as an escort.

The funeral procession passed through Evergreen Avenue to Greene Avenue, to Bushwick Avenue, and on to St. John's Cemetery. There were two firing squads at the grave.

LAST HONORS FOR THE DEAD.

Home Cities Pay Tribute to Sailors and Marines—Montana Delayed.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—The bodies of George McKenzie Poinsett and Charles Allen Smith, Philadelphia sailors killed in action at Vera Cruz, rested to-day within the homes of their families. As a tribute to both men, there lay on the coffin of Seaman Smith a beautiful wreath sent by the President of the United States. Both homes were closed to all except relatives and near friends. Later in the day private funeral services were held over both bodies.

At sunrise to-morrow the bodies of the two young seamen will be conveyed under military escort to Independence Hall, where Philadelphia's tribute to the dead will be paid. The bodies will lie in state until the afternoon, when a military funeral will be held. All the bluejackets and marines at the navy yard, the National Guard regiments in Philadelphia, local civic bodies, the Mayor and Councils will participate.

PITTSBURGH, May 12.—With the arrival here early to-day of the body of Francis P. De Lowry, Pittsburgh began to do honor to its son who died in the fighting at Vera Cduz. To-morrow morning, which will be a public holiday by proclamation of Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong, the public funeral will be held in St. Paul's Cathedral.

BOSTON, May 12.—The cruiser Montana, bearing the bodies of three New England men who fell at Vera Cruz, is expected to reach here to-morrow morning. She was proceeding slowly through rain and fog to-night. Her failure to arrive to-day disappointed crowds of people who waited on the waterfront for hours in a drizzle.

The bodies of Daniel A. Haggerty of Cambridge, Corporal of Marine Corps; Rufus E. Percy of Concord, N. H., a private of the corps, and Walter L. Watson of Eastham, a naval seaman, will be landed with simple ceremonies at the navy yard as soon as the cruiser docks.

SOLACE DUE HERE TO-DAY.

Hospital Ship Brings Two Bodies and 103 Patients.

The United States Hospital Ship Solace is expected to arrive here this afternoon with the men who were wounded when Vera Cruz was occupied and the sick from the fleet. The Solace sailed from Vera Cruz on May 5 with orders to land her patients and to return to Mexican waters as soon as possible. Beside the wounded she is bringing to port the bodies of Clarence Rex Haashbarber, apprentice seaman of Waverly, N. Y., and Henry Pulliam, fireman, of Pulaski, Va., both members of the crew of the Utah. They died on board the hospital ship just before she left Vera Cruz, and the news of their deaths was wirelessed to the flagship as the Solace got under way.

The Solace brings 103 patients. Of this number 62 are to be landed here. This number includes 31 who were wounded in the taking of Vera Cruz.

HERE AFTER MANY PERILS.

Rancher Refugee Left Valuable Property When He Fled with Family

The steamship Concho arrived late yesterday from Galveston with a number of refugees from Mexico, including J. Boyd, owner of an ostrich farm at Aguas Calientes, who, it is reported, abandoned property valued at $250,000. Mr. Boyd, who was accompanied by his wife and two-year-old daughter, endured many hardships. Much of his story was told when he reached Galveston. Mr. Boyd and his wife had to walk eighteen days before they reached a place of safety. Once he was fired at from ambush and wounded in the leg, and another time he was seized by bandits and beaten until he was insensible.

Mr. Boyd was averse to further publicity, but said that after he had rested for a few days with relatives on Long Island he might tell in detail of the experiences of his wife and himself. Friends of Mr. Boyd said that he had to escape as best he could, leaving everything behind.

Chief Steward Ingalls of the Concho said there were hundreds of refugees in Galveston who appeared to be making the best of things and were waiting for a chance to return to their homes in Mexico.

WAS HELD UP FOR $200,000.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, May 12.—A. B. Emery and his wife of New York are among the refugees who were brought here by the Ward Line steamship Esperanza. Mr. Emery was the manager for A. George & Co., London, a corporation having $2,000,000 invested in Mexican mining properties near Zacatecas. Mr. Emery was held for a time as a hostage for the payment of $200,000 to the Mexican Government. This sum was to be a "war loan." By a subterfuge finally Mr. Emery made his escape.

"About 5 o'clock on the afternoon of April 21, I was told that mobs were forming in the streets of Guadaloupe and Zacatecas," said Mr. Emery, "and also that they intended marching out and attacking our property. There were some forty Americans on the place, and a number of Germans and Britishers.

"Later we learned that the mob from Guadaloupe was on its way out to the mine. On the morning of April 22 a young Mexican employed about the office came to me and said that the jefe politico and other prominent officials wanted to see me at the office. Upon my arrival at the office I saw that the Mexican officials, State and military, had taken possession of the place. I was told that the Government needed $200,000 to care for the army. That was about 10 o'clock in the morning, so in order to gain time enough to get the Americans and other foreigners to safety, I commenced to parley with them.

"I told the jefe politico and the Federal army officers that our company was not rich, and in view of the fact that we had just started operations and had put out more than $2,000,000 they should show us some consideration. This worked for a while, but when I finished I was made to understand that unless the money was forthcoming no uncertain measures would be adopted.

"By leading them to think that I would use my best efforts to get the money, I managed to obtain delay. The last train out was due to leave in two hours, and I got my men on board. There was no chance for me to leave, however, as they kept me under close surveillance.

"Finally I sent the Governor a flattering note, telling him that the question of money was of grave importance, and that in order to lay the matter properly before my people it would be necessary for me to make a trip to Mexico City. I asked him to grant me the requisite pass and he did. This was on April 26. The Governor consented to let me leave, and the operation of mines and other property was placed entirely in the hands of Mexicans."

A COLOMBIAN VIEW.

Bogota Paper Complains Bitterly Against Mexican Invasion.

A South American view of the American seizure of Vera Cruz that illustrates the extreme of anti-American sentiment in the Latin republics is contained in an editorial article in El Nuevo Tiempo of Bogota, Colombia. It represents President Wilson as having declared war on a weakened Mexico, and suggests that Japan may be the "avenger" of the "defenseless peoples of America." The article says:

"The order that the Government of the United States has just given that its ships blockade the ports of the Mexican Republic, will produce an echo in the other countries of Latin America.

"New anxiety will arise in the souls of our people as to the imperialistic dangers that are seen in the United States. New distrust will make us look askance at the powerful republic of the north in whose attitude toward Mexico, one sees the prelude of future conquests and future insults.

"The history of the Anglo-American democracy is indeed no guarantee for the other countries of this continent. Its methods of acquiring Texas, the causes which brought on the war from which New Mexico emerged beaten and dismembered, the injustice of the attack by which it took Cuba and Porto Rico from Spain, above all, the unheard-of offense in Panama, in which it did not respect its own word, solemly given in a public treaty—all these things have served to disseminate deep feelings of fear and even aversion toward a nation which Monroe, at a historic moment, made the guide of the liberty of this hemisphere. * * *

"The incident of the salute to the American flag has been a mere pretext in the war President Wilson has just declared on Mexico. The real and true cause of that declaration has been the enmity of Wilson toward Huerta, whom he accuses of having set up his Government by means of a military coup.

"But why has the same Wilson not hesitated to recognize the order of things that grew out of the military coup at Lima?

"On a memorable occasion President Wilson said that he 'desired that the relations of the United States and the rest of America should be like the bonds of a family, consecrated to constitutional liberty,' and that 'the United States would never undertake to add a foot of territory by conquest.'

"Having declared war on one of those peoples of America, and beginning a movement that will have to end in the dismemberment of that people, how will President Wilson convince Latin America by his expressions of fraternity and justice?

"The United States, a strong, big, and rich country, departing from the principles of justice, to-day launches its dreadnoughts and armies against an impoverished people, bleeding from a three years' war started by themselves. Will not the manly attitude of Huerta in not yielding to the unjust demand of the White House be backed by a secret treaty?

Sixteen Zapatistas Killed.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Admiral Howard, commanding the American fleet off the west coast of Mexico, to-day reported a battle between Mexican Federals and Zapata revolutionists, twenty miles from Acapulco. Admiral Howard said that sixteen Zapatistas were killed.

HUERTA WILL STAY, MISSIONARY SAYS

Dictator Will Not Run or Back Down, Is the View of Dr. Butler.

LITTLE HOPE OF PEACE

Methodist, Forty Years in Mexico, Thinks the Administration Should Have Followed Hayes Precedent.

The Rev. Dr. John W. Butler, Superintendent of Missions in Mexico of the Methodist Episcopal Church and a resident of Mexico City for forty years, yesterday discussed the situation in Mexico City and the general Mexican question. He arrived in New York on Monday afternoon from New Orleans, having been a passenger on the refugee train which left the capital for Puerto Mexico on the night of April 28. He had been ordered by the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions to change his headquarters to Vera Cruz, but to proceed there from Puerto Mexico by land was not possible, and so he went to New Orleans on the Monterey with 636 other Americans.

Dr. Butler asserted yesterday with emphasis that Huerta was not a drunkard, and that he believed he would not back down or run, but would fight to the last. While the missionary hopes for peace, he believes the only chance for it lies in the Niagara Conference, and that, he fears, is slight.

Missionary Describes Conditions.

Dr. Butler in a talk at the Hotel Raymond yesterday gave an account of conditions in Mexico City which differed from many of the early reports that came from there. He was awakened early one morning by a crowd of ten men going about smashing the windows of the American houses in his block; but the house in which he lived being a religious edifice, was not molested. The refugees on his train, he said were not molested or even insulted on the way to Puerto Mexico. While he decided it was wiser to keep close to his quarters in the five days that succeeded the seizure of Vera Cruz, owing to the misleading reports printed by the newspapers, for two days before he left he went about his business as usual, and saw nothing that would indicate that Americans were in danger.

"The news of the Vera Cruz episode reached us like a storm out of a clear sky," said Dr. Butler. "We had been told repeatedly by the Embassy and Consulate that we should have at least three or four days' notice in case anything happened to break relations between the two countries. Most of the missionaries were willing to stay, trusting to God and their own common sense as long as the trouble was only between Mexicans; but in case of international troubles, they felt it safer to be out of the way.

"Yes, I heard rumors that Americans had been killed by Federals, but none of these reports was authenticated. The reports I heard of attacks on American women came from the fields of Zapata and Villa. All our missionaries, about thirty, reached Mexico City safely, and all got away safely except Miss Laura Temple, of Pennsylvania, Principal of the Sarah L. Keen school, who joined the Mexican Red Cross.

"While there was fear in Mexico City that Zapata would attack the place, I do not think he will dare to do this before the rebels come from the north. Zapata has no artillery.

Has Little Hope of Peace.

"My personal hope in respect to the Niagara Conference is slight; and yet that is the only chance I see for peace. I believe Washington could have avoided the whole trouble at the start by pursuing the same course followed by President Hayes when Porfirio Diaz overthrew Lerdo, in 1876, two years after I first went to Mexico. Hayes put himself on the same ethical grounds where Wilson has planted himself, but he pursued the matter differently. He said to Diaz, 'You have overthrown the constitutional authority by force. We cannot recognize you, but you are in the saddle, and we will see what you can do.' He left Minister John W. Foster in Mexico, and did nothing to check Diaz in getting loans. But he kept Diaz waiting for fifteen months before he recognized him. And in the Diaz régime were thirty years of peace and prosperity.

"I know that President Wilson believes Huerta was guilty of the death of Madero. But that has never been actually proved. Of course, President Wilson would fall back on the statement that Huerta was more or less responsible. But I was told by a responsible foreigner who knew the circumstances that Huerta did not know of the death of Madero until thirty minutes after it happened. The correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES was on the spot within thirty minutes after the occurrence, and the consensus of evidence he got was that Madero made an attempt to get out of the automobile in which he was and was shot under the 'ley fuga.'

"It is not true that Huerta is drunk all the time. I do not say he is a man of temperate habits. But a public man, a foreigner, who has seen him every day for a year, in audiences, at receptions and banquets, assured me he had never seen him under the influence of liquor. I do not say he is a teetotaler, but the report that he is an abandoned drunkard is false."

GUARD AT PEACE STRENGTH.

Col. Walton Answers Criticism That It Is Not Prepared for Call.

Col. R. Foster Walton, division Adjutant General of the National Guard, was inclined to take exception yesterday to the published remarks of an officer of the militia that the Guard was not ready for war. He thought this officer confused war strength and peace strength. The militia, of course, is not recruited up to war strength. It is at peace strength, that is, ready for the call, and if it is to be recruited to war strength the new recruits will be equiped without delay by State and Federal Government.

As to the charge that it could not be supplied with shoes unless something was done at once, Col. Walton said that he could buy 300,000 pairs of shoes at any time. As to the charge that there were not enough shelter tents, Col. Walton said the militia had enough tents for present strength. The same is true of olive drab uniforms. When the call comes the necessary equipment will be supplied by the Government.

"Take shoes," said an officer, "the company commanders do not like to ask for shoes and other small articles. When they are supplied they are easily mislaid or lost. So orders are withheld. This accounts for the apparent lack of shoes."

ANTI-TRUST BILLS ALONE TO BE PASSED

and to fix that responsibility on the White House, members of the committee asked the President to set forth his position in a public statement. Instead, the President wrote a letter to Chairman Carter Glass of the House committee, who also opposes Government aid. That letter seemed to anger the members of the sub-committee and the bill was promptly introduced at both ends of the Capitol—by Representative Bulkely of Ohio in the House, and Senator Hollis of New Hampshire.

The action of the Congressmen in making the bill public without the President's approval promises a serious division within the party, though the apparent certainty that the bill is dead for this session may reduce the opportunities for an outburst.

Oppose Warburg and Wheeler.

To-night, in an effort to induce the President to smooth over the difficulty, Chairman Owen of the Senate Committee, with Mr. Hollis, called at the White House. It is understood that the Senators also wished to register their objections to the appointment of Paul M. Warburg of New York and Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago to places on the Federal Reserve Board. They are said to have told the President that both men were out of sympathy with the purposes of the new banking system, and that neither could be confirmed.

The Sub-Committee on Rural Credits is composed of twelve members, nine on the part of the House, with Representative R. J. Bulkely of Cleveland as Chairman, and three on the part of the Senate, with Senator Hollis of New Hampshire as Chairman. The joint committee stood 10 to 2 in favor of Government aid to agriculture. The President was informed that a careful poll of both Senate and House showed that no farm credit bill that did not include the principle of Government aid could pass Congress.

The three Senators on the sub-committee, Senators Hollis and Lea of Tennessee, Democrats, and Senator Crawford of South Dakota, Republican, were unanimous for Government aid. Headed by Chairman Bulkely, the six Democratic members representing the House, together with Representative Frank Woods of Iowa, Chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee, indorsed Government aid. The two members opposing it were both Republicans—Representatives Platt of New York and Hayes of California.

Armed with assurances of strong support from the membership of the House and with this overwhelming sentiment on the part of the committee, Representative Bulkely was delegated to discuss the situation with the President. To-day at a final conference the President refused even to withhold his opposition. His attitude was such that the members of the joint committee regarded it as a threat to veto the bill should Congress enact it with Government aid to agriculture included.

The President, it is understood, said he had consulted with Secretary of Agriculture Houston and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, both of whom opposed Government aid. The President, however, was urged to withhold his opposition until the views of those who had worked on the preparation of the bill and who favored Government aid could be presented. He indicated that this would be of no avail, that his mind was fixed. The members of the joint committee accordingly went ahead with plans to fight out the issue created with the White House. To avoid this fight the President it is believed tonight consented to the complete ditching of farm credit legislation so far as this session is concerned.

Provisions of the Bill.

The bill provides for the creation of twelve Federal land banks with a minimum capital of $500,000 each, one to each Federal reserve district, the districts to be located and the land bank cities selected by the Federal Reserve Board. In addition to the land banks it provides for the organization of national farm loan associations under the direction of the Federal Reserve Board in the various land bank districts, all to be under the supervision of a land bank Commissioner appointed by the Federal Reserve Board.

The business of the banks and loan associations is to be confined strictly to the selling and lending of money on first farm mortgages and the handling of farm land bonds. The banks cannot buy or sell exchanges, discount paper, receive deposits, or engage in any similar transactions. The Federal land banks are jointly held liable for all land mortgages.

Two classes of stock are provided—Class A, subscriptions to the land banks to be held by any individual, firm or corporation or by the Government of any State or by the United States; Class B, stock in the national farm loan associations, formed by any number of persons not less than five and subscripers to stock in shares not to exceed $25 each.

It is required that all farm loan associations must subscribe 10 per cent. of their stock to the Farm Land Bank in their districts. In the organization of the farm land banks it is provided that the books shall be opened to stock subscription for 90 days. Whatever unsubscribed stock remains the Secretary of the Treasury must subscribe for out of any funds not otherwise appropriated. The section of the bill so strenuously objected to by the President provides that upon the recommendation of the Federal Reserve Board the Secretary of the Treasury must purchase each year from the land banks farm loan bonds to an amount not to exceed $50,000,000, to hold them until maturity.

Dividends on stock in the land banks is limited to 5 per cent. Borrowing is confined to stockholders in the farm loan associations, who are permitted to borrow twenty times the amount held in stock. Restrictions are included in the bill so as to prevent all speculation with the funds so borrowed, confining the money as far as possible to purposes of agricultural productivity.

Farm loan bonds and mortgages are exempt from taxation, and declared to be instrumentalities of the United States. The Postal Savings act is amended so that trustees may purchase farm land bonds instead of United States bonds for the investment of postal savings deposits.

Land banks would be operated by Boards of Directors, three to be selected by the Federal Reserve Board and six elected by stockholders. Land mortgages would be deposited in the Federal reserve banks acting as trustees.

Having made up his mind not to attempt to drive Congress to conform to his views on rural credit legislation, President Wilson sent word to the Democratic House caucus to-night that he would be satisfied with trust legislation and the enactment of supply bills.

LEGISLATIVE FIGHT SENT TO CONFERENCE

Senate Amends Assembly Bill So As to Provide Funds for Two Disputed Departments.

STILL TALK OF COMPROMISE

Legislature May Adjourn by Friday—Assembly Passes Appropriation Bill by Surprising Majority.

ALBANY, May 12.—The Democratic Senate and the Republican Assembly to-night agreed to disagree on appropriations and appointed a conference committee, which will meet at 10 o'clock to-morrow forenoon and try to adjust the differences. The Republicans will have six of the ten members composing the committee. The findings of the committee, however, are not binding in Senate or Assembly.

The committee is composed of Senators Frawley, Murtaugh, and Cullen, Democrats, and Senator Brown, Republican, and Assemblymen Macdonald, Hinman, Conklin, Wheeler, and Maier, Republicans, and Assemblyman Alfred E. Smith, Democrat.

Prior to the sessions of the two houses to-night there was a conference between Gov. Glynn and the Democratic leaders of both houses. Following the appointment of the conference committee the belief gained ground that some compromise would be reached and that the extra session would come to an end by Friday or Saturday.

The Senate to-night passed the General Appropriation bill, which was sent over by the Assembly, but amended it by inserting an appropriation of $124,000 for the Department of Efficiency and Economy, and $111,000 for the Fire Marshal's office. The Assembly had omitted any provision for the support of these departments, dominated by Tammany Hall.

The Appropriation bill, as amended by the Senate, despite this additional load of $235,000, was about $81,000 below the $30,492,840 provided for by the Assembly. The Supply bill, after passing through the Senate, will come out with a total of $1,800,000, slightly in advance of the amount provided for by the Assembly.

The Senate Finance Committee took out an appropriation of $26,000 which the Assembly had put in at the request of Assemblyman Sulzer for the benefit of the "Kitchen Cabinet," which sat up nights with him at the People's House during the impeachment trial. The Finance Committee put in an appropriation of $260,000 for printing which the Assembly bill did not carry, and omitted $200,000 for deficiencies in the appropriation for State hospitals, which was included in the Assembly measure.

The Senate passed, without opposition and without amending them, the bills passed by the Assembly reappropriating $1,045,000 for highways and $30,000 for the survey of canal lands.

Assembly Acts on Financial Bills.

Prior to the action of the Senate and the subsequent action of the Assembly, the latter body had spent several hours debating and taking final action on five of the most important financial bills. The measures acted upon included the General Appropriation bill for the ensuing fiscal year, the bill to supply deficiencies in appropriations for the present fiscal year, the so-called Construction bill, providing approriations for permanent improvements at State institutions; a bill re-appropriating $1,045,000 for highway improvements, and a bill appropriating $30,000 for survey and mapping of barge canal lands. The General Appropriation bill in its final form carried $30,492,840, the Supply bill, $1,750,000, and the Construction bill, $1,775,000.

All these measures, with the exception of the general appropriation bill, were passed on a "rapid roll call," with no possibility to record the votes of dissenters from the will of the majority. The appropriation bill was passed by the comfortable majority of 90 to 40 after two amendments proposed by Democratic Leader Alfred E. Smith had been defeated by a vote of 52 to 78 and 36 to 75 respectively. The first of these amendments provided $12,000 to pay the salary of John H. Delaney as Commissioner of Efficiency and Economy for the next fiscal year, but no funds to keep the department going during that period. The second amendment provided for the statutory salaries for Fire Marshal Ahearn and his two deputies.

Michael Schaap, the Progressive leader, came out squarely in opposition to the Republican organization programme of holding out against any compromise which would provide appropriations for the Fire Marshal's office and the Department of Efficiency and Economy.

"Acting Like Children."

"The attitude of the majority," he said, "is characteristic of the rule-or-ruin policy of the Republican organization as voiced by State Chairman Barnes. What right have we to set ourselves up above the Senate? The Republican cry of economy, which is set up to screen the real purpose of cutting out the appropriations for these two departments, is so much political buncombe. You cannot do legislative work unless you act as men, and in trying to starve these departments out of existence you are acting like children.

"The statutory salaries provided for in the law for these departments will be paid regardless of anything we do here to-day and be charged up in the supply bill of next year. By holding out appropriations for these departments you are merely giving the officials at the head of them an excuse for drawing their salaries and doing nothing on the plea that we failed to provide money for the carrying on of their activities."

The predicted defection of anti-Barnes Republicans did not materialize. Only three Republicans — Burlingame and Garbe of Kings and Knapp of Chemung —voted for the Smith amendments. A sufficient number of Progressives voted with the Republicans to make up for the loss of these votes.

On the final passage of the bill not only many Progressives but some Democrats of the independent type voted with the Republicans in favor of the Ways and Means Committee's Appropriation bill. Mr. Sulzer spoke for the bill with the appropriations for the two Tammany-ruled departments left out and voted with the Republicans against the Smith amendments and for the bill.

ANOTHER PICTURE SLASHED.

Militant Damages a Portrait by Herkomer in the Academy.

LONDON, May 12.—A militant suffragette armed with a hatchet to-day seriously damaged the portrait of the Duke of Wellington by the late Sir Hubert von Herkomer, R. A., in the Royal Academy. Sir Hubert died on March 31, and the portrait was considered one of his finest later works.

The woman, who was standing looking at the painting, suddenly drew the hatchet from her muff and slashed the canvas three times before bystanders could intervene.

An attendant seized her and took her to a police station, where she said her name was Mary Ansell.

The prisoner sent to the Women's Social and Political Union a message asserting that her deed was a protest against the present unjust position of women, for which militancy was the only remedy. She concluded:

"I have done this deed deliberately and rejoice that I have not failed in my duty."

CONFER ON CITY'S NEEDS.

Mayor Mitchel met his commissioners yesterday in the first general conference that has been held since the Administration came into power. It is planned to hold similar meetings every two weeks. At yesterday's conference the Mayor asked the commissioners to report to him the progress made in their departments since January and what they expected to accomplish. Committees were appointed to consider plans for co-operation and joint action; to work out a plan to centralize the purchasing of supplies for the departments; to centralize repair work and to consider how best to co-operate with the employes of the departments.

The Mayor hopes also to work out a plan to give city employes on a weekly payroll, a vacation with pay.

SIX LINERS COME IN LATE.

Reported Bad Weather at Sea and Fog Off Grand Banks.

Six liners arrived yesterday from Europe, and landed 1,459 cabin and 4,552 steerage passengers. The list included the Kronprinzessin Cecilie from Bremen, President Lincoln from Hamburg, Finland from Antwerp, Minnehaha from London, Ryndam from Rotterdam, and Manuel Calvo from Cadiz. All six liners were late owing to bad weather on the Atlantic, and fog off the Grand Banks the Captains said.

The Minnehaha of the Atlantic Transport Line has been in Belfast for six months to get new boilers and have a thorough overhaul, Capt. Claret said.

Capt. Charles Polack of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie said he sent a wireless message on May 6 to the German Crown Prince, congratulating him on his birthday, and on his arrival at the pier yesterday he received a cable from the Crown Prince thanking him.

Mrs. Peter Pfahl arrived on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie with the body of her husband, a wealthy manufacturer of Niagara Falls, who died recently in Wiesbaden, where he had gone for treatment.

KILLED BY AIR COLLISION.

Two English Army Aviators Dead and Another Badly Hurt.

LONDON, May 12.—Two army airmen, Capt. F. D. Anderson and a mechanic named Carter, were instantly killed, and Lieut. C. W. Wilson was gravely injured when two biplanes collided in the air at Aldershot this evening.

The biplanes were manoeuvring over a crowd of 800 spectators when they dashed into one another and crashed to the ground.

Both machines were destroyed.

SEES DERELICT STEAMER.

La Touraine Reports Wreck Which May Be That of the Columbian.

SYDNEY, N. S., May 12.—The steamer Karamea, Capt. Moggi, which arrived to-day from London, brought word of an abandoned steamer in mid-Atlantic. The Karamea had a wireless message on May 8 from La Touraine that the latter had passed the derelict the day before in latitude 44.17, longitude 39.13. The abandoned steamer had no funnel.

Capt. Moggi suggests that the derelict may be the hulk of the burned steamer Columbian. He says, however, that she would have had to drift at the rate of eleven knots to make the spot where the derelict was passed.

afforded by this house.

The name represents the acknowledged standard of fashion in children's, misses' and young men's apparel.

Paris and London

promptly appear in this establishment.

There are few of the wealthier people of New York who do not know this, and who are not patrons of De Pinna.

They know the CHARACTER of De Pinna goods—that the child wearing De Pinna apparel has a distinct advantage over the child who does not wear it.

But there are many whose children do not enjoy the advantages of De Pinna clothes, because it is erroneously believed that prohibitive price is a necessary accompaniment of this exclusive fashion.

Quality and durability considered, De Pinna prices are AS LOW as those of any house in America.

Buying De Pinna Apparel You Buy Less Frequently, for it is conceded by all who know that these things present materials and workmanship that give them added wearing quality and a smartness of fit which endures.

While this house does not carry cheap goods, it does present a range of prices low enough to meet everybody's ideas of economy.

For instance:

Boys' Wash Suits, as low as $3.85.
Boys' Wool Norfolk Suits, $8.75.
Boys' Spring Weight Reefers, $9.
Young Men's Suits, $13.

JACK ROSE'S DEBTS IN JACOBS RED BOOK

Gambler's Widow Swears That Whitey Lewis and "Beansy" Rosenfeld Also Owe Estate.

SUIT OVER LOAN OF $3,500

Mrs. Jacobs Weeps as She Tells of Sports Who Sent Flowers, but Did Not Pay.

While Jack Rose was testifying yesterday against Charles Becker, Mrs. Anna Jacobs, the widow of a dead gambler, who was one of Rose's friends, was testifying in Justice Whitaker's part in the Supreme Court that Rose owed her husband's estate $270 and had never displayed any inclination to pay it.

The suit was begun by Sigmund Rosenfeld, better known as "Beansy" Rosenfeld, against the estate of Henry Jacobs for $3,500 which Rosenfeld says he lent to Jacobs once when the latter had "gone broke" on the races.

Jacobs was one of the best-known gamblers in the city. He was a bookmaker in season and he ventured in any other game that existed at other times. All the big and little gamblers knew him, and when Joseph Mansfield killed him in 1910 in a quarrel over money, there was grief in all the gambling houses. All of Jacobs's property was in cash in banks. His widow got letters of administration which were afterward revoked by Surrogate Fowler, and the estate was turned over to Isaac Jacobs, the father of the dead man.

Mrs. Jacobs came to the witness chair yesterday to combat the claim of Rosenfeld. She said Rosenfeld owed her husband the $3,500 and that Jack Rose owed $270 and "Whitey" Lewis $25. Asked how she knew this she said that her husband kept his accounts in a little red book which he always carried with him. She said he kept all of his financial matters in this book, what he owed on one side and what was due him on the other. The names of Rosenfeld, Rose, and Lewis were on the debit side of the book.

Mrs. Jacobs wore deep mourning. She was indignant over the thought that Rosenfeld should sue her husband's estate for money that, she said, he himself owed the estate.

Mrs. Jacobs began to cry and the court waited patiently for her to control herself. She said that while her husband lay dying at Bellevue Hospital she talked with him. Near the last, she said, he told her that she would find a little red book in his clothes, and that it would tell her what money was due him. She says that he also told her to call on all the persons who owed him money and collect it.

Mrs. Jacobs did not think she would have any trouble to get the money due, because many members of the gambling fraternity had sent flowers for Jacobs's funeral.

"Jack Rose contributed $2 for flowers," she said.

Then Mrs. Jacobs told of several talks she had with Rosenfeld after her husband's death. Then she said:

"Rosenfeld told me that my husband owed him $3,500. I asked him whether there was a note, check, or draft of any kind by which he could prove the debt, but he said to me: 'That's the trouble. I haven't a leg to stand on.' I then told him that my husband had told me in his last moments that the $3,500 was due from him, and that I thought he ought to pay it."

Mrs. Jacobs was asked to produce the little red book. She replied that it was impossible for her to do so. Asked why she replied:

"It was destroyed while I was in the psychopathic ward in Bellevue Hospital. I was sent there on the ground that I was insane. Two gamblers were trying to get my little estate. There was a colored woman confined in the same ward with me and she got hold of the book and destroyed it."

Mrs. Jacobs told something about the Hesper Club in Second Avenue that was closed by the police. Mrs. Jacobs seemed to be a mine of information about gamblers and their ways, and was willing to tell all she knew, but she was excused after she had explained that she was released from Bellevue after she had convinced the physicians there that she was sane. Just before she left the witness chair she said she had told Rosenfeld that she rejected any claim he might make against her husband's estate.

Then Rosenfeld came to the witness chair and denied that Mrs. Jacobs had repudiated the claim he had against the estate.

"She only cried," said Rosenfeld, "when I mentioned the debt."

The case will be resumed to-day.

MRS. McALPIN'S MAID LOSES.

Appellate Term Says Her Story of Assault Was Improbable.

Mrs. Emma Rockefeller McAlpin, daughter of William Rockefeller and the wife of David Hunter McAlpin, won a victory yesterday when the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court reversed a City Court verdict of $200 in favor of Winifred Maloney, a maid at Mrs. McAlpin's country home, Brooklawn, Morris Plains, N. J.

In her complaint the maid said that after a service of about five months she notified the housekeeper, Mrs. Aikens, that she was going to leave, and at the request of the latter gave the customary week's notice; but on the evening of Sept. 15, 1912, she said, Mrs. McAlpin told her she could leave on the 10 o'clock train the next morning, because another girl had been found to take her place. She was also told, Miss Maloney said, that she could go to the station in the automobile, but she preferred going in the stage and declined the offer.

The next morning there was a scene that was graphically described in the complaint, but which the court declined to credit. Miss Maloney said that the automobile came to the door and Mrs. McAlpin ordered her to enter it. She said she declined, whereupon Mrs. McAlpin seized her by the arm and shook her, and tried to force her to enter the car. Miss Maloney also said that Mrs. McAlpin told her she was crazy and threatened to call the butler, and finally did so, and that she was greatly afraid that she would be assaulted again.

In reversing the verdict of the lower court the Appellate Term reviewed the whole case and recited some of the testimony. Mrs. Aikens had testified, "Mrs. McAlpin is a very timid little lady, and would not raise her voice to anybody." The court decided that the story of the plaintiff was improbable and that the desire of the defendant to have the plaintiff use the car was due to an unappreciated solicitude that the plaintiff should not miss her train, and that she should be comfortably conveyed to the station.

OPPOSES 'DRY' AMENDMENT.

Dupre Files Minority Report on Hobson's Prohibition Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Declaring that he was unwilling that the people of any other State should decide the internal policies of his own State, Representative H. Garland Dupré of Louisiana, a Republican member of the House Judiciary Committee, to-day filed a minority and adverse report on the Hobson resolution, which provides for a constitutional amendment for national prohibition.

"It makes no difference whether one favors or opposes the sale or consumption of liquor, the real question is whether the same should be prohibited by the Constitution of the United States," said Mr. Dupré. "In the first place, it is a question on which there is the sharpest division of sentiment, and no policy so widely controverted should find lodgment in the organic law of the land."

Mr. Dupré criticised his colleagues of the Judiciary Committee for presenting the proposition to the House without a recommendation of any kind.

told, Becker, then head of the Strong Arm Squad and the most feared man in the underworld.

"Yes, I guess I did cry," admitted Rose after he had left the witness stand. "Like a flash the whole scene came to me again, that scene after the murder. Oh—!"

There the witness stopped and looked out over the roof tops near the Criminal Court Building. More tears were in his eyes.

Rose looked prosperous, well dressed, and in good health. His head was still without a single hair, and as shiny as it was two years ago. His chin was just as peaked and his wide-spread ears finished the picture of one of the most eccentric figures that ever walked into a courtroom.

Becker faced him, but their eyes never met. Rose talked to the jury. He looked the jurymen in the face and he looked District Attorney Whitman in the face. He acted like a man who was bored to death with repeating a story which ran from his mouth as easily as water from a spring. He knew what he was wanted for, and he set about to finish his task as smoothly as possible. He acted like a man well trained in court procedure. His low, sonorous voice carried like a bell. He did not exert himself, never became excited, never received a reprimand, and he withstood the ordeal as if it were an everyday affair.

There were many additions to his testimony, but in the main it was the story he told at the first trial. All through his recital he used direct quotations when speaking of Rosenthal or Becker. In the first trial he used indirect discourse only. He told in many different ways how Becker had threatened to kill Rosenthal, and he never varied the expressions used at the first trial.

Mr. Manton took down many notes, and said later that he had caught Rose in significant contradictions about conversations the witness said he had had with Becker. It was expected that Mr. Manton will make much of these alleged contradictions to-day in cross-examining Rose.

New Points in Rose's Story.

The checking up of the two sets of testimony by Rose showed important additions. He said yesterday that the Becker-Rosenthal gambling house cleared as much as $4,000 in one evening and that Becker, when he heard of it, demanded from Rosenthal through Rose the return of the $1,500 which he had invested to start the place. There was no mention of $4,000 at the first trial, and at that time Rose testified that Becker had sent him to get $500 of the $1,500 due.

Rose introduced the name of ex-Inspector Cornelius J. Hayes at yesterday's session. This was a surprise. He was explaining how he had tried to convince Rosenthal that Becker had done a great deal for him.

"I told Herman," said Rose, "that he ought not to forget that Becker had helped him a great deal and that he ought not to break with him. I told him to remember that Inspector Hayes hadn't bothered him once."

Hayes was dismissed from the Police Department shortly after the Rosenthal murder on a charge of insubordination. He openly charged in the newspapers, it was alleged, that Police Commissioner Waldo had instructed him not to close up gambling houses in the Tenderloin.

Rose further testified yesterday that Becker had told him he would not hesitate to arrest Rosenthal himself when the raid was made. It appeared on the first trial that Becker was not willing to go to the extent of arresting his alleged partner.

Another distinction was to the effect that men higher up, supposedly officials at Police Headquarters, were responsible for keeping a patrolman stationed in Rosenthal's gambling house after Becker made his "friendly" raid. The presence of this patrolman aggravated Rosenthal's hatred for Becker, but, according to Rose's new testimony, Becker was unable to get rid of the policeman because of the influence higher up.

It was further brought out that Rosenthal's gambling paraphernalia was demolished at Police Headquarters after the raid. In view of the fact that Becker was alleged to have a chattel mortgage on Rosenthal's furnishings, it is significant, from the defense's point of view, that Becker should not have sufficient influence to prevent the destruction of the paraphernalia. It was inferred that the same higher-up influences went over Becker's head in this instance.

An additional quotation went on the new trial record when Rose testified that Becker said to him: "If Rosenthal wants to fight, let him come out like a fighter. When I get through with him he'll never bat his eye again in the gambling business of New York."

Becker Rejected Mediation.

Another new suggestion which Rose let out was that mediation had been attempted between Becker and Rosenthal. Rose said it was he who suggested that a disinterested person, entirely apart from the gambling business, should try to bring Becker and Rosenthal back on peace terms. Rose added: "But Becker wouldn't listen to it. He said: 'I'll take care of him myself. I wouldn't talk to that dog Rosenthal.'"

In another instance Rose brought in the name of ex-Inspector Hughes, formerly head of the Detective Bureau. This name was not used in the first trial. Rose was speaking about the "frame-up" of Jack Zelig, the east side gangster who was held in the Tombs on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, and facing a possible fourteen-year term in prison. According to Rose, a notorious gambler, "Dollar John" Langer, had tried to get Inspector Hughes to "frame up" Zelig. Rose quoted Becker as saying: "Yes, Zelig was framed up. It was due to a lot of soreheads over a primary fight on the east side. I didn't know about the frame-up when it happened. Officer White told me that Zelig had been framed."

Zelig was murdered on the eve of the first Becker trial by "Red" Davidson. Mr. Whitman had expected to prove through Zelig that he had received Becker's order to furnish the gunmen who should kill Rosenthal.

Rose told in detail about this part of the conspiracy. He also brought out that Mrs. Zelig had overheard a conversation which he (Rose) had with Zelig in the Tombs about the plans for the murder. The mention of this name suggested that District Attorney Whitman might produce Mrs. Zelig as a witness. Rose testified that he had given Zelig $100 of Becker's money, and that Zelig had shared it with his wife.

Another variation in the testimony was to the effect that Becker had threatened to arrest all of the members of Zelig's gang. Zelig, according to Rose, refused to do Becker's bidding unless he were freed on bail, which had been set at $10,000. When Rose reported Zelig's ultimatum, Becker made this reply, according to the testimony: "Let Zelig rot in the Tombs. Let them all rot. Hereafter I'm going to pick all those gangsters up. They kill each other for nothing, and when a man comes along who really ought to be croaked, they refuse to do a favor for you. I'll fix them hereafter."

It later developed that Zelig was freed, and Rose repeated yesterday that he scraped up the $10,000 bail money at Becker's suggestion.

Rose elaborated in his story of the famous "Harlem conference," which the Court of Appeals in reversing the Becker conviction called the "heart of the conspiracy," and the reunion of the conspirators in the doorway near "Bridgie" Webber's poker room immediately after the murder.

Partner of Rosenthal.

In answer to the District Attorney's questions Rose told of his long career in the gambling business. His last connection was with Rosenthal, he said, as his partner, not only in West Forty-fifth Street, but in the Hesper Club, in Second Avenue. When the witness started the story leading to Rosenthal's slaying he passed through it without the aid of questions.

Rose told how Becker used to breakfast at his house; how he met him morning, noon, and night at the Lafayette Baths, the Union Square Hotel, the Elks Club, Police Headquarters, and in Subway stations. The murder story began with the get-rich-quick talks which Rosenthal had with Becker in the Spring of 1912. Rosenthal wanted $5,000 from Becker to start a new gambling house, and proposed that Becker should have an interest in it.

Becker relied on Rose, his stool pigeon and collector, as his go-between in all negotiations with Rosenthal. He was elated at the prospect of getting rich in the gambling business, but Rose advised him to have no relations with such an unprincipled and treacherous man as Rosenthal. After much dickering, it was arranged that Becker should let Rosenthal have $1,500, secured by a chattel mortgage on Rosenthal's furniture. A man named Donohue was the dummy in the mortgage transaction. Rose was "declared in" on 25 per cent. of the profits, and was to station himself in the gambling house to see that Rosenthal did not run away with the money.

The opening night was dull but business picked up and Becker kept tabs on the proceeds through Rose. One night when a big profit was made Becker sent Rose to Rosenthal with a demand for the return of the $1,500. That was the beginning of the break between Becker and the gambler. Rosenthal refused to give up any part of the money until the obligation was due. Then Becker threatened to make a raid on the house. Complaints against the place were piling up at Police Headquarters, and Becker was admonished by his superiors to get rid of the gambling house.

When Rosenthal discovered that Becker had to make the raid to save his face at Headquarters he grew furious. All of the dickering culminated in the preparation of bogus evidence by Becker's Strong Arm Squad. Becker furnished the description of the gambling house, got the warrants from Chief Magistrate McAdoo and personally made a raid on the house. Rosenthal stood across the way and was not arrested, but a nephew of Mrs. Rosenthal and another man were taken to the police station. Becker told Rosenthal if he had not made the raid Lieut. "Honest Dan" Costigan would have made it over his head and that would have been the end of Charles Becker.

Becker's Promise Broken.

Becker patched things up by agreeing to "throw" the case on perjured testimony and promising to have the policeman in the gambling house removed, and to make preparations for a reopening of the house. Also he agreed to cancel the $1,500 loan. But the patrolman was not removed and Rosenthal began to tell all about the town of his connection with the head of the Strong Arm Squad. Commissioner Waldo questioned Becker, who told him the story was ridiculous. Rosenthal carried his grievances to Chief Magistrate McAdoo, Magistrate Corrigan, Mayor Gaynor, and District Attorney Whitman.

When Becker realized Rosenthal was determined to "break" him he began preparation for the murder. He told Rose "Rosenthal is a fellow I would like to have croaked." There were many conferences between Rose and Becker, and the murder plans were much discussed. Becker sent Rose to the Tombs to suggest that Jack Zelig furnish the murderers as a price for liberty. Zelig was willing to do the murder but wanted to get out first.

Zelig's objections caused Becker to send Rose directly to the flat of the gunmen up in the Bronx. Rose made the acquaintance in the flat of "Lefty Louie" and "Whitey Lewis." They were pleased with the idea of killing Rosenthal. They didn't know him and he meant nothing to them. They agreed to hold themselves in readiness for the killing. Rose gave them money and reported to Becker that the boys were all right. Becker said that he hoped he would wake up some morning soon and read about Rosenthal's death. Becker urged Rose to hurry up and get rid of his enemy.

That was as early as June 22, 1912, and Becker was enraged when the murder was delayed. Becker got the idea that the gunmen were not satisfied that they would be protected by him, and suggested that "Bridgie" Webber should interest himself in the case. "Bridgie" knew the gunmen, too, and the gunmen knew that "Bridgie" had a big bank roll.

The "Harlem Conference."

Thus the "Harlem Conference" was held late in June in a lot at 124th Street and Seventh Avenue. Rose took Harry Vallon in an automobile to the meeting place, leaving instructions with Sam Schepps to follow in a taxicab with "Bridgie" Webber. Becker conferred with Rose, Vallon, and Webber in the lot, leaving Schepps a few blocks away with the chauffeur. It was at this conference that the plot was broached to Webber by Becker. Webber said, "Leave to to me; the job will be done and done quick."

Webber, Vallon, Rose, "Lefty Louie," "Gyp the Blood," and "Dago Frank" met in the Lafayette Baths at 4 A. M. on July 13, 1912. Vallon reported that Rosenthal was at the Garden Restaurant, and Rose and Webber led them there. Rose, learning that a Burns detective was guarding Rosenthal at the District Attorney's orders, stopped the execution plot at the last minute.

Becker was disgusted. He had learned that Grand Jury subpoenas had been issued for Rose, "Dollar John" Langer, Abe Halo, and other gamblers, and he knew what that meant. Rose, Webber, and Vallon on July 14 went to the Sam Paul Association outing up the Sound. They added to the murder plans and learned from 400 gamblers on the outing that the general sentiment was all in favor of Rosenthal's immediate death. They reported this to Becker, and "Bridgie" Webber made the final arrangements.

On the morning of July 16, 1912, Rose drove to "Dago Frank's" flat in Seventh Avenue and took this gunman to Webber's poker rooms at Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street. Webber was there, and so were the three other gunmen, Harry Vallon, and Sam Schepps. At a signal by Webber the four gunmen and Vallon followed Webber to the Metropole in Forty-third Street, near Broadway. They made the trip in the so-called murder car operated by Willie Shapiro. Rosenthal was shot down and the gunmen escaped. Shapiro dropped them near the Fifty-ninth Street Bridge and drove his car into the garage.

Rose first heard of the murder when a man came running into "Bridgie's" place and yelled out the news. Schepps was with him. He went to Times Square and telephoned to Becker, who congratulated him and called him "Good boy." He had already heard of the murder from a newspaper reporter, an intimate friend. Becker met Webber, Vallon, and Rose in a deep doorway in Forty-second Street, near Sixth Avenue. Webber reported that "the job" was done.

"Yes," said Becker, "I'm glad of it."

Saw Whitman at Station.

"I asked Becker," continued Rose, "what caused this long wait before coming downtown. He said: 'I stopped at the West Forty-seventh Street Station House before coming here. Whitman is there, but everything will be all right. There is no danger. They've got a number of numbers there for the automobile, but they are all wrong. I saw the —— Rosenthal. It was a pleasing sight to see that squealing —— there, and if it was not for the presence of Whitman I would have reached down and cut his tongue out there and hung it up on the telegraph pole as a warning to future squealers.'"

Rose asked Becker for money for the gunmen. Becker told "Bridgie" to let Rose have $1,000, and "Bridgie" said he would. Rose later gave this to "Lefty Louie," and the gunmen went into hiding. In the home of Harry Pollok, a fight promoter, at 157th Street and Riverside Drive, Rose hid from the police and the District Attorney. Becker telephoned him many times and told him not to worry. He sent his lawyer, John Hart, to see Rose, and Rose made out a false affidavit that it was he, Rose, who had lent Herman Rosenthal $1,500 with which to open the gambling house.

Rose went to Police Headquarters on July 18, two days after the murder, and surrendered on a charge of murder. On July 29 he turned State's evidence. He signed a stipulation in which it was directly stipulated that immunity should not hold if it should be subsequently shown that he fired a shot at Rosenthal.

It took Rose three and a half hours to tell his story.

In the corridors was a man named Friedner, a process server. He had come from the office of Alexander I. Hahn, an attorney at 320 Broadway, he said, to serve a summons in a civil suit brought against Rose by Louis J. Ronker. It was said Rose had defaulted on a promissory note for $450 made in February, 1911. The process server looked in vain for Rose, who was smuggled out of the building.

At no time in the first trial of Becker was the crowd so great as that which was attracted by the appearance of Rose. The courtroom was crowded in the morning, but after the recess there were five persons to every one who had presented himself for admission before noon. The police of the Elizabeth Street Station, aided by Deputy Sheriffs, formed lines in the corridors. Policemen at the elevators and staircases prevented the entrance of any persons without tickets of admission.

When the doors were closed single chairs were shared by two persons. Mrs. Samuel Seabury, wife of the Justice, was among the visitors.

SHAPIRO TRAPPED ON STAND.

Becker's Lawyer Catches Driver of "Murder Car" in a Contradiction.

Prior to the production of Jack Rose, District Attorney Whitman placed two witnesses on the stand. One was Dr. Dennis Taylor, the ambulance surgeon of Flower Hospital who pronounced Rosenthal dead, who gave merely technical testimony. The other was Willie Shapiro, the chauffeur of the "murder car," who drove the gunmen to and from the Metropole and who saw them in the death house at Sing Sing before their execution. He established that the men whom he carried in the "murder car" were those who had been convicted of the murder.

Shapiro told a connected story on direct examination. At the first Becker trial he had been sworn, but Justice Goff had not admitted his testimony. He was a witness, however, in the trial of the gunmen. He told yesterday of the escape in the murder car. One of the gunmen in the back seat leaned over the seat and said to him:

"Becker has the cops fixed. Everything is all right. Drive like ——, you boob."

The murder car passed eastward in Forty-third Street and was stopped by a trolley car at Sixth Avenue, but the escape was safely made in spite of this.

District Attorney Whitman brought out that Shapiro had obtained no money from him. Shapiro said that he had been in consultation with Mr. Whitman on Monday night at the District Attorney's home. All that he had received out of the case, he said, was $50 some three weeks ago for taking a trip out of the city.

On cross-examination Mr. Manton picked up a volume of testimony in the gunmen's trial, and got as close to Shapiro as the court rules permitted. He reminded the witness of the testimony that he had just given, that one of the gunmen had told him the "cops were fixed."

Shapiro said he could not name the gunman. The attorney read from the witness's earlier testimony. At the gunmen's trial, it appeared, Shapiro had testified: "'Dago Frank' leaned over the seat and told me that there were no cops—that Becker had fixed that.'"

Mr. Manton made the most of this. Not only did Shapiro change his testimony, but Mr. Manton got him to assert that the stenographer must have recorded him wrongly. He tried to explain that he was telling the truth now, and that he also had told the truth two years ago.

Turning suddenly on his heel, Mr. Manton caused a thrill in the courtroom when he pointed his finger at a man who stood near the wall behind the jury box.

"Do you know Assistant District Attorney Groehl, that man standing there shaking his head at you?"

Mr. Whitman protested and Mr. Groehl stepped forward, entered the counsel inclosure, and sat near Mr. Whitman. Mr. Whitman's exception was noted and the jury was instructed to disregard the suggestion, but the witness was permitted to answer the question. He said that he did know Mr. Goehl.

Mr. Manton then tried to connect Shapiro with "Tough Tony," the gangster who was said to have broken "Bridgie" Webber's jaw at the instigation of Rosenthal. Shapiro denied that he knew "Tony." Mr. Manton tried to make Shapiro admit knowledge of the shooting of Jack Zelig when Zelig was released on bail on the gun-carrying charge which figured so prominently in Rose's story. A man named Torti from the Jack Sirocco gang, rivals of the Zelig gang, was alleged to have shot Zelig. Shapiro said he did not know Torti, and denied that his motor car figured in the shooting of Zelig. Mr. Manton was trying to connect the gangsters with some of the informers against Becker.

When Shapiro was held in the Tombs for the murder of Rosenthal, Harford T. Marshall visited a client there. He stopped to see Shapiro and Shapiro talked with him. Mr. Marshall is now one of Becker's lawyers. He was in court yesterday.

"Didn't you tell Mr. Marshall that Harry Vallon was on the running board of your car when you left the murder scene and that he hit you with his revolver when you stopped at Sixth Avenue?" roared Mr. Manton.

"No, Sir; I didn't," snapped Shapiro, angrily. "Mr. Marshall wanted me to say that Harry Vallon was on the running board and —"

Justice Seabury interrupted him here and the sentence was left uncompleted. Mr. Whitman jumped up and had the witness explain that the Mr. Marshall he referred to was the one who sat near Becker. Mr. Marshall is an ex-Assistant District Attorney.

EXPLOSION KILLED EIGHT.

Firemen and Coal Passers Victims of Old Dominion Boiler Accident.

NORFOLK, Va., May 12.—Eight dead and three severely injured was the toll of the explosion of one of the boilers of the Old Dominion liner Jefferson, which occurred at 10:55 last night, five miles inside of Cape Henry. Two of the dead were white firemen, the rest negro firemen and coal passers, while the injured are Chief Engineer W. L. Portlock, First Assistant Engineer H. B. Smith, both of New York City, and M. Olsen, an oiler. Chief Engineer Portlock, First Assistant Smith, and Oiler Olsen are at the Sarah Leigh Hospital in a serious condition.

The Jefferson is on her way to New York, and should arrive there to-morrow morning about 4 o'clock. An inspection of the boilers will be made to determine the cause of the explosion.

With the dead and injured the Jefferson arrived in Norfolk early this morning and resumed her course at 6:30 o'clock. She is under command of Capt. Theodore Catherine, who was in charge when the explosion occurred in the after starboard boiler.

Capt. James Leyland Superintendent of the Old Dominion Steamship Company, in an interview with the reporters at his office at the foot of Beach Street yesterday, said that the explosion on board the Jefferson was caused through the tube sheet in one of the combustion chambers of the after-starboard boiler blowing away from the boiler tubes. He said that the Jefferson was on her way to New York, using three boilers, and would arrive early this morning.

DISPLEASED WITH DR. PLOTZ

Physicians Angered Because His Discovery Was Made Public.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 12.—It is possible that Dr. Plotz of New York may not be called upon to read his paper on the discovery of the typhus germ at the meeting of the American Association of Physicians to-morrow. It was said this evening that the authorities were displeased because Dr. Plotz had permitted his discoveries to be published before the paper was read at the session here.

Dr. Plotz refused to discuss his discoveries to-night, but his friends seemed sure that the young New York physician would be allowed to read his paper to-morrow.

NEW RADIUM SECRET BARED BY CHEMIST

PLANS PROSPECTING TOUR

Experiments to be Made with Field Laboratory in Utah to Test Simplified Process.

Curt Bredt, a young chemist, son of Dr. Paul Bredt, a well known chemist of Cologne, is to leave New York in a few days, accompanied by William J. McEvoy of 222 West Forty-second Street, for the "radium district" of Utah. Mr. Bredt says he has discovered a process for simplifying the reduction of radium bromide from carnotite, and he is carrying a field laboratory to make a test of the land belonging to Mr. McEvoy and containing carnotites. Mr. McEvoy and Mr. Bredt also will prospect for uranium ores on Government land in Southeaster Utah.

The miniature reduction plant Mr. Bredt will take with him is about the size of an office desk. He believes that he can produce commercial radium, or radium bromide, in about one-sixth of the time and at one-third to one-half of the present cost. It is the intention of Mr. Bredt and his business associates, so the former announces, to present to one of the leading hospitals in New York 160 acres of carnotite land, reasonably capable of yielding from one to three grams of the radium bromide.

"Before I left Bonn, a man at the University of Heidelberg had discovered that radium bromide could be extracted by a sort of smelting," said Mr. Bredt yesterday, "instead of the ordinary process of solutions and crystallizations. The reason the latter process takes so long is that there have to be between 100 and 200 of these steps before the radium bromide is obtained. This Heidelberg chemist found that if you take a mixture of radium sulphate, barium sulphate, and calcium hydrür, you can smelt it. The barium sulphate changes to a sulphite and becomes soluble, but the radium remains such.

"While this simplified the extraction of radium bromide, it was a very expensive process, because of the cost of calcium hydrür. The main advantage of my process is that I have found a substitute for the calcium hydrür which is very cheap. I estimate that not more than one-fifth of the labor required in a redium extraction plant of the present type will be required, in one such as I have in mind.

"I expect to spend at least seven weeks in Utah working out what I have already succeeded in demonstrating on a small scale. I am confident that I shall be able to produce radium at considerably less cost that by the present methods."

Mr. McEvoy said that for ten years the exportation of carnotite had been going on from Utah to France and Germany, and that for some years it was given out that it was used in staining glass. Acting as agents of foreign concerns, many individuals had taken up claims of Government land on which carnotite had been found, and it was generally given out that the only source of the world's supply of radium was the pitchblende mines at Joachimsthal in Austria, when the greater part of it came originally from Utah and Colorado. The fact that of the world's production of nine grams of radium last year six grams was credited to the United States indicated, in Mr. McEvoy's opinion, that the radium-producing industry had awakened in this country and would grow always more important.

THAT IS WHY

The all-important thing is to be able to take it out after the building is completed.

And to do this, it is necessary, among other things, to employ a contractor whose methods are calculated to keep your investment at a minimum.

That is why so many owners employ us.

NEW HAVEN HEADS MAY NOT TESTIFY

LEDYARD ASSAILS WITNESS

Railroad Paid $1,000 to Oppose Panama Canal Legislation—$381.90 Spent for 15,000 "Prayers."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Attorney General McReynolds has written a very short letter to the Interstate Commerce Commission protesting against General Counsel Folk's intention to put Mr. Mellen and present and former Directors of the New Haven on the witness stand in the commission's investigation into the financial operations of the company.

The Attorney General expresses the opinion that if Mr. Mellen and his former associates give evidence they may obtain immunity from prosecution by the Government under pending indictments and charges that may be brought in the future. The Department of Justice, he points out, has been at work for two years gathering evidence in regard to alleged violations of law by the New Haven management, and he fears that all this work will count for nothing if Mr. Folk has his way.

The Attorney General had a brief interview with President Wilson to-night in regard to the matter. It is not considered likely, under the circumstances, that those subpoenaed for to-morrow will be called upon to testify. In addition to Mr. Mellen, they are Lewis Cass Ledyard, William Rockefeller, George F. Baker, and George Macculloch Miller.

Quite unexpectedly and with dramatic setting, Lewis Cass Ledyard made a statement at the Interstate Commerce hearing to-day covering the details of the exchange of the Boston & Maine stock held by the American Express Company for New Haven Railroad stock. In doing so he faced William B. Lawrence of Medford, Mass., who had just given under oath his well-known version of the wrecking of the Boston & Maine Railroad, with a loss to the Lawrence family of more than $1,500,000.

Mr. Ledyard was not on the witness stand, for it had not been decided whether he and the other Directors who had been summoned with Charles S. Mellen should be allowed to testify for fear that by so doing they would become immune from criminal prosecution. Chief Counsel Folk of the commission, is determined that these witnesses shall go on the stand, while the Department of Justice prefers that they shall not.

W. B. Lawrence's Charges.

Mr. Lawrence testified that before the Boston & Maine was taken over by the New Haven he and the members of his family owned about 12,000 shares, valued each at about $190 for the common and $165 for the preferred, the latter being the market price just before the Boston & Maine passed to the control of the New Haven. His father, Gen. Samuel Crocker Lawrence, he said, was a Director and the largest individual stockholder in the Boston & Maine, and the witness was clerk of the Board of Directors. At the time, he said, the Boston & Maine was losing more business than it could handle, and was increasing business at its terminal points. It was a successful competitor of the New Haven, and the Directors of the latter, in combination with the Directors of the American Express Company, Mr. Lawrence declared, were attempting to bring the Boston & Maine under the control of the New Haven.

They succeeded, said Mr. Lawrence, and in five years afterward the increase in the business of the Boston & Maine was about one-sixth what it had been before. This, according to the witness, was due to a diversion of traffic from the Boston & Maine to the New Haven, especially the diversion of high-grade traffic originating in the big New England towns along the Boston & Maine to the New Haven, the Boston & Albany, the Poughkeepsie bridge route and other lines controlled by the New Haven.

Since the control passed, Mr. Lawrence said, the Boston & Maine property, as a whole, had not been kept up. They had some big engines, but the traffic did not need them, and the ties and general equipment were so bad, especially on the Central Massachusetts Division and in New Hampshire, that it was dangerous to ride on the fast trains. The money of the road, said Mr. Lawrence, had been spent in buying the securities of other roads, rather than in keeping up the physical condition of the Boston & Maine.

The witness told of a meeting at which he said Lewis Cass Ledyard announced that the New Haven would give its stock, share for share, for Boston & Maine stock.

"Mr. Ledyard stated," said Lawrence, "that J. Pierpont Morgan and others had decided there ought to be a change in the railroad situation. Mr. Ledyard said Mr. Morgan had been applied to for $40,000,000 to finance the New Haven and also had been asked for a similar sum for the New York Central. Ledyard said Morgan would not consider the plan to put up $80,000,000 unless the roads could put more traffic over the lines. The general scheme was to bring about a consolidation of railroads until there were only five, and similarly with the express companies."

Before the New Haven bought the Boston & Maine stock, Mr. Lawrence said, various offers had been made to the Lawrence family for their holdings. Frank Jones of New Hampshire and a syndicate once offered $210 a share, and the Delaware & Hudson Company, in 1900, made a like offer. Charles W. Morse also wanted a block. Mr. Lawrence refused to sell it at the bid of $210 a share, because Morse wanted a place on the board, and "I thought he would be persona non grata." E. H. Harriman also wanted to buy the stock, Mr. Lawrence said, and there were other would-be purchasers.

Lewis Cass Ledyard's Statement.

Mr. Ledyard arose from his seat among the spectators when Mr. Lawrence left the stand, and after some insistence obtained the right to make a statement. He told of his friendly relations with Gen. Lawrence, the father of the witness, running over many years, and how they had agreed long prior to 1907 that if either party ever wished to sell its Boston & Maine stock the other should be informed. The American Express Company was at that time the largest holder of Boston & Maine stock, the Lawrence family coming next, and Mr. Ledyard added that his friendly relations with the latter were maintained until the Boston & Maine passed to the control of the New Haven Road.

The negotiations for the sale of the Boston & Maine stock held by the American Express Company were begun by Gardner Lane, a broker with Lee, Higginson & Co. of Boston.

"I never spoke to J. P. Morgan on the subject of the sale of this stock in my life," said Mr. Ledyard. "I never said I represented Morgan in the Boston & Maine board or anything else."

When the American Express Company Directors finally agreed to sell their stock Mr. Ledyard told the Boston & Maine Directors of the proposition, and stated to them that it should be a condition precedent that all stockholders should have the same privilege as the Directors of disposing of their stock on the same basis; that is, one share of New Haven stock for one share of Boston & Maine. Mr. Ledyard went on to explain that he told the Directors and everybody else interested the reasons why the Directors of the American Express Company were willing to sell the stock, and the chief reason was the law of Massachusetts, since repealed, aimed nominally at stock watering, which prevented a railroad company from issuing bonds beyond the value of its stock.

"The bondholders were getting but 3½ per cent.," he said, "and the large stockholders had to take their medicine with the smaller ones."

The Boston & Maine stock, too, was inactive and unsalable, and so the stock was sold after an equal chance had been given to all stockholders, in accordance with the promise Mr. Ledyard long before had made to Gen. Lawrence.

"Not until afterward!" shouted Mr. Lawrence across the room.

Mr. Ledyard denied this, and said that Lee, Higginson & Co. did offer, through Gardner Lane, the same privileges to all stockholders.

"I represented nobody," said Mr. Ledyard, with emphasis, "and the suggestion made in the testimony here about Morgan's schemes and Morgan's plans for consolidation are untrue. No living or dead man ever heard me say I represented Morgan."

Then Mr. Lawrence came back with a question as to whether it was "not a fact that William H. Vanderbilt got his stock in the Boston & Maine at a special price on the assurance that it was a personal purchase, and that he would not sell it to the New York Central."

W. K. Vanderbilt Large Stockholder

Mr. Ledyard replied that he had never heard of William H. Vanderbilt owning any of the stock. Mr. Lawrence, he said, probably meant William K. Vanderbilt, who, he remarked, owned the stock before Ledyard became a member of the Board of Directors.

Mr. Ledyard explained further that when the New Haven gave its stock to the American Express Company holders and other holders of Boston & Maine stock, share for share, William K. Vanderbilt asked Mr. Ledyard to hold his stock, about 4,000 shares, which he did, and received the dividends until Mr. Ledyard retired from the New York Central Board a year or more ago.

Asked by Mr. Lawrence whether he had not said that the reason Vanderbilt parted with his stock was the desire to facilitate the deal of getting control of the Boston & Maine road by the New Haven, Mr. Ledyard said "No," and added that the New York Central never had the stock, as it was in his personal possession until recently, when it was transferred to Mr. Vanderbilt's name.

After the colloquy between Mr. Ledyard and Mr. Lawrence was concluded, and when the commission had adjourned, Mr. Ledyard created a stir among those still present in the room by reminding Mr. Lawrence, in pointed language, of what Mr. Ledyard said was a fact, that Mr. Lawrence was removed from the office of clerk of the Board of Directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad by President Tuttle on the strength of a report made by a committee of Directors of which Richard Olney was a member, to the effect that Mr. Lawrence had made false entries in the minute books, and had misread statements of the proceedings to the Directors.

It was stated by Chief Counsel Folk that Mr. Ledyard would be sworn as a witness at to-morrow's session, and catechised as to the statements made by him and by Mr. Lawrence to-day.

Before Mr. Lawrence was sworn at the afternoon session, Francis H. McAdam, an examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, testified to the ownership of New Haven stock by the Directors of other railroads and corporations generally. William Rockefeller, who is a Director in thirty-six corporations, owns 2,150 shares of New Haven, it was stated; George F. Baker of the First National Bank of New York, Director in as many, owned 100 shares; the Pennsylvania Railroad, 35,000; the New York Central, 30,000; the Mutual Life Insurance Company, 30,000; Robert W. Taft of Providence, 68 shares; Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, 100; John L. Billard, President of the Billard Company, 200; Howard Elliott, 10; Prof. Edward T. Hadley of Yale, 203; President J. H. Hustis of the New Haven Road, 10; A. S. May, Treasurer of the New Haven, 20, and Charles S. Mellen, former President, and E. D. Robbins, former General Counsel of the New Haven, none, the total of the shares of the New Haven outstanding in 1913 being about 180,000.

When the hearing was resumed this morning Timothy E. Byrnes, former Vice President of the New Haven, was recalled to the stand and in the course of his testimony admitted that $1,000 paid to Clarence W. De Knight, a Washington lawyer, by former Rear Admiral F. T. Bowles, President of the Fore River Ship Building Company, for services in connection with the Panama legislation, in reality came from the New Haven treasury. The Senate Lobby Investigating Committee recently had De Knight and Bowles before it with relation to the transaction, but the New Haven's connection was not then brought out.

Money Paid for "Prayers."

In beginning his examination Chief Counsel Folk asked:

"Did Mr Mellen ever turn over to you money to be disbursed without vouchers?"

"No," replied Mr. Byrnes, "at no time."

Mr. Folk submitted a voucher for $381.90 in favor of Sylvester Baxter "for 15,000 prayers."

"Prayers!" mused Mr. Folk. "What did the New Haven want with 15,000 prayers?"

"It probably needed more than that," smiled Mr. Byrnes.

"This purports to be 'prayers from the hills,'" suggested Mr. Folk. "Why were the appeals of the people being paid for by the New Haven?"

"I don't know about that," Mr. Byrnes replied. "The bill was paid by the New Haven. People were praying then, just as they are praying now, for a rest:"

"Did you pay the Hilltown Association $3,000?"

"I did not."

"The Hilltown Association," continued Mr. Folk, "I will say for your information, purported to be an association of people, and it was financed by the New Haven Road."

"That might have been," said the witness.

"What do you know about the activities of Innis and Turtle?"

"Innis and Turtle received anywhere from $12,000 to $15,000 for work they did among various associations of people in Massachusetts and elsewhere."

"Did they make a report of their work?"

"I know they did report, but about the character of the report I know nothing."

"Were any itemized bills presented by Innis and Turtle?"

"I think not. Their work, as I recall it, was of a general character among civic bodies which had manifested interest in the railroad situation."

"Did they act as attorneys for the road?"

"Not in the sense that others acted," said Mr. Byrnes. "Their work was along different lines."

"Then, for all the thousands of dollars paid them they never went into court?" suggested Mr. Folk.

"No, I think they never appeared in court."

Questioned as to the employment of W. S. McNary of Boston, Mr. Byrnes said McNary had received about $1,000, mainly for making a careful study of the probable effect of the Grand Trunk Railroad coming into Boston, which was being considered.

"McNary was an expert on transportation matters," said Mr. Byrnes, "and later was appointed a Dock Commissioner by the Governor. He made reports to us and advised that the New Haven co-operate in bringing the Grand Trunk into Boston. He had made speeches for years before Chambers of Commerce, trade bodies, and similar organizations."

"In whose behalf did he speak?"

"Generally in the interest of the public."

"Did his holding a public position have anything to do with his employment?"

McNary a Clerk in a Store.

"At that time he held no public place. He was a clerk in a furniture store."

"Did you consider the advice of a clerk in a furniture store worth $1,000?"

"Well, the State of Massachusetts seems to value his services."

It was testified that McNary, during the time he was paid by the New Haven, was making addresses before various organizations in which he denounced the New Haven Road.

"The money paid to McNary by the New Haven," said Mr. Byrnes, "was entirely for advice regarding the Grand Trunk situation and the general traffic possibilities of Boston."

"You didn't pay him to keep him quiet?"

The witness, asked if he had any connection with any Panama Canal bill, answered that he had not.

Exhibiting the voucher involving the payment of $1,000 to Admiral Bowles for De Knight, Mr. Folk asked Mr. Byrnes to explain it.

The witness said he had drawn it at the direction of President Mellen, and that at the time he did not know just what it was for, and added:

"As I understand the matter from what I learned afterward, Admiral Bowles went to Mellen and asked him for $1,000 for the purpose of retaining counsel in the matter of the right of the New Haven to retain its Long Island steamer lines. The bill had a clause which would prevent this. Mr. Mellen, some time later, told me to prepare the voucher for the payment to Admiral Bowles, which I did."

"Why was this payment made in this indirect manner?"

"What did De Knight do?"

"I do not know."

The witness, in answer to questions, then told of payments amounting to $750 to H. H. Wilson, an employe of the Boston & Maine Road and an official of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, for making reports on the esprit de corps of the road's employes. He said he thought Wilson had also given some advice as to how the road could improve its relations with employes.

Mr. Byrnes was asked what salary was paid to A. P. Russell, an assistant attorney in the Boston office.

"When I went to Boston he received $4,000, which later was raised to $6,000 or $7,000, as I remember."

"Did he do any confidential work?"

Mr. Byrnes said Russell did considerable work in the settlement of personal injury claims.

Often Paid Without Asking Why.

Many vouchers showing payments to Mr. Russell to cover personal expenses and for other purposes were exhibited, and the witness interrogated regarding them. He said he relied a great deal on Mr. Russell, had faith in him, and often made payments to him without demanding an explanation as to what they were for.

Mr. Byrnes was asked what relations Thomas F. Dolan had with Russell's office.

"Dolan at first was employed by me. He was a bright young man who came to me and asked for work. He received $25 a week. Vouchers were approved for his weekly salary."

"Why was he not put on the regular payroll?"

"I considered his employment temporary, and I never put temporary employes on the payroll."

"What did he do?"

"Well, he was an active, keen young man. He went around everywhere. He was ubiquitous. He went up to the Legislature, but had nothing to do with legislative matters. He reported to me many things that he heard of interest to the road."

"Do you recall a young woman stenographer in Russell's office who came to you to get money for Dolan?"

"I know nothing about that."

"Did Russell go to the Legislature daily?"

"No."

"Didn't Dolan go regularly?"

"Not in the sense that you seem to mean. I want to say that while I was in charge of the company's business in Massachusetts not a dollar was paid through me to influence legislation improperly. I had instructions from Mr. Mellen verbally and in writing not to spend a cent this way, and, so help me God, I never did," and Mr. Byrnes struck the table. This statement, he said, was in reply to slurs thrown out in certain quarters.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 12.—General Manager Henry C. Page of the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway, whose name was brought into the Interstate Commerce Commission inquiry into the affairs of the New Haven Road by the exhibition of a voucher showing payment to him of $435, in a statement to-day said the money was on a personal expense account.

"If the bills had been produced," said Mr. Page, "they would have shown a carefully itemized account of a trip of investigation I took for the New Haven in Petersham and other towns in that section where a trolley line was projected."

ANSWERS O'GORMAN ON TOLLS REPEAL

Hoke Smith Says Defense and Trade Value of Canal Requite Us for Building It.

BORAH ON WELLAND ROW

Canada Denied Us Tolls Remission Till We Penalized Her Vessels, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—A long set speech this afternoon by Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia in favor of the tolls repeal bill, a short statement in rebuttal by Senator Borah of Idaho, and a running fire of comment from Senators on various points of the controversy marked to-day's debate on the Sims repeal measure. Mr. Smith's address was announced as an answer to the vigorous criticism of the repeal bill recently delivered by Mr. O'Gorman of New York, and a full Senate listened attentively to him.

Mr. Smith's speech was largely a citation of texts and authorities in support of his general contention that the exemption of American coastwise shipping from tolls through the Panama Canal violated the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and that the exemption constituted a subsidy, which has always been opposed by Democratic statesmen. Discussing the canal from an economic point of view, Mr. Smith argued that the difference free tolls would make in the cost of transportation to the shipper would be inconsiderable.

Mr. Smith set forth the benefits to be derived by the United States from the canal, even with the exemption repealed. The point has been repeatedly put forward that under the British interpretation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty no advantages would accrue to the United States to compensate it for the enormous outlay the canal has already cost and will continue to cost for many years to come.

"When the question is asked, why did we build the canal, if we were not to give special advantage to our coastwise vessels," said Mr. Smith, "the reply is easy. The canal is a great measure of defense to the United States and to the interests of our people. It will make it practicable to consolidate the navy of the United States on the Pacific or the Atlantic Ocean. It will reduce the cost of transportation. It will facilitate trade, not alone between the coasts of the United States, but between the coasts of the United States and all parts of America. It will contribute to the growth of all America outside of the United States by the facilities it affords for ready communication from coast to coast. It can be made self-supporting, and finally a source of profit, and yet bring all these benefits to the United States."

Fling at O'Gorman's Anglophobia.

Mr. Smith taunted Mr. O'Gorman lightly for his alleged Irish antipathy to everything English. He quoted President Taft and his Secretary of State, Mr. Knox, as describing the exemption flatly as a ship subsidy. Mr. Smith was at some pains to make clear, either to his hearers or his supporters at home, that treaty obligations were necessary to international relations, and that the collapse of those relations would react directly to the destruction of international and industrial interests in the United States.

"Those who seek to restrict the meaning of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty by picking here a word and there a word in disregard of the entire tenor of the treaty," he continued, "merely disclose the unshakeable fact that the treaty intended to provide for the use of the canal by the citizens of the United States and the subjects of Great Britain and of other nations observing the rules prescribed. The Hay-Pauncefote Treaty is made a part of the title to the Canal Zone in the treaty of conveyance from Panama, and talk of terminating it from a legal standpoint is absurd. Termination of the treaty, would compel us to give up the canal unless we abandoned our attitude as a law-abiding nation and resorted alone to battleships and brute force to keep the property."

The contention of Mr. O'Gorman that the word "commerce" in the language of diplomacy meant "international commerce" and excluded coastwise traffic did not detain Mr. Smith. He cited a long list of authorities, most of whom gave some international significance to the word, but indicated clearly that they said "international" simply to stress the wider range of commerce as compared with trade.

Mr. O'Gorman had quoted Wharton's Law Dictionary, a recognized British publication, in support of his view, but Mr. Smith argued with some show of reason that even Wharton meant only that commerce was "far-reaching traffic."

Significance of Borah's Views.

A new interpretation of the controversy over the Welland Canal in the Cleveland and Harrison Administrations was brought forward by Mr. Borah. Everything that Mr. Borah has to say on the subject of tolls attracts close attention in Washington for political reasons.

The comment has often been made here that the President's tolls policy, like his policy on Mexico, is not popular throughout the country, and Mr. Borah's expressions are considered straws in the wind of public sentiment. He has Presidential aspirations, with the wish probably to bind together the radical and conservative Republican wings. His criticism of the Administration's tolls programme sounded to observers here like an anticipation of what Col. Roosevelt might say when he returns.

The Welland Canal controversy has been taken always as important evidence in favor of the British objection to tolls repeal. Senator Root of New York, in his famous speech, and Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, in one of his notes on the subject to Ambassador Bryce, said that the United States protested against Canada's remission of tolls through the Welland Canal for ships carrying cargoes on to Montreal, and that Canada promptly acknowledged her error and revoked the discrimination.

Mr. Borah went more deeply into the history of that controversy. The American protest in President Cleveland's time, he said, was ignored and no more attention was paid to the protest of President Harrison. It was only when the United States enacted a retaliatory law penalizing Canadian vessels through other border canals that the Canadian Government, by an order in council, removed the discrimination.

Senator John Sharp Williams viewed Senator Borah's attack on Canada's attempted bad faith in the Welland Canal incident as a sort of defense for the same action on the part of the United States in the Panama Canal incident. Senator Williams agreed with Senator Sutherland that the United States could not pay the tolls of its own commercial vessels.

"So we surrendered just so much of our sovereignty?" suggested Senator Borah.

"There never was a treaty entered into where a nation did not surrender a natural right," replied Senator Williams. "You speak of the canal as if you had a fee simple title to it, while as a matter of fact the very deed by which we got the canal—here the deed was a treaty—was full of conditions. We surrendered part of our sovereignty, yes, but not in the sense that you seek to make the American people believe we surrendered our sovereignty. We have surrendered none of our independence."

"Yet we surrendered part of our sovereignty over about the most important part of our territory we possess," insisted Senator Borah.

SHIFTING OUR ATTACHES.

President Sends Eight Diplomatic Nominations to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The President to-day made these nominations:

Warren D. Robbins of Massachusetts, now Second Secretary of the embassy at Mexico City, to be Secretary of the legation at Guatemala City, vice Hugh R. Wilson.

Frederic Ogden de Billier of the District of Columbia, now Secretary of the legation to Greece and Montenegro, to be Secretary of the legation at La Paz, Bolivia, vice Charles P. Stangeland.

William Walker Smith of Ohio, now Secretary of the legation and Consul General at Santo Domingo, to be Secretary of the legation and Consul General at Bangkok, Siam, vice Sheldon T. Crosby.

John C. White of Maryland, now Third Secretary of the embassy in Mexico City, to be Secretary of the legation and Consul General at Santo Domingo, vice William Walker Smith, nominated to be Secretary of the legation and Consul General at Bangkok.

Charles B. Curtis of New York, lately Secretary of the legation and Consul General at Santo Domingo, to be Second Secretary of the embassy of the United States at Rio de Janeiro, vice Franklin Mott Gunther, appointed Secretary of the legation at Christiania, Norway.

Louis A. Sussdorff, Jr., of New York, to be Third Secretary of the embassy of the United States in Paris, vice Warren D. Robbins, appointed Second Secretary of the embassy in Mexico City.

Hallett Johnson of New Jersey, now Third Secretary of the embassy in London, to be Third Secretary of embassy in Constantinople, vice H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, appointed Secretary of the legation to Paraguay and Uruguay.

Elbridge Gerry Green of Massachusetts, to be Third Secretary of the embassy of the United States in London, vice Hallett Johnson, nominated to be Third Secretary of the embassy in Constantinople.

PASS DIRECT PRIMARY BILL.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The House to-day, after a short debate, passed the Senate bill which is designed to furnish a temporary means of electing United States Senators by popular vote in those States in which the Legislatures have so far failed to put into effect the direct primary elections law. The bill is now ready for the signature of the President.

The plan proposed is similar to that which is utilized in the various States for the election of Representatives at Large in Congress.

SHORT BALLOT IDEAS SENT TO DR. BUTLER

TO APPOINT CONTROLLER

Gives Reasons Why Executive of a County Should Be Chosen by the Governing Body.

H. S. Gilbertson, Secretary of the New York Short Ballot Organization, has written a letter to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, in reply to the letter President Butler wrote to THE NEW YORK TIMES, printed last Saturday, concerning the subjects which, in President Butler's opinion, the Republicans should go on record as favoring at the forthcoming Constitutional Convention.

Secretary Gilbertson's letter has to do with the reforms incident to the short ballot which President Butler said he favored. He believes it would be unwise to make the Governor submit his appointments to the Senate for confirmation. He is also in favor of the Governor appointing the State Controller rather than have that office kept an elective one. In the matter of county government, Mr. Gilbertson believes that the Executive should be an appointive officer chosen by the governing body with sole reference to his qualifications for performing the duties of his office.

This is Mr. Gilbertson's letter:

May 11, 1914.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President Columbia University, 116th Street, City.

Dear Sir: We were very much pleased at your declaration in favor of the short ballot in the letter printed in last Saturday's TIMES. Apparently, however, there are one or two points upon which you have not come to a definite conclusion. Would you, therefore, bear with us if we present our point of view on these matters.

To begin with, we should deem it a great mistake if the new Constitution were to oblige the Governor to submit his appointments to Senate confirmation. This principle has been in operation very generally throughout the States, as well as in the Federal Government and in many of our cities. Its wide application, however, instead of commending it as a sound principle of control, has clearly failed to accomplish the object for which it was devised. The effect of confirmation by a deliberative body has always been to promote trades of legislation action against appointments.

Even so recently as in the Administration of Gov. Sulzer we have had a dramatic illustration of the workings of the confirmation idea. You will remember that the Senate successively turned down three excellent men who had been nominated for the post of Labor Commissioner. Owing to the lack of harmony between the Governor and the Senate, this office was for a long time vacant, and during this interim there occurred the disastrous Binghamton factory fire. Gov. Sulzer laid the blame on the Senate because of their failure to confirm his appointments.

Whether or not Mr. Sulzer's stand was well taken is beside the point. The plain fact is that he was given an opportunity to shift responsibility.

On the other hand, we have in favor of the system of independent appointment the example of New York City; for it must be admitted that, on the whole, the Commissioners of the various departments in this city have been of a fairly high type of men—such a type as the Mayor would not have selected had he been compelled to submit his judgment to revision by the Board of Aldermen. In New York City the responsibility for good or bad administration is squarely up to the Mayor.

Your attitude toward the Controller's office appears to be uncertain. Do you realize that this office is more important, both as to the breadth and far-reaching influence of its functions and as to the amount of patronage under its control, than all of the other elective State offices put together? For this reason alone the Controller should be appointed by the Governor. Otherwise our short ballot reform would only be half-way realized. The great argument for an elective Controller is the alleged need for an independent check upon the Administration. The importance of such a check is doubtless above question, but it is impossible to see why an appointive Controller or auditor could not check all the departments, with the exception of the Governor, quite as readily as if he were an elective officer. But the fact is that the Controller is very much more than an auditing or checking officer; he is the chief fiscal agent of the State, and since the big policies of the State are financial ones, it would seem the wise thing to vest their administration in the most conspicuous officer of the State, i. e., the Governor.

A serious objection to the election of the Controller is that people do not realize the administrative importance of the office and probably could not be persuaded to take a proper interest in it. Under such conditions it would be hazardous to give the Controller large discretionary power.

In the matter of county government, you are apparently not certain whether the Chief Executive should be appointed by the Board of Supervisors or elected by the people. There is a vast difference in principle between the two methods. An elective county executive must practically always be a man whose public experience is limited to the community in which he lives. The choice of the people must also be limited to a man who puts up a good appearance in an election campaign. Such a type of executive would probably, in most instances, be more or less ill-adapted to perform the duties of his office. If there is anything in the city manager plan of municipal government, then the conclusion is inevitable that the executive should be an appointive officer chosen by the governing body with sole reference to his qualifications for performing the duties of his office.' Such a method would give the counties the right to go outside of their own limits to select a county manager who could lay some claim to the title of expert.

It is not clear, also, why you seem to favor an elective Sheriff. This officer, especially in urban communities, has purely ministerial functions to perform. He is the agent of the courts in performing a variety of services incidental to the administration of justice, and nothing more. His former importance as the King's roustabout has almost completely disappeared.

We hope that the coming conference of the Republicans will take into consideration the foregoing points, as we believe them to be decidedly vital. Yours very truly,

H. S. GILBERTSON,
Secretary New York Short Ballot Organization.

ATTACKS FEDERAL BIRD LAW

Protecting Measure Is Denounced by Senator Reed as Unconstitutional

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Federal migratory bird law was denounced as unconstitutional in the Senate to-day by Senator Reed of Missouri.

"I don't believe there is a reputable lawyer in the United States who believes the law constitutional," said Senator Reed, "and I don't believe the Attorney General or the Secretary of Agriculture believes the law valid. Otherwise I don't see why they refuse to let it be tested."

Senator Reed said he had made three ineffectual attempts to get the Attorney General to test the law in the courts. The question was brough up when Senator Thompson of Kansas read into the record letters in support of the law.

NAVY BILL NOW $140,990,833

Senate Committee Adds $1,182,000 to House Measure—Below Estimates

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Naval Appropriation bill was reported to the Senate to-day by the Naval Affairs Committee with an increase of $1,182,000 over the bill as it left the House. In all the bill carries $140,990,833, or $3,500,000 less than the estimates for the coming year.

Exemption from tolls of battleships of all nations passing through the Panama Canal upon the occasion of the celebration of its opening is provided for in the bill.

Is the Air Pure in Your Refrigerator?

Freedom from the moisture, food odors, etc., which condense upon and contaminate the food in an ordinary refrigerator—is fully as important as low temperature. In a because of the Syphon System the air circulates very rapidly, passing over the ice so frequently that it deposits ALL its impurities in the ice chamber, where they pass off through the drain, and keeps the air in the food compartments pure, dry and cold (temperature 40°).

BOHN SYPHON REFRIGERATOR

These are not general statements. They are definite and can be proved by actual test. For instance, soda crackers left uncovered in the Bohn Refrigerator for days at a time will be as crisp as ever when taken out. Sulphur matches can be struck on any inside wall. No moisture or grime condenses on bottles. Try any of these tests in YOUR Refrigerator!

Model No. 43¼, Style C, size 36½x20½x56 inches, ice capacity, 150 pounds, price $56, is an exceptional value. Our very large line of Refrigerators meets every requirement of both size and price. Call or write for illustrated catalog.

DENIES MONOPOLY OF NEWS CAN EXIST

F. B. Noyes Outlines to National Newspaper Conference Attitude of Associated Press.

CO-OPERATIVE RIGHT CLEAR

LAWRENCE, Kan., May 12.—The attitude of The Associated Press on the question of so-called news monopoly was illuminatingly set forth in a paper by Frank B. Noyes read to-day at the National Newspaper Conference now being held here under the auspices of the University of Kansas. Mr. Noyes, who is editor of The Washington Star and President of The Associated Press, submitted his paper in the form of a letter, as follows:

Washington, May 7, 1914.

Mr. Merle Thorpe, University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kan.:

Dear Mr. Thorpe—You ask me, inasmuch as I cannot be with you in person, to write you my views on the question you are to discuss to-day, and this I am glad to do, though I am not at all sure that I correctly understand the meaning of the question. As you give it to me, it is divided into two parts:

First.—To what extent is a member of a press association entitled to a monopoly of news in a community?

My answer to this is that no member of any press association can under any conceivable set of conditions be "entitled" to a monopoly of news in a community. The question answers itself. As a matter of fact no such monopoly exists and as an equal matter of fact no such monopoly could exist. The news of the world, like the news of the vicinity, is open to all. It is utterly impossible to monopolize it.

If the question is intended to read, "To what extent is a member of a press association entitled to monopoly in a community of news gathered by the association of which it is a member?" a different question is presented. I can only deal with this as an individual who took part in the formation of The Associated Press, (the present organization.)

Our desire was to form a co-operative association of representatives of newspapers that should be the agency by which we could exchange news with each other and jointly collect news for our common use. We conceive that we have an entire right, morally and legally, to do this, just as much right as a paper in Philadelphia, a paper in Chicago, and a paper in Washington have a right to employ Richard Harding Davis to go to Vera Cruz and send dispatches for their joint use.

It is for us to decide, in our view, whether we will enlarge our group by the admission of new members—as a matter of fact, our present membership is very much larger than when we organized in 1900, though it now has only about one-third the daily newspapers of the country represented in its membership.

We have provided a method by which new members may be elected. My own view—and I have consistently acted on that view—is that a member should be elected when it is to the benefit of the association generally. This does not at all mean that I would admit every applicant. We want our members individually to be strong and solvent. It does not strengthen or benefit the organization to elect another member in a field that will not support another paper. I have also repeatedly refused to vote for an applicant for membership when I thought that his admission would tend to break down a competent news service.

Replies to Will Irwin.

I see by your programme that Will Irwin is to speak on this subject. I greatly regret that I will not have the pleasure of hearing him—if only for the purpose of correcting some of his misapprehensions as shown in a recent article that appeared in Harper's Weekly. I am sure, however, that Mr. Irwin will forgive me if I take this opportunity of pointing out to him where he is in error—at least from my point of view.

First—The success that was made of The Associated Press of Illinois under the leadership of Victor F. Lawson and Melville E. Stone was not all due to any marked superiority in news gathering. It was due to a determination that, so far as the members of that association were concerned, their news service should not be controlled by a private ownership—that it should, in fact, be gathered for and by the newspapers and controlled by them and non-profitmaking, and this is true of the present organization and is its basic principle.

Second—Mr. Irwin states that most of the members of The Associated Press hold what is known as "rights of protest." He is mistaken—only a small fraction of the members hold such rights.

Third—Mr. Irwin falls into a not surprising error, though it is rather surprising that, writing as a supposed expert, he should base an indictment on that error by asserting that the bond vote has controlled the election of the Board of Directors—as he picturesquely puts it, "the old crowd holds absolute and perpetual control. Nothing has even so much as shaken that control."

Very picturesque and very untrue. I suppose that I am in a position to know as much about the affairs of The Associated Press as Mr. Irwin. My belief is that the result of no election would have been different if the bond vote had been entirely eliminated. This is because no issue has been presented where the interests of the more important papers, who carry the burdens of the assessments, have come into conflict with the smaller papers. As a matter of fact when there have been contested elections the bond vote has been split up, just as the membership vote has.

At the annual meeting of the association, held on April 21, because of this assertion by Mr. Irwin I requested (as I had been renominated as a Director) that a report be made by the tellers of the vote by membership, excluding the bond vote, as, if it was true that I was not the choice of the membership and was maintained in office by the bond vote, when no issue existed between the larger and smaller papers, I should be given food for serious thought.

Membership and Bond Vote.

The report of the balloting was as follows, arranged according to the membership vote:

	Membership.	Bond.	Total.
Frank B. Noyes	400	3,376	3,776
W. L. McLean	369	3,462	3,831
Adolph S. Ochs	294	2,653	2,947
W. Y. Morgan	287	2,415	2,702
A. C. Weiss	273	3,312	3,585
C. D. Morris	166	1,669	1,835
A. C. Kessinger	113	466	579

Total members voting, 461.

The first five named were elected, and, as will be seen, the result would have been the same had there been no bond vote. For myself, I may say that I can see no evidence in receiving 400 out of 461 votes cast that the will of the majority is being trampled in the dust by the bondholders.

It is significant also of the width and depth of Mr. Irwin's error in this matter that Mr. Weiss of Duluth, who was re-elected, is not a bondholder at all, and neither is Mr. Morgan of Hutchinson, Kan., who was elected for his first term.

I will leave to the representatives of the other news services the heavy task of proving to you that The Associated Press has no monopoly of the news.

Coming to the second question, "Should not the competitor of such a publisher have the right to demand and receive the same news service at a reasonable cost and with the privilege of having the first cost to him rebated over a term of years?" I do not know what is meant by "having the privilege of having the first cost to him rebated over a term of years," and so cannot attempt an answer.

As to the first part of the question, I think that a competitor has as much right to demand and receive the same news service as he would to demand and receive the use of the other paper's presses, composing room, editors, reporters, and every other facility. Just as much right and no more. And that is absolutely no right at all.

Very sincerely,
FRANK B. NOYES.

Among the speakers to-day were Dr. Washington Gladden of Columbus, Ohio; H. F. Harrington of The Ohio State Journal, and Will Irwin.

Dr. Gladden outlined four great tasks for American journalism:

First, to teach people to avoid exaggeration and violent speech and to cultivate moderate and rational modes of expression.

Second, to resist the tendencies which dementalize democracy and which substitute the mob mind for the deliberate habit.

Third, to hold the popular judgment firmly to the truth that character and manhood and not money and popularity are the central values of human existence.

Fourth, to turn the thoughts of men more and more from the negative virtue of detecting and exposing the evil to the positive virtue of discerning and praising the good.

"I know of some newspapers," said Dr. Gladden, "that are doing much to bring to earth a reign of good will. They are disposed to discern the good and rejoice in it; they cultivate gracious speech and kindly judgment of their fellow-men. And yet I fear that it is true that in collecting and presenting the news of the day the habit which so largely prevails of fixing the attention upon the evils of society, of keeping the seamy side of life uppermost, of exploiting crime and vice and scandal furnishes to quite too large an extent the common notion of the function of journalism.

One of the speakers at the evening session was Oswald G. Villard of The New York Evening Post, who dealt with allegations that newspapers and news agencies suppressed news.

A World of Suspicion.

"If one could believe all that one heard," he said, "a true picture of the heads of the press would portray them perpetually behind the arras arranging some plot or other. We hear of agreements among newspapers to ignore this happening, to suppress that, and to vilify this or that defender of the rights of the people. In New York City, so deep are the clefts between the various newspapers that you could never possibly get their heads to sit down around a table, much less break bread together.

"Although the law has compelled us of the Metropolitan press to print the names of all the stockholders and bondholders for a year past, it did not surprise me to read an article in a current magazine by a distinguished citizen of Indiana to the effect that newspapers ought to be compelled to tell the influences behind them. I have so often heard the rumor that I have mortgaged myself to Wall Street, with the name and address of the banker, that I am surprised at nothing.

"Not if he should throw his private books open to a Bristow or a La Follette could a New York editor hope to down this entertaining fiction. He would only hear that his books were doctored, or that he was hiding behind somebody else's skirts, or that it was the point of view of the men he associated with that really did the mischief—so discredited are newspaper managers with certain sections of the people and certain cross—very cross—sections of the politicians.

"If you think I exaggerate, please bear in mind the bitter attacks on The Associated Press the present Winter has witnessed. It has been assailed as a monopoly, and, on one forum after another, attacked as an organized conspiracy to suppress every happening that affects Progress or Radicalism—with a capital P and R. Socialists, labor men, and Progressives alike denounce it because it does not 'carry' their propaganda. Negroes criticise it because it brings out of the South news only of their crimes, and never of their honorable achievements. Some Congressmen never fail to berate it when their other hobbies are for the moment exhausted.

"Curiously enough, the bona fide malefactors of great wealth equally denounce it as an association controlled by the mob, and, therefore, fearing to tell the truth about them. At least, this was the excuse offered by a bribe-giver who thought he was buying some New York newspapers for a trust; he merely wished to secure justice for his client, to get their side of a famous case into print—all this when the other side to the controversy was protesting that The Associated Press was being sold out to the trust.

"With The Associated Press it is truly a case of being damned if you do and damned if you don't. It is berated by Catholics for being subsidized by Protestants at the moment that anti-Catholics are sure that they have convincing proof that the head of The Associated Press draws a Post Office order for $268.75 a month from the Pope in Rome.

"No amount of iteration seems to make any body understand that if there are grave defects in The Associated Press, the fault lies with the 895 newspapers which comprise its membership; that it is a co-operative organization which makes no money profits, and is Argus-eyed in that each newspaper is watching the service, ready to make the telephone bells jingle if a happening is overlooked or any thing improper is put over the wires; that there are hundreds of honest newspaper men in The Associated Press, who would as soon sell their wives and children as to knowingly let any one use the service to grind an axe or feather his nest.

"It all avails not; the answer is: You can tell by the trend of it that it is capitalistic—as if there were not every shade of opinion in The Associated Press. Its very President is, I am told, a Socialist, at least in theory—but of what use is that? Every man with a propaganda to further is convinced, if his copy is rejected because it is argument or assertion, and not news, that he has tilted against the stone wall of corrupt wealth. I personally have examined one mare's nest after another, only to find that each was due to ignorance of the technique of the profession or of the facts. Most of them would never have been heard of had the suspicious ones gone to headquarters to inspect the records. It is only in the tenth or one-hundredth case that I have found that there was a genuine error. And it goes without saying that I have yet to learn of a constructive suggestion as to something better to take the place of The Associated Press."

BOY FORGER AGAIN ACCUSED

Caught Using Nicoll's Name, He Is Charged with Trying Anable's.

William H. Calder, an office boy, who was found guilty several months ago before Judge Foster, in General Sessions, of forging the name of Courtlandt Nicoll of Nicoll, Anable, Lindsay & Fuller, attorneys, of 31 Nassau Street, was held in $2,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate Krotel, in the Tombs Court, on a similar charge.

It is alleged that on April 20, 21, and 24 of this year Calder cashed three forged checks of $50 each at the Bank of the Manhattan Company. The name of Courtlandt Anable of the same firm was signed to each. On April 25 he came back with another $50 check, and the cashier tried to detain him until a policeman could be called, but he became suspicious and fled. He was arrested on Saturday night in a tango resort near Times Square.

When Calder's first case came up in General Sessions before Judge Foster he received a suspended sentence on account of his youth.

Two New Haven Cars Derailed.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 12.—Two cars on the train due here from New York at 10:25 this morning on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad left the tracks in the New Haven yard. No one was injured. Both tracks were blocked for three hours.

PLAN NEW TICKET ORDINANCE

Citizens' Committee to Help Aldermen Draw Theatre Regulation.

Following a conference yesterday between President McAneny and a committee of Aldermen, the proposed ordinance for the regulation of theatre ticket agencies and speculators which provided for the abolition of all such agencies and prohibited the sale of any ticket by a theatre with intent that such ticket should be resold, was withdrawn and a second ordinance to provide for regulation was decided upon.

Another conference will be held between representatives of the Aldermanic Committee, a citizens' committee, and representatives of the theatres to draw up another ordinance which will then be presented to the Alderman for their consideration.

The citizens' committee, which the Mayor appointed, consists of Adolph S. Ochs, Chairman; William D. Brush, Chairman of the General Welfare Committee of the Aldermen; Alderman W. Ferdinand Quinn, Arthur Train, attorney for the Authors' Society; George H. Bell, Commissioner of Licenses; William B. Crowell, Assistant Corporation Counsel, assigned to the Mayor's office; Oren Root, Michael Furst, Winthrop Ames, Augustus Thomas, and Francis Wilson, Chairman of the Actors' Equity Association.

HOWARD HULL A BANKRUPT.

Miss Anglin's Husband's Debts Are Judgments of Auto Victims.

Howard Hull, a playwright and magazine writer, and the husband of Miss Margaret Anglin, the actress, filed yesterday in the Federal District Court a petition in bankruptcy through his attorneys, Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall. He set down his liabilities at $2,878, consisting of two judgments against him in the Supreme Court for damages, one for $2,628, in favor of Mrs. Catherine Cooper for injuries received in an automobile accident, and the other for $250, in favor of John W. Cooper for the loss of the services of his wife. Mr. Hull said he had no assets.

The accident occurred on Sept. 4, 1912, as Mr. and Mrs. Hull were driving down Fifth Avenue in their automobile. Mrs. Cooper, who is a colored cook, crossed the avenue, going west, at Thirty-third Street. Mr. Hull's automobile also turned west, and ran into her.

A stay of thirty days was granted on the execution, which is just about up. Her lawyer said last night that Mrs. Cooper had one leg broken in two places, two bones in one hand and a rib fractured, and a cut on her forehead. She is still, he said, on crutches.

Sunday Meeting for Suffrage.

An entertainment and mass meeting in the interest of woman suffrage will take place at the Amsterdam Opera House, Forty-fourth Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, at 2:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch will be the Chairman, and the speakers will be John J. Murphy, Tenement House Commissioner; Timothy Healey, President of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen, and Rose Winslow, mill worker. There will be a vocal quartet and motion pictures.

PROMISES TO AMEND THE HOME RULE ACT

Asquith Says Supplementary Bill Will Be Passed, Even if No Agreement Is Reached.

REDMOND CAUSES A STIR

Makes Speech in Parliament Which Is Interpreted in Some Quarters as a Warning to Ulster.

LONDON, May 12.—Premier Asquith in the House of Commons to-day pledged the Government to introduce an amending bill to the Home Rule for Ireland measure in the hope of its passage by agreement between the parties.

If this offer were accepted, the Premier said, both the original Home Rule bill and the amending bill would become law practically simultaneously. This, he contended, was the only proper way to carry out any agreement settlement which might be reached.

The Prime Minister added that obviously, in order to take advantage of the provisions of the Parliament Act, no change could be made in the Home Rule for Ireland bill while it was in the committee stage, and therefore any debate during that stage would be pure waste of time. The Parliament Act provides that if any public bill be passed by the House of Commons in three successive decisions and be rejected or unacceptably amended by the House of Lords in each of those sessions it may become a law by receiving the royal assent, provided that two years have elapsed between the second reading in the first of the three sessions and the final reading in the third session.

In announcing that the third reading of the Home Rule bill on its third passage through the House of Commons would be taken before Whitsuntide, the Premier said:

"If, as I hope—and more than hope, I trust—we may bring diverse ideas together with a common object and with concerted discussion—not perhaps on the floor of the House, although ultimately on the floor of the House—we can arrive at a settlement. I am sure, as a matter of procedure, that that settlement must take the form of a supplementary bill.

"I have said I will never close the door on the possibility of any settlement. I am going a step further now than I have ever done before when I say on behalf of the Government that, while I shall ask the House of Commons to give the Irish Home Rule bill its third reading before Whitsun, the Government will make itself responsible for introducing amending proposals to that bill in the hope that a settlement by agreement may be arrived at in regard to matters immediately outstanding."

Mr. Bonar Law, the leader of the Opposition, who bitterly criticised the "gag" methods proposed by Mr. Asquith, and accused him of failing to redeem his pledges to reconstitute the House of Lords, said he was unable to share the Premier's optimism regarding the possibility of a settlement.

The crux of the situation, Mr. Bonar Law said, lay between the Premier and John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, as under the Government's system the House of Commons was powerless. The only alternatives open to the Government, the speaker declared, were the exclusion or the coercion of Ulster, now that the Cabinet had decided against an appeal to the people.

John Redmond remarked that the reception of Premier Asquith's proposals by the Opposition only emphasized the futility of trying to make advances to them.

Mr. Redmond said he sympathized most sincerely with the Prime Minister's hopes of an ultimate settlement. If those hopes were to be realized, he said, the best course would be the introduction of an amending bill. Mr. Asquith had declared, however, that even if all efforts to arrive at a peaceful settlement failed, it was still his intention to introduce an amending bill.

The Nationalist leader added that he must be allowed to say that this was a very serious decision to announce, and, for his part, he could not commit himself to approval of this course—certainly not approval at this moment, when pourparlers were supposed to be going on, and there was hope of reaching an ultimate peaceful settlement.

Mr. Redmond said he hoped that if an amending bill were introduced it would be to give effect to the agreement reached. If an amending bill were introduced after failure to reach an agreement, then he must hold himself absolutely free to deal with it when it arose.

Proceeding, Mr. Redmond complained that the Opposition's idea of a compromise was to receive everything they asked for and give nothing in return. He had as high an interest as Sir Edward Carson in a peaceful settlement, and, for one, he was prepared to run great risks and make great sacrifices, but the position in which the Opposition sought to place the Nationalists was neither fair nor honorable.

While the Nationalists desired a peaceful settlement, Mr. Redmond said, they were opposed to fresh offers at the present stage. The Nationalists, he remarked, were now consoling themselves with the fact that they were in the position of knowing that in a few weeks the triumph for which they and their fathers had spent their lives would be consummated.

An outburst of hearty cheering from the Ministerialists, which lasted two or three minutes, greeted Mr. Redmond's remarks.

Mr. Redmond's speech has created a sensation in political circles, but opinions differ as to its practical effect.

The present position is that the Home Rule bill will be sent to the Lords before Whitsuntide, the House of Commons having to-night voted Premier Asquith's proposals for hastening the remaining stages of the bill. Then, if no agreement is reached with the Opposition, Mr. Asquith will introduce an amending bill, enabling the Ulster counties to vote themselves out of the Home Rule bill for six years.

While some persons interpret Mr. Redmond's speech as a warning to the Government against further concessions to the Unionists, others interpret it as a warning to Ulster that, once the Home Rule bill is on the statute book, any further concessions can only be obtained by the consent of the Nationalists.

PORCELAIN AT CHRISTIE'S.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 12.—The collection of porcelain belonging to W. A. L. Fletcher of Shrewsbury was sold at Christie's to-day. The collection was originally formed by John Bolton of Windermere. It afterward passed into the possession of Annabella, Lady Boughey, who bequeathed it to Mr. Fletcher.

A pair of oviform vases, Kang-He, $2,100.

BIG FRENCH LOAN NEAR.

Amount to be $400,000,000—Bonds to be Liable to Income Tax.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, May 13.—A telegram to The Times from Paris says it is stated on good authority that the great French loan which the recent Government hesitated to authorize is now in course of preparation, and that it will consist of $400,000,000 in bonds guaranteed by the State.

The terms of the loan will be analogous to those of the State railway and will be liable to income tax.

It is not yet known whether the rate of interest will be 3½ or 4 per cent. It is anticipated that the loan will be floated at the end of next month or the beginning of July.

It appears that he Ministry of Finance has been at work on the proposition during the last few days, says the correspondent.

LONDON FAILURE AVERTED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 12.—A good deal of relief was caused on the Stock Exchange to-day by the knowledge that the large commitments of an outside operator had been taken care of by a powerful group, and the settlement in the general securities section was commenced under more cheerful conditions than had been expected.

This account, which had been causing considerable anxiety, is involving the Stock Exchange in a great deal of heavy liquidation. It included large blocks of Grand Trunks, Hudson Bays, and other Canadian securities, the amount of stock concerned being estimated at something like $25,000,000.

The group which has taken over the securities is understood to include the Bank of England, the Bank of Montreal, and Messrs. Robert Fleming. The arrangement of the account has been in progress for several weeks. It is the third of the big positions which were known to be in course of adjustment. Now that they are cleared out of the way there are no further troubles to be dealt with, so far as is known.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 12.—Good prices were realized to-day at the second session of the Roger Marx sale.

"Peace," a drawing by Puvis de Chavannes, was sold for $3,500. It was bought by the Marx executors as a gift to the Luxembourg in memory of M. Marx.

Two studies by Rodin, "The Kiss" and "Woman with a Thorn," brought $4,060 and $3,020, respectively.

AMERICAN ARTIST MAY FIGHT CRITIC

DUE TO BLOW AT A PARTY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 12.—The Latin Quarter was excited to-day by the prospect of a duel between Edgar Macadams, a New York sculptor, and Waldemar Georges, art critic of The Paris Journal.

The trouble between the two men arose on Saturday night at a studio party given by a prominent Paris painter, Kees van Dongen, which was attended by Paul Poiret, M. Flandrin, the painter; Mme. Marval, who painted the frescoes in the Théâtre des Champs Elysées; Arthur Cravan, nephew of Oscar Wilde; M. Ciacelli, the Futurist leader, and other well-known persons.

Mr. Macadams, it is said, objected to M. Georges's attentions to a young woman, and asked him to desist. M. Georges paid no attention to the request. Macadams, who is the champion amateur boxer of the Latin Quarter, then struck him in the jaw.

According to witnesses, Georges was unconscious for five minutes, and then presented his card to Macadams and was assisted from the room. He visited M. van Dongen to-day, demanding Macadams's address. Macadams was notified of Georges's intentions at his studio, where he was working on a bust of Henry Beach Needham. He immediately sent for Arthur Cravan and George Shepherd, a Virigina painter, who agreed to act as his seconds. Macadams, in talking to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, said:

"The young woman asked me to interfere, and I told Georges I didn't like him and invited him outside. He continued his misbehavior, so I hit him. If he won't fight with fists in the American style, and it's my choice of weapons, let them be Colts at a distance of five yards."

Georges, seen by the correspondent in his elegant apartment in the Boulevard Saint Michel, said:

"He struck me a cruel, painful blow. In my country, Poland, people do not hit like that. I was as one asleep for fifteen minutes. But he will hear more of it. I have consulted my seconds. Blood shall flow!"

SURPRISED BY CANADIANS.

London Press Much Interested in Attacks on Teck's Appointment.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, May 13.—Considerable interest and surprise has been aroused here by reports of Canadian criticism of the appointment of Prince Alexander of Teck to succeed the Duke of Connaught as Governor General of Canada on the ground that the selection indicates a disposition to regard the Governorship of the Dominion as an appanage of the British royal family.

The Times prints extracts from Canadian papers, particularly comment in The Ottawa Citizen, approving the speech of Mr. Emmerson, ex-Railway Minister, in protest against a tendency to establish anything resembling a "hereditary principle."

Passage Through Canal Delayed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, May 12.—On account of the delay in testing the new pontoon bridge at Paraiso, the passage of the steamship Pennsylvania of the Pacific Mail Line through the canal is not likely to take place before next week.

Unless You Act at Once--TODAY

You run the risk of missing the last chance to get an indispensable book at a price which is only possible because of the exceptional circumstances of its publication. You can, of course, defer the matter and buy later on at the higher price. More than 60,000 other persons have acted in the matter and have bought it at the low prices. The time you may give today to investigating this work will be time well spent. You may, or may not, decide to buy now. But if you do buy, it will be at a substantial saving, and you will have the added satisfaction of acquiring a thoroughly good book at a price which is really a great bargain. On May 28th the present prices will be advanced in all bindings.

What Is This Extraordinary Book?
What Is the Secret of Its Success?
Why Is It Indispensable to All?

1. THE new Encyclopaedia Britannica is an extraordinary book because it deals with the whole field of human life, learning and achievement in a manner commensurate with the complicated needs of the present day. The world is so big, human interests so diverse, progress so astonishing, research so unrelenting, activities in every direction and in all lands so pressing that no ordinary book can do justice to them. The new Encyclopaedia Britannica contains 41,000 articles and 44,000,000 words of text. A smaller work cannot possibly cover the ground adequately, nor can any collection of 500 separate books cover it.

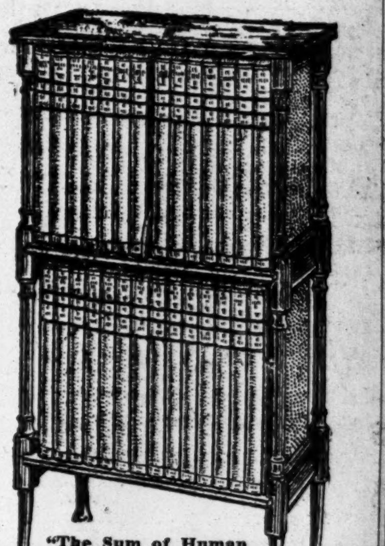
When you buy the Britannica, therefore, you buy quantity, but the price you pay for it (until May 28th) is only a little more than three cents a thousand words.

2. THE success of the new Britannica is due to the fact that it was written, not by "hack" compilers, refurbishing old material taken from other books, but by recognized authorities; by men of action, men of learning and practical experts—by men whose names are known for ability, scholarship and original work in their respective fields. What they tell you in the new Britannica you can depend on. This is the reason that people go to this work to verify what they read elsewhere. It has often been called the "court of last resort." It is a vast storehouse of certified knowledge—certified by the signatures attached to the articles.

When, therefore, you buy the new Britannica, you buy not only quantity but quality as well.

3. IT is an indispensable book—to the worker in any calling, to the writer, the thinker, the professional man, the home-maker, or to the young, because they find that they can go to it with the comfortable feeling that it will not fail them in any reasonable demand they may put upon it. The man who owns the Britannica need not experience the embarrassment of having to say "I do not know." He can now always say, when in doubt, "I know where to find out."

The service the work affords to the information-seeker, or to the man who wishes to "read up" an entire subject, is little short of amazing, and this is best appreciated by those who try to put it to good use.



"The Sum of Human Knowledge," 29 vols., 41,000 articles, 44,000,000 words of text, printed on India paper. Each volume one inch thick.

The Complete Set Sent All At One Time; the balance you can pay in practically any way you like.

Until May 28

You can purchase the "ideal" Encyclopaedia at a Substantial Saving, $29 to $50 less than it will then cost.

If you order at once, you will be sure of prompt delivery, but the demand for the work is now so great that very soon all new applications for sets will have to go on a waiting list.

1,000 Sets a Week

are being delivered to new subscribers, and our daily orders have been more than doubled within 30 days.

Another printing (5,000 sets) is now coming off the press, but bound copies of these cannot possibly be ready until after the end of the sale.

The New
Encyclopaedia Britannica

29 volumes, 41,000 articles, 44,000,000 words of text, the one great work of all human knowledge, superseding and displacing all other editions and all other works of reference.

The "Ideal" Encyclopaedia—because

It is easy to buy—counting quantity alone, the cheapest book you can purchase,—and counting quality, too, so cheap that there is no comparing it with anything else you could buy. You can pay as little as $5 down and make the remaining payments in nearly any way you like.

It is easy to house—a compact book, printed on India paper, so that its 44,000,000 words are contained in less than two cubic feet of space, only 31 inches of shelf room.

It is easy to handle—each volume, though it contains as much letter press as 15 ordinary books, is only an inch thick, weighs a little more than a couple of monthly magazines and may be held comfortably in one hand.

It is easy to consult—to get a quick answer to any question—an elaborate index gives you the exact whereabouts of every item you want.

It is easy to read for study or amusement, being interestingly and attractively written by masters of style.

BERT HANSON HARSH TO JOS. WASSERMAN

Bingham's Deputy Testifies That Policeman's Reputation Was Bad.

CAFE OWNER SAYS HE PAID

The character of Joseph Wasserman, formerly a member of the police squad assigned to ex-District Attorney William T. Jerome's office to raid gambling houses, was again discussed freely in the Bronx County Supreme Court before Justice Brady yesterday in the trial of Wasserman's $100,000 libel suit against the Bronx Home News Publishing Company. Wasserman is now drawing a police pension for disability.

Bert Hanson, Third Deputy Commissioner under Police Commissioner Bingham, and recently appointed a Deputy Attorney General by President Wilson, said he knew Wasserman subsequent to 1908, and that his reputation was bad, according to what he had gathered from conversations with various persons. He recalled that Wasserman had been placed on trial in his term of office, but he could not remember the details of the case.

He knew nothing of Commissioner Bingham's having tried "to get Wasserman," he said, when questioned by M. L. Heidenheimer, attorney for Wasserman. He said the Commissioner had merely ordered an investigation of Wasserman and certain other members of the special squad then being used by Jerome in his gambling raids.

Israel Silverburg, who owned a café at 56 Second Avenue in 1904 and 1905, testified that Wasserman frequented the place and had demanded $35 a month, which, the witness said, he paid. He formed a partnership with "Jack" Sullivan, who has since figured in the Rosenthal case, he said, and they paid Wasserman $35 a month for eight or nine months.

Samuel Weiss of 110 West Twenty-seventh Street, who said he had worked in several resorts operated by Jacob Hertz, husband of the Rosie Hertz who recently was sentenced for keeping a disorderly house, testified that Wasserman used to visit two of the places of the Hertz couple, drink with the proprietors, and rest there.

Timothy McAuliffe, a Lieutenant of police attached to the Westchester Station, said that when he was roundsman seven years ago he met Wasserman drinking in a saloon of Eugene McGuire at 138th Street and Third Avenue, and that Wasserman boasted of being able to make more in a week than the $1,500 a year McAuliffe earned as roundsman. He told of a fist fight with Wasserman later, and said he knew Wasserman's reputation to be bad. He had been assigned by Commissioner Bingham to investigate Wasserman, he said, but had no orders to "get" him.

Called by the defense, Police Capt. William H. Shaw and Capt. Charles A. Place told of Wasserman's service in 1906 and 1908 in the Fifth Street Station. Capt. Place said Wasserman made many arrests in disorderly house cases, that he was, in fact, "a tyrant to disorderly houses." William C. Cruse, a retired Police Captain, and Policeman Jost Ruth gave similar testimony, Ruth adding that Rosie Hertz once told him Wasserman was "a tough man and wouldn't allow anybody to make a living."

Policeman John H. Butler, now of the Lenox Avenue Station, and formerly detailed to District Attorney Jerome's staff, testified that the special squad never blackjacked any one. He testified that Commissioner Bingham had asked him to make an affidavit saying he had seen Wasserman take money. He refused, he said, despite Bingham's threat to put him on the sidewalk. Subsequently he was reduced by Bingham. He insisted that he had never seen Wasserman take money.

William C. Langdon, formerly private secretary to District Attorney Jerome, testified to witnessing a raid Wasserman made on an alleged gambling room in Willett Street, in which Wasserman was said to have drawn a revolver and used vile language. Langdon said he had seen no revolver drawn and heard no vile language, and that no member of the squad had drawn a blackjack.

"They were brave men," said the witness, "and I admire every one of them."

He said Wasserman's reputation was good.

The last witness, George H. Chatfield, who had charge of the school census in 1910, testified that Wasserman was engaged in making the census and did his work efficiently.

The trial will continue to-day, when former District Attorney Jerome and Chief Inspector Max Schmittberger may be called as witnesses for Wasserman.

KILLED SELF AND CHILDREN.

Demented Mother Then Set Fire to Her Pearl River Home.

Special to The New York Times.

PEARL RIVER, N. Y., May 12.—After a thorough investigation of the mysterious fire which partly destroyed the home of Edward Kreger at 5 o'clock last night, and was supposed to have caused the death of his wife, Mrs. Laura Kreger, and their children, Clifford, aged 4, and Elizabeth, 7, Coroner Theodore Semendinger of Congers reached the conclusion to-night that Mrs. Kreger killed the children, set fire to the house, and then committed suicide.

The bodies of Mrs. Kreger and her son, which were found in a bedroom on the second floor, where the fire started, were so badly burned that it was difficult to determine the cause of death. A necktie was found tightly wrapped about the child's neck, however. The daughter's body was stuffed in a trunk in the attic, and the flames did not reach her. There were indications that she had been killed also by winding a necktie about her neck.

Dr. R. R. Felter of Pearl River and Dr. George A. Leitner of Sparkhil, the Coronoer's physicians, in their report to the Coroner expressed the opinion that the children had been strangled. They learned that Mrs. Kreger had suffered from melancholia for two years.

GIFTS TO BLIND LIGHTHOUSE

Donations of $125,000 Bring Fund Up to $245,000.

It was announced last night by Arthur Williams, Chairman of the committee which is obtaining the $300,000 fund for the Lighthouse for the Blind, at 111 East Fifty-ninth Street, that two large subscriptions had just been received by Joseph H. Choate, President of the Lighthouse Association. One was for $100,000 and the other for $25,000. Neither donor was willing to have his name made public. This makes the total sum obtained by the committee in its four weeks' campaign so far $245,000, and it is expected that the rest of the $55,000 can be obtained within a week.

"The generosity with which the public has come to our aid," said Mr. Williams last night, "is due principally, I think, to the universal affection and admiration for Mr. Choate; and in no small measure, also, to the untiring efforts of Miss Winifred Holt, Secretary of the committee. Mr. Choate's letter, which was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES a few days ago, has been the direct cause of a number of contributions, some of them from outside of the city. One check for $500 came to us with the statement that Mr. Choate's letter had prompted the donor, a lady of Bridgeport, to contribute to the fund. The money now being raised will be used first of all to pay off the remainder of the mortgage on the Lighthouse property, which has now been reduced to about $25,000. After that the $15,000 of floating indebtedness will be canceled, and the rest will be used as floating capital and to form the nucleus of an endowment fund."

Last year, it is said, the workmen of the Lighthouse earned in its workshops or in their own homes $27,000, which was paid them as wages for work by the corporation. It is estimated that this year the same persons, working for private employers and with the added benefit of a year's experience, can earn three times as much. Typewriting, basketmaking, and weaving are the principal occupations which the Lighthouse teaches.

JAIL FOR AGED SOLDIER.

Veteran of 78, Owes $3,000 and Has Nothing but His Pension.

Broken in health and with a $3,000 judgment against him, which must be paid, if at all, from his civil war pension, Robert H. Waldron, 78 years old, who was wounded several times while fighting for the flag, now faces a term in the Ludlow Street Jail—a "common jail," as he calls it.

The Collingswood Realty Company recently got a $3,000 judgment against Waldron. He was cited to appear in supplementary proceedings, and when he failed to appear he was fined $250 for contempt. Waldron was unable to pay, and Justice Giegerich decided that he must go to jail until the money is forthcoming.

"I am broken financially and physically," the old man pleaded. "I have been ill for months, and my pension is my sole resource."

It was suggested that some friend might help Waldron out of his dilemma, but the old man was not cheered. "I know of no one who can," he said.

Carr Not a Regimental Candidate.

In an article printed last Monday in THE TIMES concerning the probable admission to the National Guard of the New York Provisional Regiment of Infantry, an organization of colored men, it was said that C. Franklin Carr was a candidate for Colonel of the regiment. Mr. Carr is at present Acting Adjutant of the regiment. He informed THE TIMES yesterday that he was not a candidate for any office in the regiment.

NO COURT FAVORS FOR CASSIDY'S MEN

ACCUSED BY YOUNG WIFE

Case Hushed Up Till Woman Suffrage Party of Queens Became Interested.

Justice Garretson ordered the arrest yesterday of James Heffron and Harry Scanton, who were indicted by a Queens County Grand Jury last month on complaint of Mrs. Clara Ellert, 17 years old, who charged that she was lured into Joe Cassidy's Democratic Club house in Long Island City on Dec. 18 of last year. Heffron was arrested soon after and it is expected that Scanton will be found this morning.

Justice Garretson's order followed a motion made by District Attorney Matthew J. Smith in which he asked the court to dismiss the indictments on the ground that the evidence submitted to the Grand Jury was insufficient.

In his decision denying the motion Justice Garretson cited the fact that the District Attorney made the motions before the apprehension and arraignment of the accused men. While the court held that the District Attorney was entirely within his rights in making a motion of that kind, he added:

"After careful reading of the minutes of the Grand Jury I am of the opinion that the exercise of sound judicial discretion requires a denial of these motions.

"A further reason for the prosecution of the indictments to trial is that there seem to be circumstances connected with the matters upon which the indictments are based which should be publicly disclosed to the end that the administration of the criminal law in this county may not be subjected, for lack of knowledge, to unjust imputation or criticism."

Heffron and Scanton are well known around the courts and in Joe Cassidy's clubhouse just across the way from the Court House. Ever since Mrs. Ellert's story became public last Winter it has been openly charged that some mysterious influence was preventing Mrs. Ellert from getting before the Grand Jury. She told her story to County Judge Burt J. Humphrey in the presence of her husband and District Attorney Smith last December, and no action was taken until finally the Woman Suffrage Party of Queens, headed by Mrs. Alfred J. Eno of Jamaica, took up the case.

An attempt was made to have Mrs. Ellert tell her story to the March Grand Jury without success, and finally Judge Humphrey specifically charged the April Grand Jury to investigate the charge. The matter was opposed by District Attorney Smith, who said the case had been presented to the March Grand Jury, which failed to indict, but as no minutes of the investigation were forthcoming Judge Humphrey directed the April Grand Jury to proceed, and it returned indictments against both men. Judge Humphrey transferred these indictments to the Supreme Court, and then no effort was made to apprehend the accused until yesterday, when the District Attorney's motion to have the indictments dismissed was denied by Justice Garretson, who ordered the arrest.

Heffron is 26 years old. He was brought to the Court House shortly after the noon recess and arraigned before Justice Garretson. Through his counsel, Edgar F. Hazelton, he pleaded not guilty, and John P. Hicks became his surety on a bond of $2,000. It is said that Scanton's whereabouts are known and that he will be in court this morning.

Mrs. Ellert is 17 years old. She is the wife of Frank Ellert of Richmond Hill, and according to her story she was decoyed from the witness room attached to the office of the District Attorney in December last by Heffron and Scanton. She says she was taken first to the Court Square Hotel and then to the top floor of Cassidy's clubhouse under the pretense that the men would get her a lawyer to help her husband, who, at the time, was in the Queens County Jail on suspicion of being implicated in a robbery of which he was later proved innocent.

When her husband was released from jail the week following she told him of the attack, and together they visited Judge Humphrey, who called the District Attorney into his chambers, where Mrs. Ellert told what had taken place.

In an interview at the time Judge Humphrey said he was shocked to think that any woman who called at the Court House on business could be taken out and ill treated.

District Attorney Smith says he was justified in moving to dismiss the indictments because the evidence given by Mrs. Ellert is contradictory and lacks corroboration, and he would not be warranted in putting the county to the expense of a trial which would result in an acquittal.

BIDS FOR CANAL ST. SUBWAY

Underpinning and Foundation Co. Asks $1,815,000.

In spite of the difficulties which are expected in constructing the new B. R. T. subway under Canal Street in consequence of the character of the soil and the fact that a waterway once ran along this thoroughfare, it is probable that the section will be built under the cut-and-cover system, which has been used in other parts of the city. The Public Service Commission advertised for bids by that method and also by tunneling.

The bids were opened yesterday and it was found that seven contractors had bid on the cut-and-cover plan and only two on the tunneling plan. The lowest of the cut-and-cover bidders was the Underpinning and Foundation Company, at $1,815,000. The lowest offer for tunneling was by the Degnon Contracting Company at $2,485,000. It is expected that the contract will go to the Underpinning and Foundation Company, which has made rapid progress on its section of the Broadway subway.

COURT HOUSE BOARD REPORT

Has Paid Out $6,492,278 Toward Getting a New Building.

The report of the Court House Board for the year 1913 shows that in the last two years the city has been called upon to expend $6,492,278.87 through its activities toward a new Court House. Of this $6,243,668.35 was for property which has been bought and $54,821.84 for interest on the awards.

The board's office cost $12,094.86 last year, and the acquisition of the site, besides the $45,000 paid to the three Commissioners of Estimate and Appraisal, added $85,761.46. To clear part of the Court House site has cost the city $3,329.08, and the expense incurred for the plans now proposed for the building in 1912-13 was $57,819.98.

WARNING OF NEW SWINDLE.

Barge Office Officials Tell of Trunk Fraud Upon Foreigners.

The immigration officials at the Barge Office at the Battery give warning against a new swindle.

Mrs. Darius Paraskwopoulos of 78 Catharine Street called at the office yesterday and said that she had paid $1 for a trunk that was waiting there for her. When told that there was no such trunk, and that she had been swindled, she became voluble in Greek.

She was followed by three Italians who did not speak English, who said they had paid for trunks that did not exist.

Barge Office officials said that the swindlers, by some plan unknown to them, got information from the other side of persons expecting friends, and used it to collect fees on trunks and boxes that might be expected.

BETH ISRAEL BUYS NEW HOSPITAL SITE

TO MOVE AFTER 25 YEARS

New Home to Have Every Modern Device—Must Wait a Year for Leases to Expire.

A large plot in the Second Avenue hospital district was purchased yesterday by the Beth Israel Hospital for a new building to be from twelve to fifteen stories high. The cost of the new structure in addition to the land will represent an investment of about $1,000,000. The hospital is now at Cherry and Jefferson Streets.

The property acquired includes a frontage of 95 feet on Livingston Place opposite Stuyvesant Square, taking in the five old four-story private residences from 12 to 16, inclusive. The four houses, from 13 to 16, were bought from Winthrop P. Rutherfurd as executor of the old Stuyvesant and Rutherfurd estates. The house at 12 was acquired from Charles J. Nunan. In addition, a frontage of 50 feet was also acquired at 322 and 324 East Seventeenth Street, from Mabel Minaldi. The combined plot has an area of about 14,000 square feet and forms an "L" around the old Stuyvesant apartment house at the southeast corner of Livingston Place and Seventeenth Street.

The hospital will not get possession of the property until the existing leases expire on May 1, 1915. The old buildings will then be torn down. Plans are being prepared for the new building, which will be equipped with all of the modern appliances for surgical and medical work. There will also be a large dispensary.

Louis H. May & Co. acted as the brokers for the hospital in accumulating the plot, and Mr. Rutherfurd was represented by J. Edgar Leaycraft. One block below this new hospital plot, near Fifteenth Street is the Woman's Hospital.

The Beth Israel Hospital has occupied its present quarters on the lower east side for nearly twenty-five years. In addition to the large five-story building at the northwest corner of Jefferson and Cherry Streets, it also owns the adjoining structure, giving the hospital the entire block front on Jefferson Street between Monroe and Cherry Streets.

The demands upon the hospital have increased so rapidly that the Trustees have been looking for a suitable site for a larger and better equipped building for more than a year.

The Beth Israel Hospital was founded in 1890. At present it has more than 150 free beds and maintains a large dispensary. Joseph H. Cohen is President, Arnold Herrmann, Treasurer; Melville J. Scholle, Secretary, and Louis J. Frank, Superintendent.

The contracts for the purchase of the new property were signed last night. The Committee on Site consisted of Isaac L. Phillips, Chairman; Meyer Vessel, Vice Chairman; Abraham Nelson, Secretary, and Morris Asinof, Harry Fischel, Leon Kamaiky, Samuel G. Lamport, Reuben Sadowsky, Julius Schwartz, and Louis S. Stroock.

The selection is regarded as excellent as it faces a park with a private street in front and is in a quiet neighborhood.

The new building will accommodate 500 patients. A special feature will be that in addition to accommodations for the rich and the poor provision will be made for persons of moderate means.

The present hospital at Cherry and Jefferson Streets will not be closed after the new hospital is opened to the public, but will be maintained for people of the lower east side.

Son Will Inherit $59,000 if Out of the Marine Service When 35.

Patrick Francis McGowan, formerly President of the Board of Aldermen and of the Board of Education, was worth $80,372 when he died, on April 6, 1913, according to an appraisal of his estate filed yesterday. The largest beneficiary under his will is his son, Francis P. A. McGowan, who is to receive $2,061 when he reaches the age of 30, provided he proves himself worthy of the bequest, and $59,187 when he is 35, if by that time he is discharged from the United States Marine Service.

If, in the opinion of Father John D. Roach, the son is unworthy of receiving the $2,061 bequest on his thirtieth birthday, the money is to be turned over to the Society of St. Vincent de Paul.

Mr. McGowan's interest in the firm of P. F. McGowan & Co., underwear manufacturers, was appraised at $7,628.

SIEGEL PROMISES TO RETURN AT ONCE

Tells His Counsel by Wireless He Will Come Home on Same Ship on Which He Sailed.

DETECTIVES TO WATCH HIM

Henry Siegel, the indicted merchant and banker, who sailed on Saturday on the steamship Olympic of the White Star Line for Plymouth, sent a wireless message yesterday to his counsel, Stanchfield & Levy, saying that he would return on the Olympic. His counsel say he will return sooner if it is necessary. The message came in reply to one sent to Siegel by the lawyers, instructing him to hold himself in readiness to sail for this country as soon as they notified him to do so.

Late yesterday afternoon, after the adjournment of the Becker trial, District Attorney Whitman had a long conference with Justice Seabury on the Siegel situation. It was learned at the Criminal Court Building that no warrants had been issued for the arrest of Siegel, and that no attempt would be made to intercept him unless he tried to leave England It was said that detectives would watch him throughout his stay in England.

Lemuel E. Quigg, counsel for Siegel in the divorce action started by his wife, Mrs. Marie Vaughn Siegel, said yesterday that he learned a month ago of Siegel's desire to visit his daughter in London.

Siegel asker him, Mr. Quigg asserted, if he was at liberty to make the trip after receiving letters from his daughter urging him to visit her.

"I did not advise him to go," said Mr. Quigg, "and I did not advise him not to go, but I did tell him that he was at liberty to go anywhere he wished to, and his right to do so was upheld by an opinion expressed by Justice Blanchard in the Supreme Court yesterday.

"Mr. Siegel has been instructed by Mr. Stanchfield to hold himself in readiness to return immediately at the direction of his counsel, and there isn't a doubt that he will be back when he is wanted by the District Attorney. He will have ample time to make a brief visit to the home of his daughter and then get back here before his case comes to trial, because six days will be required to empanel a special jury after the District Attorney has given notice that he will call one."

Arguments on a motion for a change of venue in the cases of Siegel and Vogel were heard by Justice Blanchard yesterday morning. The case was opened by John B. Stanchfield, who said that it would be his burden to show whether there was in the mind of the court a suspicion that there might not be a fair and imparial trial as a result of the facts presented in his argument.

Mr. Stanchfield then reviewed the Siegel-Vogel failure and the subsequent developments. His clients, he said, employed nearly 10,000 persons, who were affected by the failure. In addition to these, there were 15,000 bank depositors, and 8,000 business creditors, who were affected directly by the failure of the Siegel institutions. Through them, influence might be extended over a group of more than 200,000 persons in this community, the lawyer asserted.

Mr. Stanchfield then presented in evidence a large scrapbook, with clippings, editorials, and cartoons, covering the Siegel-Vogel failure, and he contended that the public mind had been inflamed by "the bitterness and vituperation of the press," and that this feeling of resentment had waxed so strong at times as to result in riots—one of which was quelled in a public school auditorium only when the janitors turned out the light and turned on the fire hose, and another was brought to an end in the Federal Court Building only by the timely appearance of the United States Marshall and his deputies. He said also that the public statement issued by Mrs. Siegel had helped to inflame the ill feeling against his clients.

District Attorney Whitman, in an affidavit presented by Mr. Train, said: "In my opinion, there exists at the present time no such popular prejudice against these defendants that they cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial in this county. I shall within a few days move for a special jury to try the defendants upon one of the indictments herein.

"While there has been widespread comment, it has been held by the courts of this jurisdiction that this is insufficient to prevent an accused from obtaining a fair and impartial trial, unless there exists in addition thereto a real prejudice in the community arising from a state of public excitement.

"The collection of newspaper clippings contained in the scrapbook filed by the defendants with the motion papers is composed to a large extent of merely news items, in no way expressive of the guilt or innocence of the said defendant. Many of the clippings contain plain and unvarnished statements of facts. It is a natural thing for newspapers in a city like New York to publish facts about a man who is well known in the community.

"If prejudice exists against these defendants in the City of New York it must exist throughout the entire State, as the creditors of these defunct institutions are represented in every county."

A schedule was submitted by Mr. Whitman showing that the creditors of the old Simpson-Crawford Company were to be found in nearly fifty different towns and cities in New York State. Then his statement continues:

"There never has been presented to a jury in this or in any other county in the State of New York a case involving such difficult and confusing technical proof as that involved in the presentation of the cases against these defendants; and to procure a jury which can comprehend the facts and form an intelligent judgment thereon it is necessary to procure jurymen from the most intelligent class in the county. In my opinion, in no other part of the State of New York could a jury be selected for the trial of these issues where men of the class from which a jury must be drawn are not to a great extent conversant with the facts as published in the newspapers." Justice Blanchard reserved decision until this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

PRESIDENT TO SEE WALL ST.

He Will Attend Business Men's Parade There on May 23.

President Wilson is expected to review the parade of the Lower Wall Street Business men's Association on May 23. Application, for the permit to parade was made yesterday to Commissioner Woods. The parade is to start at 1:30 P. M. Previous to the start there will be an exhibition of old prints and Colonial documents at 91 and 93 Wall Street. A reception to the President at 12:30 P. M. will be followed by a luncheon. Mayor Mitchel also will be present. The parade will be through Wall Street, thence to Pearl Street and Broad Street to Fraunces Tavern.

During the ceremonies following a visit to the site of the old Coffee House, President Wilson will seal a bronze casket containing copies of famous historical letters, the official programme of the day's events, a history of the lower section of Wall Street, and sketches of the societies and associations participating. This casket will be given into the custody of the New York Historical Society and is not to be opened until the year 2014. The exercises will close with the unveiling of a commemorative tablet by a young woman descendant of Isaac Low, whose maids of honor will be young women descendants of Alexander Macdougal, James Duane, and John Jay.

O'Gorman's Stand on Suffrage.

The report printed yesterday of the visit of Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse to United States Senator O'Gorman gave an erroneous impression of Senator O'Gorman's attitude on the woman suffage question. He did not say that he approved the movement. In the course of conversation, however, he said he was not entirely lacking in sympathy with it, but he did not express indorsement.

FROM HOTEL CLERK TO RICH MINE HEAD

WASTED ONE PATRIMONY

Earned Another $1,000, Then Forgot That He Was Poor—Sister New Benefactor.

When James A. Rogers left the Belmont last night and walked over to the Grand Central Terminal to board a train for Montreal, the clerks at the hotel felt free of the promise of silence imposed upon them about two weeks ago, and chorused good wishes for "Jim" and hopes that he would enjoy the good fortune that had lately come to him.

Two weeks ago Rogers was on the information desk in the big hotel, at a salary which could not have been more than $25 a week. To-day he is the owner of $150,000 in cash and securities, and the managing Director of an important Canadian coal company. How he jumped in such a short time from comparative poverty and insignificance to affluence and position sounds like a modified version of "The Prodigal Son," mixed with a paragraph from "The Arabian Nights," and a selected excerpt from the life of some American captain of industry.

Rogers is a Canadian, but you wouldn't know it by any difference of speech or bearing. When he was twenty-one, which was about eight years ago, he was put in possession of a fortune of $60,000, which had been left in trust for him. He proceeded to spend it. It took him only two years, and at the end of that time he was a physical wreck.

They sent him into the Canadian mountains, and for a year or so he devoted himself to repairing an almost broken constitution. The ambition to do something for himself landed him in New York one day looking for a job. The best he could get was a place as a sort of office boy in the accountant's office at the Belmont. However, he took his work seriously, learned bookkeeping, became a clerk, and then got a job in the front office of another hotel. He got on well, and the second Summer he was here seized a chance to help run a Summer hotel, and came back to New York in the Fall with $1,000.

This was too much like old times. He forgot that he had to work for a living, the $1,000 was soon gone and he was heading for the mountains of Canada again, threatened with tuberculosis.

It was about three years ago that Rogers came back to New York, this time determined to make good. He got a job and stuck at it for two years, and then was made information clerk at the Belmont, where he worked hard.

His sister, who upon the death of their mother a few years before became the residuary legatee of the latter's estate, had kept herself informed as to what he was doing and how he was getting along. A few weeks ago, convinced that her brother was now on the right track and had settled down to work, she came on to New York to see if she had been correctly informed, and to take a step she had contemplated taking at the proper time. Therefore, in the last few days of April, Rogers was informed by her that she had made over to him a part of her fortune, amounting to $150,000. At the same time he received word from a close friend of his family, who had been following his career with the keenest interest, that he had been elected managing Director of a coal company of which he himself was a big stockholder, the salary to begin at once.

Rogers insisted upon remaining on his job in the hotel until his month ended and enjoined secrecy upon the very few he told of his good fortune. But they could not keep the matter absolutely quiet, though by general consent they respected his wishes not to let anybody outside know what had happened until he got away from New York.

LOUISIANA NEGRO LYNCHED.

Mob Hangs Little Girl's Assailant While Guardsmen Are Assembling.

SHREVEPORT, La., May 12.—Ed Hamilton, a negro held on a charge of attacking a ten-year old white girl, this morning was taken from the parish jail shortly after noon and lynched.

For three hours a mob of 1,000 men and boys stood in the rain outside the jail, hammering away with a heavy railroad iron at the steel doors. Steel saws finally were used and an entrance was gained by the mob.

Sheriff J. P. Flournoy had telegraphed to the Governor for troops and orders had been sent to the Shreveport company of the National Guard to report to the Sheriff for service. Before the company could be assembled the negro had been taken from the jail. A rope was placed about his neck and he was dragged half a block to a telephone pole opposite the parish court house and strung up. A knife was left sticking in the body.

NEW TRIAL FOR JOHNSON.

District Attorney Gets a Rehearing in Prize Fighter's Case.

CHICAGO, May 12.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals to-day granted a petition of District Attorney Wilkerson for a rehearing on several of the counts in the indictment against Jack Johnson, convicted of violating the Mann White Slave act. The argument was set for May 18.

Johnson was convicted a year ago, and while the higher court upheld a number of the counts in the indictment, it reversed others and ordered that the prize fighter be resentenced. Mr. Wilkerson asked for a new trial on the ground that the findings of the lower court against Johnson should be upheld in every Lightning Starts $50,000 Tank Fire.

TULSA, Okla., May 12.—Two tanks containing approximately 90,000 barrels of oil, the property of the Pierce Oil Corporation near Tulsa, fired by lightning last night, still are burning, and efforts to extinguish them have been abandoned. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

This states the matter pretty well

The interiors of The Equitable Building are so laid out, that when a tenant rents a foot he really gets a full usable foot, and not an inefficient foot composed of ten inches for use and two inches for ornament.

And thus, Equitable rents, reasonable to begin with, grow still more reasonable in comparison with the cost of space in buildings which require a tenant to lease more than he wants in order to get what he actually needs.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of that date.

Studebaker SIX

The SIX That is First in Sales and Value

Let your Studebaker SIX demonstration be a family demonstration.

Test out its luxury, not from the standpoint of one or two, but four, or six, or seven.

Prove to yourself that the comfort of all, combined, is complete—that it leaves nothing to be desired.

We do not merely mean complete comfort in the matter of space and room.

We mean the impossibility of finding a car at any price which renders motoring more restful to mind and body.

We mean that quality of clinging to the road, while skimming over it, which is an expression of the perfect distribution of weight in an essentially light car.

We mean that absence of noise, and struggle, and strain, in the motor, which proves its perfect balance—that nice co-ordination which enables the engine to pick up speed without imparting a particle of tremor or vibration to the car.

We mean the freedom from swinging and swaying—the steady, straight-on sensation—the sense of inexhaustible power,—the "give" and accommodation of springs to every road variation.

We mean a dozen different evidences of scientific design and scientific manufacturing—all of which combined lull the nerves into complete relaxation and comfort.

THE OUTLOOK IN MEXICO.

We could find it in our hearts to sympathize profoundly with HUERTA when he professes to be engaged in defending "the sacred principle of national sovereignty," but for the fact that he is doing nothing of the kind and that his solemn profession is rant and cant of a most particularly empty and Mexican kind. HUERTA the usurper and dictator, the ruler without lawful title, is himself the man whom the Mexican people, if they saw straight, would regard as the worst enemy of their sovereignty. He brushed aside the sovereignty of the people when he set himself up at the head of the Government.

To many other statements made in the interview accorded by HUERTA to Mr. BARZINI, the correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph, whose dispatch to his paper was cabled to THE TIMES yesterday, we might demur on similar ground. But it is not to be expected that HUERTA would see in their true light or correctly set forth the incidents that have got him into his present trouble. It would be futile to assure him that we have not kicked in the door of his house, that we have not demanded that he dismiss his servants, that we have not interfered in his affairs save for the purpose of forcing him to behave toward us in a civilized way. How much is HUERTA and how much is BARZINI in this interview it is impossible to determine. HUERTA is made to say that "whole companies of Americans in the military uniform of the United States Army fought at Torreon under VILLA" and that he has preserved the United States army buttons and regimental numbers from the bodies of 200 Americans slain while fighting with the rebels at Gomez Palacio. Inasmuch as the Federals had to get away from Gomez Palacio in some haste, they could hardly have had time to examine with minuteness the bodies of the rebel slain.

But whether this is one of BARZINI'S many inventions or whether HUERTA did tell him such a story matters not. The conclusion to be drawn from the interview is that in his present temper HUERTA is resolved to defend the sacred principle of national sovereignty to the end and perish in the last ditch. If CARRANZA and VILLA would spend more time in fighting and less in talking, we might reach the further conclusion that as in the final moments HUERTA looked up from his ditch he would see the forms of the rebel chieftains and not those of American soldiers advancing toward him. Since the fall of Torreon the rebel output of utterance and literature has been profuse, the victories few. They have made little substantial progress, yet it is upon their progress that we depend for the solution of our problem in Mexico.

Now that so many Americans residing or sojourning in Mexico have been delivered from their peril, those still remaining having deliberately chosen that course, HUERTA'S power to compel aggressive action on our part has practically disappeared. Certainly, we must hold Vera Cruz until HUERTA is disposed of, but the problem now is chiefly a Mexican one. If the rebels can take Tampico, reduce Saltillo, and in their further southward course, San Luis Potosi, HUERTA will be brought very near to the end of his career.

The peace negotiations, as to the outcome of which no one is now very sanguine, will serve a good purpose. While they continue hostilities will be suspended; and the longer they last the more time VILLA will have to open his way to the capital. Those idealists who have deluded themselves with the belief that it was our duty to pacify Mexico, to restore the liberties of the Mexican people, to settle the land question and do other good and worthy things for the behoof of our southern neighbors may regard this as a programme of selfishness. It is certainly not a programme of wild and foolish altruistic adventure. It recognizes the impossibility of any permanent settlement of Mexico's troubles save one reached by the Mexicans themselves—or reached by us and made lasting by our permanent occupation of the country. We have no such intentions. We want to get out of Mexico at the earliest possible moment. When HUERTA is disposed of, if the succeeding Government, whether of CARRANZA or some other Chief Magistrate, has the ability to tranquilize the country and to give protection to the lives and property of foreigners we shall be very glad to leave the new administration an entirely free hand to perform its duties.

GOV. GLYNN'S DUTY.

If Gov. GLYNN had not believed firmly that the amendments proposed by the National Democratic Club were necessary to enable a real choice of candidates to be made by the people in the Fall primaries, he would not have specially urged their passage during the regular session. They are still necessary. There is time for the Legislature to pass them at its extraordinary session. The appropriation bills must be passed and they will be passed, but in a deeper sense the measures to guard the Fall elections from corrupt influences should be passed.

If the Governor fails to send in a special message on the elections, the primaries will not have bi-partisan watchers. The signature law for the identification of voters will not be applied. Samples of the long ballots will not go out to the voters in advance, giving them a chance to make an intelligent choice of candidates. The primary day will not be the first day of registration, when the fullest vote for candidates may be expected. The "joker" in the election law, by defining residence as any "place of stay," will remain to legalize colonizing of voters. In short, the bosses will be in undisturbed control.

It is not the Governor's part to say that an emergency message from him will be futile because the leaders of the Legislature have assured him in advance that they will not heed it. The leaders may change their tune when they get the message. He should make the responsibility theirs, not his, by placing them squarely on record for or against these fair reforms.

A POINT IN THE MERIT SYSTEM.

The Board of Estimate has asked the Civil Service Commission to include in the exempt class the Secretaries of the Committees on City Plan, on Social Welfare, on Port and Terminal Facilities, on Education, on Markets, and on Revision of City Charter.

At the hearing before the Commission Mr. MCANENY, President of the Board of Aldermen, speaking for the Board of Estimate, made an earnest plea for the exemption. He was very frank with the Commission and stated the names of the persons whom it was the intention of the Board of Estimate to select, so far as they have been determined, with their records of accomplishment and their qualifications. His claim as to the method of appointment was that the work of these secretaries was quite out of the usual line of duties for officers so named. They are to be practically the executive officers of the committees, will have the organization of the labor of the respective committees, will prepare the reports and represent the committees before the public in the city and in conference with representatives of other cities. The committees, as their titles indicate, are of extreme importance. They are selected to take specific charge of the various branches of the work of the Board of Estimate. On their successful organization and on the kind of expert aid they can command will largely depend not merely the efficiency of the Board of Estimate in what they can do while in office, but in laying the foundations of a system of municipal administration for many years.

SAMUEL H. ORDWAY made a vigorous argument against the exemption, speaking as the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Civil Service Reform Association. His main contention was that competition is imperatively required by the Constitution where "practicable," and that in this instance competition is practicable. In a sense it is. But if we take the word practicable to be equivalent to the word practical, and if we interpret the requirement of the Constitution to be that competition should be resorted to when it will in practice yield the best results, we think that the argument of Mr. MCANENY is a strong one, and that the Commission, in the exercise of proper discretion, may accept it. The plea that, on this ground, competition may be ruled impracticable down all the ranks of the service, until the merit system in effect is abolished, is untenable. The dividing line seems to us quite clear. It is the line of responsibility. Where assistants are to be chosen who are to be intrusted with substantial discretion, who are actually to be held accountable for a material share in the work of the appointing officer or committee, as in this case, we do not think there is any appreciable risk in the exemption.

Possibly it would be well to require of the appointing committees in all cases a frank and explicit statement, to be made a part of the record of the Civil Service Commission, of the career and qualifications of the appointees and of the reasons for their selection. This has just been recommended by a Royal Commission for cases of the same sort in the British civil service. It is a requirement that has been, as we have noted, voluntarily observed by President MCANENY.

BEDSIDE DOCTORING.

Because Dr. THEODORE C. JANEWAY has accepted a full-time professorship of bedside medicine at Johns Hopkins, Dr. THOMAS L. STEDMAN, editor of The Medical Record, calls attention to the "doubtful experiment" to which the General Education Board has devoted $1,400,000 in withdrawing eminent doctors from practice that pays them cash to the ignoble pursuits of scientific research; hospital practice, and the training of young physicians in the best methods. In this The Medical Record deplores the absence of "stimulus to close and accurate work" which is "afforded by the prospective fee."

Is there stimulus to close and accurate work in dividing the treatment of a hospital case between four or five doctors, each too busy reaping fees in private practice to give his whole time to the case? Did HERTZ, who discovered electric waves in ether and made possible wireless telegraphy, receive his stimulus from fees? Was ROENTGEN, who developed the X-rays, a fee taker? And in medicine were not LISTER and PASTEUR doing humanity a service when they reduced the mortality in hospitals from operations to but 5 per cent., where deaths had been above 60 per cent., though these men were what The Medical Record calls "pure specialists," and hence "more or less narrow"? Then there were EMIL FISCHER, VIRCHOW, BUNSEN, FARADAY, KEPLER, NEWTON, JOULE, and KELVIN, a few among many who have led their professions without thought of material reward, which might have been theirs with little effort. LOUIS AGASSIZ replied to a commercial offer that he "hadn't time" to make money. That, we suppose, was narrow minded.

When Dr. HEINRICH NEUMANN of the Kaiser Franz Josef Hospital and of the Gremial Hospital of Austria inspected the hospitals of this city two years ago, his chief criticism was that the doctors did not handle their cases throughout their entire history. How else can the most exact knowledge be attained of treating patients unless bedside specialists are developed? In Europe scientific clinicians have learned to beware of routine private practice, to regard it as the graveyard in which brains are buried alive for the sake of gilded tombstones. Practicing doctors are everywhere needed. But a doctor who trains practicing physicians should devote his whole time to keeping up with the rapid progress of medical science and contributing to it. He should be enabled to study a disease from its first appearance in the living body and during its entire course. He should have time to interpret its changing phenomena according to known physiologic laws, identifying them with similar phenomena experimentally produced in animals. He should correlate the disease in life with the profound changes after death. And he should study the influence of remedy and treatment in particular cases at the beginning of their physiologic actions and throughout the successive stages of the disease.

The practicing physician gets only brief glimpses of these processes in different patients. The physician who advances the science of bedside doctoring devotes his whole time to seeing them in their orderly progression.

ONE DAY'S TRUST NEWS.

Neither Congress nor the Executive can be at a loss to know what the temper of the business world is regarding the regulations proposed for it by the Federal lawmakers. The politicians' plan is to jam the new laws through under a caucus rule. Yet bankers, railway men, and commercial organizations unite in declaring that the laws are unacceptable. The spokesman for the railways was the Chairman of the Union Pacific Railway, representing a committee upon behalf of the Pennsylvania, the Chesapeake & Ohio, the New York Central, the Southern, and the Erie Companies. They told the Senate Committee that the Trade Commission bill would break up the great systems under which commerce now moves. In the words of Mr. LOVETT, this enactment would disrupt every great railroad system in this country and cause the greatest shock to railroad securities that has been felt for years.

The obduracy of the Senate to such arguments is shown by the response of Senator CUMMINS that the Senate would consent not to burn down the railway barn if somebody would show how the rats could be killed otherwise. The idea that it would be better to endure the rats than to burn the barn—if that were the only alternative—was not expressed by any Senator. The railway spokesmen complained that in this case, as in others, they are harassed by conflicting laws. The law requires the railways to compete, and yet the pending bill forbids them to compete if their Directorates interlock. It would seem at least, if the bill is inevitable, that the interlocking might be made personal and punished and the railways be allowed to run their trains.

Through the counsel of the Federal Legislative Committee the American Bankers' Association expressed its opposition to the House omnibus trust bill. Mr. PATON specified as especially objectionable the clause forbidding the interlocking of banking Directorates, and suggested that all bankers should send their personal protests to their Representatives. His substitute proposal was that the interlocking should be forbidden when found contrary to public interest, and not forbidden universally as evil in itself. It is odd that although both the House and the Senate propose to forbid and punish what both the railways and the banks declare to be generally beneficial, neither house forbids it universally. There is nothing in the nature of the banking and railway businesses which makes interlocking peculiarly heinous. If the act ought to be forbidden by law it ought to be forbidden in one law for all cases, and not be divided between two statutes, which differ from each other.

These are not the only expressions hostile to the proposals of Congress. On the same day are published the formal resolutions of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce condemning both the Senate and the House bills. The memorial of the Philadelphia Board of Trade confines its condemnation to the omnibus bill, which it declares places every business man in jeopardy as a lawbreaker. The reason is plain. The lawmakers are seeking to create common law by statute, reversing the accustomed practice of embodying the common law of trade in statutes. Laws cannot create customs except by revolution. Laws which embody customs offend nobody entitled to be consulted. Revolution by statute is a war of aggression, not a war of service. Congress is not being left with any excuse of ignorance of public opinion about its proposals. It is no wonder that the Democratic majority is losing its unity upon the subjects of these two bills and that the caucus may recommend adjournment after the passage of the appropriations.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

More Company Provided for Ananias.

When there arrived from Brazil the truly dreadful tale that Col. ROOSEVELT had astonished the members of the Brazilian Historical and Geographical Institute by sending in a big bill for the speech in which he accepted their courteous offer of honorary admission to their number THE TIMES promptly rejected the yarn as a slander, equally stupid and malignant. Without waiting for evidence, we declared it credible only to those from whose minds political prejudices had crowded out both common sense and common decency.

Yet the story was repeated again and again, now by travelers who said they had it on the "unquestionable authority" of high officials in Rio de Janeiro, now by others who asseverated that they had seen with their own eyes the bill bearing the Colonel's signature in acknowledgment of payment made. So circumstantial were these narratives that some, even of the Colonel's friends, were disquieted to the extent of fearing that they might have some basis of misunderstood fact, while his more reckless enemies risked open expression of belief that the miserable charge was true.

It turns out that the disquietude was unnecessary, the reward of recklessness only the fly-gobbler's usual humiliation. For Prof. MAX FLEUISS, the First Permanent Secretary of the Institute—whose position makes him indeed an "unquestionable authority" on this subject—has written to JOHN BARRETT, Director General of the Pan-American Union, a letter in which, in most explicit and unqualified terms, he states that "Mr. THEODORE ROOSEVELT never did solicit from the Brazilian Historical and Geographical Institute, nor was he ever paid by the Institute, any sum of money whatever for the only address he delivered at the Institute, on Oct. 13, 1913, when he took possession of his chair as Honorary Member of the Institute."

It is evidently time for the inventors and the distributers of this particular lie to hunt their holes and in the same hopefully to meditate on the improbability that the Colonel will hold them up to public obloquy as he did the hardly more malignant falsifiers who charged him, a next-to-total abstainer, with habitual drunkenness. That the Brazilians did not sooner bring to American attention the denials which, it seems, they long since published in Rio, is perhaps to be regretted, but one can understand easily enough the reluctance which a polite people felt for giving to an outrageous accusation against an honored guest even as much of dignity as its formal refutation involves.

A Cherished Belief Is Attacked.

Few assumptions are more often or more confidently made than the one that the orderliness of a country depends much less upon the form of its government—the particular kind of machinery with which it manages its public affairs—than upon the character of its people and the degree and quality of their civilization. Most of us who write for publication on serious subjects have made some such statement, more than once, as a self-evident truth, usually in connection with the equally self-evident truth that people cannot be made good by legislation. Both of these assumptions, and especially the first, are attacked by HENRY JONES FORD, Professor of Politics at Princeton, in a thought-provoking article on "Disorderly States," contributed to the May Atlantic.

History simply swarms, he says, with proof that the form of government has an enormous influence on the conduct of the governed. He cites, as a classic and most impressive instance of such influence, the Scotch, of whom LECKY with perfect accuracy remarked that, before the revolution of 1699, "of all the nations of Europe, there was probably not a single one so violent, so turbulent, so difficult to govern." Yet in a few generations they were changed in every characteristic and became what they have since remained.

And Prof. FORD has no patience with what he calls "the cant about Anglo-Saxon political ideals." Neither the Angles nor the Saxons, he says, ever produced an orderly State. That had to be done for them by the Norman conquest and the introduction of a more efficient governmental system.

Much of the present disorderliness in States Prof. FORD ascribes to the fact that, the old antagonism to the exportation of money having passed, the rulers of weak or backward countries are no longer dependent for resources on the limited powers of their own subjects to pay taxes, but can contract huge foreign loans. This results in Governments with difficulty distinguishable from receiverships. These are beneficial, as in Egypt, or injurious, as in Persia, according to the wisdom and honesty of the receivers, and in such cases not the nominal, but the real, form of government is what counts.

Prof. FORD'S conclusion is that "the prime cause of trouble in the disorderly States of America is that at present they have unworkable constitutions"—his implication that workable constitutions would cure their ills. The remedy for complex situations seems simple—perhaps too simple.

Child Beaters Confess Incompetency.

"Spanking," suggested by one of our correspondents as a cure for "defectiveness" in children, received deserved condemnation from another in a letter printed on this page yesterday. To the highly plausible guess that the advocates of corporal punishment probably show its effects by their commendation of a device which the experience of all the ages condemns as worse than useless, "R. F. F." might well have added that the "defects" with which they are so impatient are in no small degree the consequence of the cruel repression of every natural impulse which the old methods of discipline involved.

Psychologists nowadays know only too well what dangers lie in the suppression, as distinguished from what they call the "sublimation," of energies and emotions.

In the mind of "R. F. F.," as in not a few others that reject the ancient brutalities, there lingers the belief that "spanking" is sometimes effectual, and therefore proper, as a device for establishing a new basis of thought and action, and as preparing for resort to reason in dealing with a child. But the necessity for even this concession is dubious.

Why parents and teachers should retain the right to inflict bodily pain, after it has been abandoned completely by the Church, and almost completely, at least in profession, by the State, is a mystery that excites the wonder of a constantly increasing number of observers. Whenever exercised it is a confession, if not of utter incompetency, at least of falling below the standards of a not unattainable idealism.

A COURT OF PEACE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the mournful exercises yesterday I found myself as a member of the Mayor's Citizens' Committee seated in front of the parents and sisters of one of the men killed at Vera Cruz, and at my side were Catholic and Methodist ministers.

The mother's tearful eyes, the father's sadness, and the sister's sorrow, the comments of the ministers on the stern realities were not negligible factors in the impressive ceremonies.

I, therefore, ask a discussion of the questions, "Must such things be?" "Is there no way of preventing the crime, cost, and curse of war?"

It seems to me that a democratic International Court of Arbitration would almost entirely obviate war, and in this way:

Let all the civilized nations send three, or a multiple of three, delegates to constitute such a court with just two provisions—the one that all the signatory nations shall bind themselves never to draw the sword until their dispute or honor has been passed upon by that court; and the second, that all shall draw the sword against any nation that refuses to abide by the decision of the court; or, as a preliminary, impose an international boycott.

No nation will then resist the tremendous moral force brought against it, and still less the physical force that would threaten it. If it did resist, then the swifter, the sharper, the more thorough the punishment the better for the future peace of the world.

The three delegates should represent the religious, legal, and the political life of the nation, in accordance with the spirit of the Bible regulation of an ultimate court of appeal.

WOMEN'S DRESS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your recent editorial article on "Dress and the Suffrage" speaks of correspondents of The London Times finding "in the extravagances of female attire an argument either for or against woman suffrage."

At least one point, I think, lends the habit interest. Split skirt and bagging and bulging waist in a way typify ideas emphasized in the women's movement now subtly girdling the earth. Waist and skirt fairly symbolize, from the stand of those women whose voice is in this day loudest, the wearers' social status.

In the long history of costume, women's dress has often done this—symbolized the status of the wearer. When Martin Luther's wife buttoned her dress in the back, and her husband thought Frau Catherine's fastening it down the front too immodestly independent for a woman—that is one instance. Another is in the Victorian hoopskirt below the waist, and above a shawl — Cashmere, Paisley, or broché—to conceal the form said to be in the image of God.

That habit—the Victorian—expressed preeminently the ideal of women who had the loudest voice in that day. The voice talked unceasingly of "modesty" and called it an immodest thing to show the outline of the figure in the street, adding that in stepping from a carriage a woman's chief aim should be to conceal her ankles.

Those were the years in which Roden Noel wrote how natural simplicity was "unutterably shocking, of course, to those who are unutterably shocked with Nature for making us of flesh at all, and who hold that the only way to remedy her immodest mistake is to hush the fact up altogether." Parallel to the hushing-up spell there was another opposing it, as this quotation shows — another which found expression in Darwin's book on the origin and descent of man and, pent up and becoming emotional, in Swinburne's early poems.

Thousands of evidences might be cited to prove that women's dress, often in subtle and unexpected ways, in Peking, in Thibet, in St. Petersburg, in Paris and London, in Chicago, reflects social will about women. The habit now in vogue, whether it vaunts the Oriental odalisque's taste or English walking suit's simplicity, indicates revolt against the narrow limits in which women walk—against which they are straining. They have strained at the narrow binding and made a rent in the circumscribing raiment. Of this we suffragists may be accounted guilty.

Demagogues in Congress.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator La Follette has come in for much ridicule and condemnation at the hands of newspaper editors for his periodic asinine performances in connection with trust legislation; but we look in vain for any repudiation of his methods by his brother Senators. Perhaps they believe that Senator La Follette should not be taken too seriously and that the general public are in agreement with them on this point. It is a different matter, however, when other Senators (of whom better things might naturally be expected) make unjust attacks on corporation interests, and inveigh in exaggerated and virulent language against everything which is calculated to promote prosperous business conditions. It would seem as if it were a crime for a Congressman—Senator or Representative—to say a word in defense of the rank and file of business men, to ask that American commerce be let alone for a while, so that it might be given a chance to recuperate and be enabled to hold its ground in competition with other nations.

POISONED CIGARETTES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In yesterday's edition you have an explanation from Dr. F. Leroy Silvey of what was meant by the mysterious use of poisoned cigarettes given to one of our soldiers at Vera Cruz. But Dr. Silvey is misinformed as to the poisonous ingredient used. It is not mariguana, (this is the proper spelling,) for that is only a narcotic, harmless save when used in excessive doses through years. This plant is a species of wild hemp, and the dried leaves, mixed with tobacco, seldom alone save by the aficionados of long use, are smoked by the Mexicans to produce the species of intoxication peculiar to hemp.

It is used in the Orient, as hasheesh, bhang, gunga, &c., and is not poisonous, though the fascinations of its dreams are such that it may lead in the end to inmoderate indulgence, and thus, through long-continued abuse, end in imbecility and death.

Some of the Mexicans are so fond of it that they form clubs, scattered along the border, where they meet, weekly, to use the mariguana. These men are known as mariguaneros (users of mariguana.) They seldom indulge to excess and, whether from temparament, or from using diluted doses, rarely end as described above. On the other hand this drug seems to arouse their worst passions, lust and blood shedding, and the county authorities on the Rio Grande border are very active in checking the use of mariguana.

The herb Dr. Silvey had in mind is a very different one, and is both narcotic and poisonous. It is widely spread over the earth, including our Republic; in many different species; is used as a remedy for asthma; is known by many different names; and, curiously enough, is used in Hindostan by jealous women for the same purposes as their Mexican sisters, viz., to cause their lovers to lose their minds. In Hindostan robbers mix it in candy, in just the proportions to cause narcosis, and give the sweetmeat to the inmates of a house and then rob it at their leisure.

This herb, or plant, is a species of Datura Stramonium, Jamestown, or Jimson, weed; Neem, it is called, or, among the Mexicans, toloachi, toloache, generally pronounced tolhuache. It is sometimes called tlapa, but I have never heard this name used on the border. I have seen the plant called toloachi, and it is a straggling, low-growing, wide-spreading one with dark-green, narrow, leaves, white flowers, and very odd seed vessels. These last have two long, projecting, curved points very much like the horns of a long-horned Texan steer.

The seeds are, I believe, pounded and mixed in tobacco, when used in a cigarette, and thus, if used several times, cause dementia. The form of insanity so induced is, generally, that of melancholic idiocy, with the head drooping; sometimes violent madness is caused, and the persons so inflicted die quickly. The dried leaves when smoked seem to be narcotic only, though too prolonged use, I am told, causes insanity. The active principle of the toloachi, which is brother to the Jimson weed, is more violent in its effect, and owing to the heat of the climate, and the minerals of the soil, stronger than our Datura.

This poison is, so I have been told, very much used by Mexican women, whom jealousy or revenge has provoked; and often by Mexican men to get rid of a rival.

ALCOHOL.

Has Age-Long Use Created a Social Craving for It?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a student of evolution, sociology, and biology, there has occurred to me, touching the liquor question, a point which I have not seen noticed or discussed by any one else.

The point is this: Has not alcoholic beverage, through centuries of common and general use by the human race, become in some measure a hereditary organic and social need for those millions of persons whose ancestors have drunk more or less heavily during thousands of years? I say social need, because it is certainly not an original, natural need, like milk or water; but then neither are clothes, cooked food, fire, and soap. In other words, has not the human machine, or, more specifically, the human nervous system, become so adapted to the influence of alcohol that it has now acquired not only a considerable immunity to what were at first its evil effects, but actually demands and needs some portion of it as the socially natural food to which it has been long accustomed?

Will not an artificial food or stimulant, potent in its effect on the nervous system of any organism, and used very generally during many centuries, finally become necessary to the organism? And will not the organism in the meanwhile so succeed in adapting itself to the action of the artificial food that the original deleterious action is largely eliminated?

We all know that the Teutonic peoples have been very heavy drinkers during many centuries. We all know, also, how wonderfully adaptable are life and the human organism. Furthermore, we know that those whose constitutions could not adapt themselves perished through the operation of the law of natural selection. Hence, those that survived must have acquired in some degree an immunity to what was primordially an evil.

Greenwich Village Playground.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In certain quarters the idea seems to prevail that the Washington Square Association initiated the movement for the establishment by the city of a playground in old Greenwich Village for its 10,000 children who have now no place for recreation, and the very good article on the subject which you published two months ago would seem to bear out this idea and, furthermore, present the association in the light of having made formal application to the city authorities for such playground.

In reality this movement had its origin in the absolute necessity for such a playground in that neighborhood long before this association took any action in that matter, and whatever action the city has so far taken is based, not on any formal application by this association to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment or to the Recreation Commission, but on the recognition by the city authorities of the necessity and the general demand for such playground by reason of the conditions in that neighborhood, which are too apparent and too pressing to be overlooked.

Oil.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can THE TIMES reliably inform me if the A B C mediators propose to pour oil on the troubled waters in Mexico, and, if they do, what brand will they use? I am not financially interested. I merely wished to know, because if it succeeds in smoothing things out down there, I'd like to get some of the same brand to use on a farm wagon I have which seems to be impervious to any lubricant I have thus far tried.

WANTS COURT HOUSE DATA.

Public Is Entitled to Know What It Will Cost, Engineer Asserts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a member of the Civic Centre Committee of the Real Estate Board of New York, I take exception to the statement made in your editorial in to-day's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES relating to the Real Estate Board, "which has of late developed a harshly critical spirit in regard to the plans for the Court House."

With a knowledge of the spirit in which the report of the Civic Centre Committee was formulated, especially as much of the data was collected by me personally, as consulting engineer as well as member of the committee, I know the disposition of the committee was not meant to be "harshly critical."

In preparing the report we had before us the identical plans published in THE TIMES of May 10, 1914.

A study of the report of our committee, as published in THE TIMES of May 5, indicates our description of the Court House site conditions covers the new plans now put forward by President McAneny. Our committee generally approved the entire scheme. We favored the proposed shift of the Court House from the subway structure on Centre Street, as it will save considerable money for foundations. We favored the acquisition of the additional property. We pointed out that by moving the building site a considerable saving might be effected which, as a real estate problem involving future sales of unused land, is yet to be demonstrated. We pointed out the changes proposed by the McAneny committee will prevent interference with street railway franchises, would keep open to traffic both Worth and Centre Streets, and would eliminate in a great measure the grave questions as to consequential damages to a wide area of property arising if the original lay-out had been adhered to.

Our report stated the new location would undoubtedly increase the area of the streets and add to the facilities. It also called attention to the fact that the rearrangement of the street immediately adjacent will require the regrading of a considerable area, wheresoever the Court House may be located, and damages suffered by adjacent property owners will have to be paid for by the city. In this connection we stated the acquisition of additional property now asked for, and the relocation of the Court House will eliminate damage claims, as all the territory east of Lafayette Street, west of Baxter Street, south of Franklin Street and north of the Municipal Building, which is the area requiring regrading, will be the property of the city.

We mentioned the fact that the relocation and widening of City Hall Place would provide a necessary wide thoroughfare at the rear of the Municipal Building in connection with the new Brooklyn Bridge approach, and we stated "there is no question that the new plans have distinct advantages over the one which proposed the straddling of Worth and Centre Streets.

While our committee was in general accord with the new plans they felt ordinary business prudence would require borings should be made at once to discover sub-surface conditions and the exact location of bed rock. The knowledge of these conditions determines to a great extent the approximate cost of foundations. What if the borings determine the foundations may cost as much as the Court House itself? Who knows? We believe that knowledge should be foresight not hindsight. We also felt that the same good business principles in regard to the cost of the finished Court House should be carried out as those practiced by the builders of large commercial structures, such as the Woolworth, Adams Express, and Equitable Buildings. The men who foot the bills for such structures know in advance to within a few dollars the amount they will have to expend. Undoubtedly the board members feel that as representatives of the taxpayers, who will have to "foot the bill" for the Court House, they are entitled to know what the finished Court House is going to cost them.

There was absolutely no intention on the part of the committee of "harshly criticising" the present city officials or the members of the Court House Board, but, as one member of the committee expressed it, there can be no defense to any plan that leaves a barn-door of expense wide open for unknown future charges.

The real estate board wants to know. The public wants to know. Both are entitled to know. Although it is true we asked some questions, it was done in a spirit of the utmost friendliness to the gentlemen who are working hard to give the courts of this city a building in keeping with the dignity of the greatest city in the world.

There was no thought or idea of being "harshly critical," and I am convinced that not only the Civic Centre Committee, but the Real Etate Board itself, stands ready to assist the officials in every way possible to hasten to completion the entire Court House project.

TO THE WORKING GIRLS' CLUBS

Next Friday at the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory members of the Nation-Wide League of Women Workers, under the auspices of the New York Association of Women Workers, will present a pageant entitled "The Romance of Art," illustrating women's work in this country.

Here's health, good cheer and better
To these young workers who,
With hearts and hands
In chosen bands,
Unite to think and do.

It is not they who scheme and sulk;
Not they who think the Lord
Has not been fair
To make their share
So small in His award.

It is not they, thumb-fingered, slow,
Who are a stumbling block;
Who try to shirk
Their duty-work;
Not they who watch the clock.

It is not they who seek the path
Of pleasure and of sin,
Believing this
Is not amiss,
If bigger pay they win.

These clubs of girls are different girls,
Clean-hearted, brave and strong,
They do not shirk
The steady work
That moves the world along.

They may grow weary at their toil,
They may not think it fair
To work as they
Must work each day,
But still, they're always there.

They help themselves and thus they help
The weaker on the way
Of constant strife
The world calls life
And follows every day.
Here's to them! Hip! Hooray!!

CHANCE FOR COLLEGE GIRLS

Miss Georgiana Hall Says the Profession Offers a Larger and Better Field Than Teaching.

The blank-faced book salesman who, by his incompetent innocence of the contents of the books he handles, blocks sales and disgusts would-be buyers among the reading public, came up for serious consideration by most of the speakers at the fourteenth annual convention of the American Booksellers' Association at the Hotel Astor yesterday. Representatives of 500 booksellers were in attendance.

The prevailing opinion seemed to be that a policy educating the book-selling clerk to a degree that would make possible a closer and more profitable connection between booksellers and readers should be adopted. It was even suggested that a nation-wide correspondence school to teach the right principles of bookselling be established.

In the absence of Walter L. Butler, President of the association, who is abroad, Vice President V. M. Schenck presided at the morning session. The "Prose and Poetry of Bookselling" was discussed by Seeley Conover of the Seeley Conover Co., Amsterdam, N. Y. The prose of the business was the keeping of careful and accurate accounts and the careful handling and protection of stock; the poetry of bookselling consisted of the bits of fiction and shrewd romancing whereby many an old bookseller managed to manifest a kindly and at times remarkably sudden interest in the personality of chance customers, thus converting them into constant customers.

John T. Witsil of Brentano's discussed "Display as a Factor in Selling Books." The four principal factors in determining what to display, he said, were local events or occasions, national events or occasions, special events or occasions, and seasons.

A Field for College Girls.

"Four factors determine why a display should be made," said Mr. Witsil. "First, new or special material; second, circumstances making certain displays necessary; third, displays for some particular purpose, and, fourth, the ever-present necessity of devoting good, valuable space to getting rid of the many 'plugs,' meaning 'sure sellers,' unloaded by certain persuasive 'commercial ambassadors' on the kindly disposed and unsuspecting buyer. In connection with this fourth factor, I often wish I had the power to witness the mental process through which certain publishers go in deciding to issue certain books. It might enable me to feel more charitable toward their crimes."

At the afternoon session Miss Georgiana Hall of Wanamaker's, Philadelphia, discussed "Bookselling as a Profession for Women." It was a profession, she said, full of meaning and development as a life work, inasmuch as the daily tools of the bookseller's trade constituted the medium through which all knowledge was disseminated to the world; and yet, somehow, college women were not attracted to it as much as to the much more monotonous and humdrum profession of teaching and librarianship. The fault, she thought, lay largely in those forces that had kept the bookselling profession from acquiring the same prestige as the others with the public.

"We should never countenance in our stores any of the petty gossip and trivial talk that keep the best college women out of our ranks," she said. "Most women who go into teaching get no more than $1,000 a year. I am sure most of you gentlemen would be glad to pay that to a college woman who had a thorough acquaintance with the subjects that interest your customers—cultured and professional folk of all kinds. The suggestions such a woman could make would be invaluable.

"There should be a closer connection between the publisher's agent and the retail salesman," said Miss Hall. "At present the publisher's agent pours out all his wealth of information about the books to the retail buyer, who comes into no such close contact with the customers as does the retail salesman.

Too Much Emphasis on Fiction?

"The blank-faced book salesman, with his stupidity which acts as an obstacle between the books and the reading public, is not to blame. We must buoy him up for a while until he is able to keep up himself. Encourage your clerks to use their own ideas. Clerks who stick to their jobs too closely never get anywhere. One who never gets out of the office and never feels the stirring of rebellion against doing the same job every day, has no initiative and is not worth his job.

"It is a pity that so large an emphasis is laid on the sale of fiction, as if fiction is the sum and substance of all books. I am impatient with the idea of educating up the public through the various and increasingly serious stages of fiction. Give me the reading public that is already educated and the clerk that understands its wants. It is not the public but the clerk that needs educating. To-day Tagore, the most mystical of poets; Noyes, Vandyke, and other poets have heavy sales; there are growing possibilities of the play supplanting the novel. It behooves us as caterers of this splendid body of readers to improve and educate ourselves for this splendid opportunity."

M. G. Nusbaum of the Nusbaum Book and Art Company of Norfolk, Va., read a paper on "The Selling of Books." The average bookstore, he said, did 25 per cent. of its business in the holiday month of December. He emphasized the need of paying special attention to folk with literary hobbies, ministers and Sunday school teachers, and told how the newspapers could be utilized to stimulate sales:

"Clippings of reviews mailed to prospective customers are very attractive," he said, "as are descriptive letters about books from the publishers. There is a great advantage in publicity for books, such as through half-page advertisements of the combined publishers a dealer represents, with selected reviews by representative men below them. Thus the dealer, publisher, and newspaper will be brought into nearer co-operation."

Author Talks to Dealers

Miss Dalrymple, author of "Diana of the Green Van," which recently won a prize of $10,000, was one of the visitors at the convention, and addressed the booksellers. She said it was mighty easy to write a bad book, but mighty hard to sell one, and that she wondered that the booksellers didn't look more worn and haggard.

One of the booksellers told of a profitable scheme he had carried out by establishing in his store a "Children's Corner," in which on every Saturday he had some story teller tell one or more stories to children of his city. This he would advertise in the newspapers each Friday, and when the young folk came the next day and listened to the story, their mothers usually ended by buying the book containing that story and others.

The last paper of the afternoon was read by Charles Welch of the World Book Company of Yonkers, who discussed "Training of Clerks." He advocated the establishment by leading publishers of correspondence schools for clerks, wherein the principles of proper salesmanship of books should be taught.

The sessions of the convention will be resumed this morning at 9:30 o'clock, when the subject of creating a demand for books and developing a market for them will be discussed by Richard B. G. Gardner of the Publishers' Co-operative Bureau; Robert W. Staton of Stanton Brothers, Philadelphia, and W. H. Arnold of the H. B. Claflin Company.

DR. WM. M. POLK, 69, WEDS MISS DEHON, 56

START ON HONEYMOON TRIP

Dean of Cornell University Medical College Was Known in Civil War as "Fighting Bill" Polk.

Dr. William M. Polk, Dean of the Cornell University Medical College and father of Frank L. Polk, Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, was married yesterday afternoon to Miss Maria H. Dehon of 310 Fifth Avenue. Dr. Polk called on Chief Clerk Scully at the City Hall during the morning, and obtained a license. He gave his age as 60, and Miss Denon said she was 56, and was born in Boston.

The Rev. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity Church, performed the ceremony, to which only a few intimate friends were invited. They were married in Grace Church, at Tenth Street and Broadway. Dr. and Mrs. Polk left town last night for their honeymoon, and are expected to return in about two weeks.

Miss Maria H. Dehon is a daughter of one of the oldest families in this city. Her father and mother were born in New York and lived here all their lives. The family home, 310 Fifth Avenue, is one of the few private houses left in that portion of the city, and Miss Dehon has lived there ever since her father died, more than twenty years ago.

Dr. William Mecklenburg Polk is the son of Bishop and Lieut. Gen. Leonidas Polk of the Confederacy. Bishop Polk was graduated from West Point, but resigned his commission to become a minister. When the civil war began he became an officer in the Confederate Army, and was killed by a cannon shot when reconnoitring on Pine Mountain, Georgia, in 1864.

Dr. Polk was born in Ashwood, Tenn., and was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute in 1861, and immediately went into the Confederate Army as a cadet. He fought through the entire civil war, being made Captain and Adjutant, and earned for himself the name of "Fighting Bill" Polk. Years after when he taught in the Cornell University Medical College, he was known to his pupils by the same name.

After the war Dr. Polk came to New York and in 1869 was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. He then went into general practice and from 1875 until 1879 held the chair of Therapeutics and Clinical Medicine at Bellevue College. In 1879 Dr. Polk accepted the Professorship of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women in the medical department of the University of the City of New York, and in 1898 became Dean of the Cornell University Medical College. He is also a visiting surgeon at Bellevue Hospital.

Dr. Polk is President of the New York Academy of Medicine, and it is stated will be the head of the new cancer hospital.

He married Miss Lyon of Alabama in 1866. She was the mother of Frank L. Polk, and died a number of years ago.

MISS DICKINSON'S WEDDING.

The wedding of Miss Celia Goss Dickinson, the youngest daughter of Dr. Gordon Kimball Dickinson and Mrs. Dickinson of Jersey City, and Frederic Hewlett McCoun, Jr., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Hewlett McCoun of 39 West Eighty-fourth Street, New York, will take place on Wednesday evening, June 10, at 8:30 o'clock, in the First Dutch Reformed Church of Van Vorst, Jersey City. The Rev. Dr. Cornelius Brett will officiate. The reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, 280 Montgomery Street.

Miss Marie Maze Dickinson, the bride's twin sister, will be the maid of honor, and three more sisters, the Misses Louise Waterman, Claire, and Ruth Dickinson, will be the bridesmaids.

Gerald Mygatt will be Mr. McCoun's best man, and the ushers selected are Lucius H. Bigelow, William A. Kimball, Dr. Walter M. Kraus, John I. Merritt, Benton Sanders, Harold Taylor, Rudolph L. von Bernuth, and Weymour H. Wait.

Miss Dickinson will give a dinner for her attendants at her home on June 6, and Mr. McCoun will give his bachelor dinner at the Columbia Club on the same evening.

Mr. McCoun, who is practicing law at 27 Pine Street, was graduated from Columbia College in 1909 and from the Columbia Law School in 1911.

Miss Cumnock's Attendants.

The wedding of Miss Mary Cutting Cumnock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Cumnock, and granddaughter of Mrs. Walter Cutting, and George B. Wagstaff, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wagstaff, Sr., will take place at 4 o'clock on Thursday, June 4, in St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square. It will be a large wedding, but there is to be no reception.

Miss Cumnock will have Mrs. David Wagstaff as her matron of honor, and Miss Eugenie Philbin as maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be the Misses Mai Duncan Watson, Maud Kennedy, Josephine Nicoll, Margaret Wagstaff, a sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Katharine Blodgett of Grand Rapids, Mich., a cousin of the bride.

FROHMAN AGAIN HEADS FUND

At the annual meeting of the Actors' Fund, which was held yesterday afternoon at the Hudson Theatre, Daniel Frohman was re-elected President. Reports were made showing that last year $44,246.62 was expended in caring for the sick and destitute members of the dramatic profession. The average number assisted was 145 each week during the year. These were scattered all over the United States. There were 36 guests at the Actors' Fund Home on Staten Island, and the cost of maintaining the home was $19,443.18. Many improvements were made on the home property.

The total expenses for the fund amounted to $85,285.53. The total receipts were $48,508.40, of which amount were the following bequests: Richard Hyde, $25,000; Belle V. S. Wren, $4,259.35; Thomas F. Bardon, $500, and George H. Cohill, $150. The expenses exceeded the receipts by $36,777.13.

There are now 1,857 annual members and 408 life members of the fund. Other officers elected yesterday were First Vice President, Joseph R. Grismer; Second Vice President, F. F. Mackay; Treasurer, William Harris; Secretary, Edwin D. Miner; Trustees to serve for three years, Charles Burnham, Henry W. Savage, Winthrop Ames, Charles Dickson, Hollis E. Cooley, and Henry Miller.

Moonlight Dancing on Victoria Roof.

William Hammerstein announced yesterday that in addition to the Old Farm, the colored musical comedy company, and the other attractions on the roof of the Victoria Theatre this Summer, he would have moonlight dancing for the audiences on the evenings when the moon was working. On other nights artificial moonlight will be supplied. Dancing will be allowed between intermissions of the show and from 11 o'clock until 1 each night. A special dance floor is being built on the roof. Men and women partners will be supplied those in the audience who wish to learn the newest steps.

"A valuable contribution to American literature."

—From the Foreword of The Hon. JOSEPH H. CHOATE

Essays and Miscellanies

BY

JOSEPH S. AUERBACH

THIS is a collection of essays by the well-known New York lawyer, treating many subjects, widely diverse in character. The author sets forth in his essay on "Literature and the Practical World" his belief that the literary spirit and the business life should enter into closer acquaintance to the benefit of both. In his essay on "The Bible and Modern Life" he considers the Bible both from the standpoint of its religious value and as the great column which supports the structure of English literature. The titles of some of the other chapters are: "A Club," "Future in America," "English Style," "One Phase of Journalism," "Protest of the Democratic Party," "Matthew Arnold," etc.

HARPER & BROTHERS

LAMBS GET $16,818 AT GAMBOL AUCTION

All records for an advance sale for a single theatrical performance were broken yesterday afternoon when at a public auction of seats at the Hudson Theatre for the Lambs' All Star Gambol at the Metropolitan Opera House on Friday, May 22, $16,818.20 in premiums was raised in less than two hours.

The auction took place before an audience which filled every seat in the theatre, attracted by the announcement that the auctioneers would be De Wolf Hopper, Raymond Hitchcock, Julian Eltinge, Wilton Lackaye, Frank McIntyre, and others. The sale itself was in the nature of an entertainment, for the comedians put forth their best efforts to make the spectators buy seats.

Before the sale commenced a committee representing the Lambs' Club and headed by Malcolm Williams, laid in the hands of William Courtleigh the tidy sum of $7,100 in payment for a single box. This sum was raised by a general subscription in the clubhouse, and the ownership of the box will be decided by lot. It will then be resold by the owner to the highest bidder.

William Courtleigh, the Shepherd of The Lambs, opened the regular sale, and his lively efforts ran the first box up to $450, when it was knocked down to James Elverson, Jr., of Philadelphia. Other boxes brought premiums nearly as large, and none were sold for less than $100 premium. When the final figures were totaled it was found that the net proceeds of The Lambs excursion into high finance for one afternoon was $9,718.20, which sum, added to The Lambs own subscription of $7,100 for the first box, makes a net total in premiums alone of $16,818.20. As practically not more than a third of the house for the first performance was sold in this way, the regular box office sale, which opens at the Metropolitan next Monday morning, may carry the value of the first gambol performance up to nearly $30,000.

The second performance will take place on Saturday afternoon, May 23, and the auction sale for seats and boxes for that date will occur next Friday afternoon at the Hudson Theatre.

Advance reports from all other cities where they are to play during their ten days' tour assure them the greatest financial success they have ever gained.

Among the box buyers were James Elverson, Jr., William Courtleigh, R. W. White, Louis Strauss, P. J. Greenhut, George H. Broadhurst, E. E. Smith, Raymond Hitchcock, De Wolf Hopper, Henry Dazian, H. N. Baruch, W. S. Stow, Donald Brian, C. J. Denton, John L. Golden, J. R. Grismer, Dudley Field Malone, G. L. Morganthau, Paul Meyer, Dr. Oscar Leiser, F. Housman, and William Farnum.

The individual seats were offered immediately after the grand tier of boxes had been sold. James Buchanan Brady was the first purchaser, and he bought the entire front row at a premium of $25 per seat. Among the other buyers were more than a hundred, whose names are prominent in the social club life of New York. Victor Herbert, who has been seriously ill in London, sent a cablegram during the sale authorizing the Shepherd to purchase a gallery seat in his name for $100.

Vaudeville Comedy In New Home.

The Vaudeville Comedy Club officially opened its new clubhouse in what was formerly the Hotel Metropole, in Forty-third Street, east of Broadway, yesterday afternoon, and in honor of the occasion entertained a large number of actors and actressses and their friends with a housewarming.

NORDICA MADE WILL WHILE ON SHIPBOARD

Ex-Gov. Adams of Colorado Drew It Up as Disabled Tasman Was Nearing Port.

ILL WHEN THE SHIP STRUCK

Was Despondent Over Her Condition Before the Accident, He Says on Arriving Here.

Ex-Gov. Alva Adams of Colorado, who arrived at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday from an eight months' trip to Australia, New Zealand, and the East Indies as United States Commissioner to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, told of the accident to the Royal Dutch Mail liner Tasman, which was reported to have caused the death of Mme. Nordica later at Batavia, Java.

"Mme. Nordica was very ill when I last saw her at Thursday Island before I sailed on a Japanese steamer for Manila," said ex-Gov. Adams, "so I was not much surprised to hear of her death. I met her for the first time in Melbourne, where she was the social star at a reception given at the Government House by Lord Denman, the Governor General of Australia.

"We were fellow passengers on the Tasman, and I know that Mme. Nordica was ill when the steamship ran ashore in the Gulf of Papua on the night of Dec. 27. In her conversations with my wife and myself before the accident, the singer appeared to be rather despondent as to her condition, and on Jan. 1 she sent for me to make her will. That was the day after the Tasman got off the rocks, and she was then proceeding slowly under her own steam to Thursday Island."

"Was there any panic among the passengers when the Tasman struck?" the ex-Governor was asked.

"No. There was very little excitement. The majority of the passengers were below in their cabins at the time. I was talking to the Captain after dinner on deck about 9 o'clock and he informed me that we were in the most dangerous waters in the world, Torres Straits. 'But have no fear,' he said, 'I am very cautious in my navigation here, and we shall be anchored at 11 o'clock to-night.'

"So we were," said ex-Gov. Adams, "but it was on the rocks which had pierced her hull. I can only speak in the highest terms of the Dutch officers and seamen. Their behavior was perfect and all hands worked like trojans to lighten the ship during the four days we remained on the rocks.

"It was very fortunate that we got off when we did, because next day along came a tornado which would have meant disaster if the Tasman had still been anchored on the rocks. She is a splendid vessel. I saw her in drydock afterward at Batavia. They were putting eighty new plates in her hull, so she must have had a big hole torn in her when she struck the rocks. Keeping her afloat and getting her along to Thursday Island with the pumps going night and day was a fine piece of seamanship on the part of her Captain, officers, and crew."

Ex-Gov. Adams said he would spend a few days here before going West. He added that he was pleased with the results of his trip, and was sure that the exposition would be a great success.

TO EXHIBIT AT OUR FAIR.

Commissioners Get Acceptances from Many Countries.

Thomas G. Stallsmith, Chief of the Department of Agriculture of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, arrived yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie from a trip to Australia, the East Indies and China as United States Commissioner, with ex-Gov. Alva Adams of Colorado, also a Commissioner, and Wilton Stallsmith, his son, as Secretary. Mrs. Stallsmith and Mrs. Adams accompanied the Commissioners.

The Commissioners obtained acceptances of President Wilson's invitation to participate in the exposition from the following countries, with these appropriations: Australia, $400,000; New Zealand, $200,000; Dutch East Indies, $250,000; Philippine Islands, $600,000; Cochin China, $150,000; Indo Chino, $150,000; Siam, $250,000, and China, $1,000,000.

MRS. ANNA M. SCHIEFFELIN.

Widow of Edgar Schieffelin Succumbs at Hotel Ansonia.

Mrs. Anna Marie Schieffelin, widow of Edgar Schieffelin, died yesterday at her apartment in the Hotel Ansonia after an illness of three weeks. Her husband, who died on March 21, 1903, was a son of Judge Effingham Schieffelin and was a descendant of Jacob Schieffelin of Weilheim, Germany, who came to America early in the eighteenth century.

The Schieffelin family has been traced in Germany back to the thirteenth century. Edgar Schieffelin studied law and was admitted to the bar, but owing to his large inheritance, which included a valuable tract of 350 acres in the Bronx, he never went into the practice of law. He died at the age of 70 years.

Mrs. Schieffelin was a daughter of John Bant of London, and was upward of 80 years of age. About four years ago she closed her country house at 225th Street and Boston Road, and came to make her home at the Ansonia. She is survived by two sons and two daughters.

John J. C. Smith, Inventor, Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., May 12.—John J. C. Smith, a well-known inventor and manufacturer, died to-day at his home, 148 Paulison Avenue. He was born in Bavaria in 1835 and came to America when a youth. He lived for a time in Boston, and thirty-one years ago came to this city, where he had since resided. Mr. Smith obtained more than sixty United States and foreign patents, among which was an English patent on a compression casting. One of his earliest patents on a die for the making of coins was purchased by the United States Government. His invention of a compression casting is known all over the world. The Maine memorial statue was made with this casting. Nine children survive him.

AIDS HONOR LEGION FUND.

Concert at Waldorf for Families of Slain Policemen.

In aid of the Honor Legion fund, whose object is to give immediate relief to those dependent on policemen killed in the performance of their duty, a concert was given in the ballroom of the Waldorf last night.

There was a large audience, and all of the boxes were subscribed for. Among the subscribers, most of whom were present, were Mayor Mitchel, Police Commissioner Woods, Andrew Carnegie, Thomas F. Ryan, George J. Gould, John D. Archbold, R. Fulton Cutting, C. M. Depew, E. E. McCall, Arthur Curtiss James, R. A. C. Smith, Isaac Seligman, John E. Parsons, Walter Scott, Charles Thorley, Charles Straus, John F. Pearson, Mrs. Vincent Paterno, Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, Philip Rhinelander, T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, Oliver Harriman, William A. Rich, W. W. McAlpin, and Robert F. Adams.

Those who took part were Manolito Funes, 13 years old, a Spanish pianist; Edgar Donovan, boy soprano of Grace Church; Florence Anderson-Otis, soprano, who sang two songs by Hallett Gilberté, with the composer at the piano, and Mabel McKinley, soprano. Andrew Carnegie sent a large check for the fund.

SPANISH STATESMAN DEAD.

Montero-Rios Drafted Treaty Which Ended War with America.

MADRID, May 12.—Eugenio Montero-Rios, one of the best known Spanish statesmen and the man who drafted the treaty which brought the Spanish American war to a close in 1898, died today at the age of 82.

Eugenio Montero-Rios, a deep student of civil and canonical law and a brilliant orator, exercised immense influence in the Spanish Parliament of which he was a member either in the Chamber of Deputies or the Senate for forty-five years having been first elected in 1869. For a great part of this period he was also a Government official chiefly in the Department of Justice, where he first served as Under Secretary and then several times as Minister. In 1888 he was President of The Spanish Supreme Court and in 1904-05 Prime Minister.

His name became familiar to Americans in 1898 when he was appointed President of the Spanish peace commission which met the American commission in Paris in October of that year. The two commissions then agreed on the terms of the Spanish-American treaty which provided for the independence of Cuba and the cession of the Philippine Islands to the United States.

As a statesman Montero-Rios was very liberal in his ideas. Although an ardent Catholic he was strongly in favor of liberty of conscience and when Minister of Justice instituted the civil marriage in Spain. He collaborated actively in the drafting of the Spanish criminal code in which he introduced many reforms. While in office as Minister of Patronage he brought about the creation of the first Chambers of Commerce in Spain.

DETROIT SHUTS OUT YANKEES---BROOKLYN FEDERALS TIE PITTSBURGH

TIGERS RUN AWAY WITH A VICTORY

They Grab It at the Start and the Yankees Could Never Overtake Them.

The Detroit Tigers, chaperoned by Hughey Jennings, came to town yesterday to show New York why they are leading the American League. As partners in the demonstration they had the Yankees. As far as general observation would show, the Detroits are leading the league because they can hit the ball. They beat Manager Frank Chance's club at the Polo Grounds by a score of 4 to 0. Yes, they certainly hit that ball.

The Tigers looked very much as if they deserved all the attention they have attracted in the pastime. For instance, the first thing they did yesterday, shortly after the game began, was to pound "Heinie" Schulz off the mound. That was after they had collected three runs off him. Jack Warhop, with his underhand toss, came to the Yanks' relief and the Tigers got only one more run, which they had no need of.

Still another reason why the Detroits are in the lead is Harry Covaleski, the pitcher, who in 1908, when he was with the Phillies, beat the Giants out of the pennant. Curses! What with the Tigers' batting and Covaleski's pitching the Yankees occupied precisely the same position as the rejected suitor at a wedding. Covaleski has done little pitching of note since he subdued the Giants in 1908 when employed by the Phils, but the long rest seems to have done him a world of good.

Hardly a game passes nowadays without some one being presented with something. Yesterday the blushing honors fell upon Marty Kavanaugh, the new Detroit second baseman.

It was Marty's fortune to be born in Harrison, N. J., so the town rose en masse yesterday and descended upon the Polo Grounds, bearing good wishes and gifts. The delegation was headed by Mayor Joe Riordan, who made a long speech, which scarcely anybody heard. He told of Kavanaugh's career from the time he hopped out of the cradle, ending the oration with the impressive remark, "And just look where he is to-day." Thereupon he slipped Marty a gold watch and fob, after which Kavanaugh showed his gratitude by making a base hit. This was contrary to all custom, because nearly always when a player receives a present he strikes out.

Mr. Jennings still does his little bit of managing as neatly as ever. He started in yesterday afternoon by pulling up much of the grass along the first and third base lines, and expects before the series is over to have it all pulled up. It's quite simple to understand Hughey's signals, however. When he pulls five blades of grass with Ty Cobb at the bat, that's the signal for a two-bagger, and when he rips up only four blades, that's the tip-off for "Doney" Bush to plaster the ball for all he's worth.

Another thing about this ball game which should not be overlooked was the fact that the temperature was so close to zero that the mercury in the thermometer was yelling for help before the game was half over. One of the umpires was named Chill, but he was asked as a special request that the free and untrampled people of these United States kindly desist from making jokes out of his name. He almost put one player out of the game yesterday for telling him that he ought to be driving an ice wagon. That's not a nice way to talk. Give him a chance.

Still another reason why the Tigers are leading the league is their splendiferous fielding. It doesn't matter whether the ball is hidden under the dust or hanging to a cloud, they get 'em just the same.

The Detroies started this way: Bush got a hit to centre and took second as Holden did a hesitation with the ball. Kavanaugh got an infield hit, sending Bush to third. Cobb smashed out a double, scoring Bush and sending Kavanaugh to third. Sam Crawford poled a sacrifice fly to right, scoring the pride of Harrison, N. J. Cobb just naturally hurried to third. Johnny High, who is the smallest man on the club, walked. That was the end of Heinie Schulz. Frank Chance doesn't mind losing a game, but he will not give any away if he can help it.

With Warhop pitching, Burns skied to Walsh and Cobb ambled home on the sacrifice. Moriarty walked and Detroit's run jamboree came to a close when Warhop tossed Oscar Stanage out at first. That half inning consumed just eighteen minutes of cold, wintry weather.

The Yankees had a chance to score in the seventh but couldn't take advantage of the lay-out. Covaleski got a bit wild and walked Holden, who stole second. Sweeney and Peckinpaugh fanned and Truesdale walked. Daniel Boone was put in to bat for Warhop, but he was tossed out at first by Covaleski.

With King Cole pitching in the eighth, Moriarty walked and went to second on Cole's wild toss to first. Stanage sacrificed him to third and "Mory" scored on Bush's infield hit. The score:

Senators Rally at End and Win.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Washington won the first game of the series with Chicago to-day, 3 to 2, by a ninth-inning rally. In the local's half of the last inning, Shanks started with a single, stole second, and scored on Morgan's single. Johnson was hit rather freely in the early innings, but tightened up toward the close. Milan hit a home run, a two bagger, and two singles in four times at bat. Score:

Cleveland Bumps Champions.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Cleveland knocked Bush off the rubber in the fifth inning and also hit Pennock's delivery hard and won to-day's game here by 12 to 4. Jackson led in the slugging with three singles and a double in five times at bat, while Leibold, Turner, and Wood each got three hits. Murphy, who made two singles and a triple, was the only home player who could solve Mitchell's delivery. The score:

Browns Shut Out on "Leary Day."

BOSTON, May 12.—Boston shut out St. Louis, 7 to 0, in the opening game of the series to-day. Foster held the visitors to three scattered hits. It was "Leary Day," and several hundred friends of the young St. Louis first baseman came with a brass band from Waltham, where Leary played on a high-school team, and presented him with a diamond ring. He made one of the three hits off the Red Sox pitcher. No St. Louis player got beyond second base during the game. The score:

DARKNESS BREAKS UP FEDERAL GAME

Brooklyn Ties Score Against Pittsburgh and Game Ends Deadlocked.

Rather than keep the handful of half-frozen spectators longer from their cheery hearths and still steaming victuals, Umpire McCormick in the growing dusk of yesterday afternoon called the game between the Brooklyn and Pittsburgh Feds in the tenth inning, with the score then tied at 5 to 5. The hard-working umpires and aforesaid spectators might have gotten home somewhat earlier had it not been for the unkindness of one Eddie Gagnier, who shortstops for the Tip Tops. Gagnier's offense consisted in driving out a line hit to right field with two teammates and accomplices on second and third bases in the eighth inning and thus tieing the score when the Brooklyn cause seemed to be well-nigh hopeless.

Up to the eighth inning the game had been all Pittsburgh's way, and Knetzer had been pitching invincibly. Up to that time the score stood 5 to 1. In this inning, however, Claude Cooper, the ex-Giant, started trouble by getting to first when Knetzer got mixed up in an easy grounder to the pitcher's box. He then promptly stole second. Myers popped out, but Evans came through with a hit which scored Cooper. Hofman popped up a weak fly in the infield, but Lennox ran all round it and it went for a hit. Evans and Hofman then worked the double steal and each advanced a base. The Pittsburgh infield seemed to be demoralized, and when Danny Murphy bunted in front of the plate, Knetzer fell trying to get it, and another man scored.

Gagnier cleared the bases with his hit to right field, tieing the score, but his ambition to stretch it into a double proved disastrous, and he went out on a pretty throw from McDonald to Lewis. The rally in this inning netted a total of four runs.

Maxwell, who pitched for Brooklyn, allowed only seven hits, but gave five bases on balls. "Baron" Knetzer, the Rebels' moundsman, pitched well, but got poor support. He struck out nine men, gave one base on balls and allowed seven hits, several of which might easily have been scored as errors for his teammates. The attendance was less than 500. The score:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Boston and Pittsburgh in a 1 to 1 Tie—Wagner Injured.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 12.—Pittsburgh and Boston went ten innings to a one to one tie this afternoon, Umpire Klem calling the game on account of darkness at the end of the tenth inning. Rudolph and Cooper pitched excellent ball and each pitcher scored his team's only run. Copper's single in the sixth was Pittsburgh's first hit off Rudolph. He took second on an out and scored on Carey's triple. Maranville then saved the game for Boston by running down the left field line and making a great catch of Mowrey's difficult Texas leaguer for the third out. Rudolph singled in the sixth, advanced on Evers's sacrifice, took third on an out, and scored on Dugey's infield hit. Wagner's hand was bodly spiked when Mann was retired at second trying to stretch a single in the tenth. He may not play in the New York series. The scores:

$950 FOR IRISH JOHN.

Harbison Kentucky Saddle Horses Sold Under Hammer for Good Prices.

The prices obtained at the sale of the Harbison Kentucky saddle horses yesterday at the Little Riding School, 124 West Fifty-sixth Street, shows the saddle horse market to be in a healthy condition. George A. Bain, the auctioneer for Fasig-Tipton Company, which conducted the sale, disposed of eighteen saddlers for $7,725, or an average of $428. It was a special sale of highly trained horses form the famous Blue Grass region, and was marked by the general uniformity of price.

The novelty of holding the sale late in the afternoon was attended with success, and many prominent saddle horse riders were on hand, together with the regular contingent, but the latter appeared to be well provided with saddlers, as only one dealer succeeded in getting a bargain during the sale.

Top price was paid for Irish John, a splendid chestnut weight carrier, with a short back, good shoulders, and splendid bone. After some lively bidding, Irish John was knocked down to Richard King of Brooklyn for $950. The second highest price was $600, J. F. Pearson paying this sum for the chestnut gelding Grandgent. David Wagstaff of Tuxedo added two splendid saddlers to his stable for $750. He paid $350 for Dansant, a well-mannered, small chestnut, an $400 for Pointex, a half-brother to the show horse Petroleum. The prices follow:

Joan Sawyer, b. m., 6 years, 15¾ hands—F. C. Jantor, New York City	450
Pointex, blk. g., 6 years, 15½ hands—David Wagstaff, Tuxedo, N. Y.	400
The Irishman, br. g., 6 years, 15½ hands—W. E. Lewis, New York City	500
Poala, gr. g., 6 years, 15¾ hands—Turner Wilmore, New York City	290
Irish John, ch. g., 5 years, 15¾ hands—Richard King, Brooklyn	950
Taffetango, b. m., 6 years, 14¼ hands—A. H. Lockett, New York City	275
Spartan, b. g., 5 years, 15¾ hands—Miss Margaret Whitney, N. Y. City	425
Bay mare, 6 years, 15½ hands—Thomas Spratley, New York City	340
Bay mare, 6 years, 15¾ hands—W. S. Corbin, New York City	300
Grandgent, ch. g., 7 years, 16¼ hands—J. F. Pearson, New York City	600
Oriniko, blk. g., 5 years, 16 hands—W. King, New York City	570
Helen R., b. m., 6 years, 15½ hands—J. Bothwell, New York City	300
Proxy, b. g., 6 years, 15 hands—G. D. Hughes, New York City	280
Loti, b. m., 5 years, 15½ hands—Miss Mary Archer, Reading, Penn.	475
Belle Brent, ch. m., 6 years, 15½ hands—Henry Sell, New York City	545
Brown mare, 6 years, 15½ hands	400

RESOLUTE IN COMMISSION.

Cup Defender Will Begin Tuning-Up Races To-day.

BRISTOL, R. I., May 12.—The cup defense candidate Resolute was placed formally in commission to-day with the acceptance of the completed yacht by the owning syndicate from the hands of the builders. Robert W. Emmons, 2d, of Boston, acted as the syndicate representative at the ceremony.

With the New York Yacht Club pennant flying at her main truck, the yacht will begin to-morrow her series of tuning up trials in preparation for the races with the other candidates for the defense of the America's Cup. For a week or more, her headquarters will be at New port, and later she will go to New York.

Setting Spars on Defiance.

BATH, Me., May 12.—The work of setting the spars on the cup defense yacht Defiance, which was launched yesterday occupied the crew's time to-day, and her skipper, Selah B. Howell now expects that she will be ready to leave in tow for Marblehead next Sunday.

Feds Will Start Early.

Starting with to-day's game, the Federal League games in Brooklyn will be started at 3 o'clock instead of at 3:30 o'clock, as has been the custom. This plan has been considered for some time and it was decided to put it into effect after yesterday's game, which was called in the tenth inning because of darkness. In addition to the possibility of an over-inning game being stopped because of the dusk on a cloudy day, the Brooklyn management believes that many people dislike to be kept at a game until nearly 6 o'clock, as is often the case.

Among the spectators at yesterday's game was William F. Baker, President of the Philadelphia Nationals. After the game he had a talk with John M. Ward, Secretary of the Tip Tops, whom he complimented upon the new playing field and stands. The rivalry between the Feds and organized baseball was not discussed.

Mr. Ward said last night that he was greatly pleased with the drainage system at the new field, and called attention to the good condition of the diamond after the rainstorm of the early part of the ay and the preceding night. He said he thought the Tip Tops would be able to use their field when the teams in many other cities are balked by wet grounds.

Gilmore Testifies in $400 Suit.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 12.—James A. Gilmore, President of the Federal League, came to Rochester this morning to appear before the Grand Jury as a witness in the proceedings brought by the local International League Club to recover $400 alleged to have been paid in advance to "Tex" McDonald, who has jumped to the Pittsburgh Federals. Before departing for Chicago he announced that his league would gladly return the money to the Rochester team if it can be shown that McDonald received the money and has not returned it.

242 TO PLAY FOR BRITISH GOLF TITLE

Ten Americans Are Included in Record Entry for Amateur Tournament.

SANDWICH, England, May 12.—The entries for the British amateur golf championship, the first round of which will be played next Monday, reached a total of 242 to-night, and it is possible that additional entries may arrive by post to-morrow. The previous highest total was 200. Ten American players are among the entrants.

Their names. They were Francis Ouimet of the Woodland Golf Club, Massachusetts, open golf champion of the United States; Jerome D. Travers of Montclair, N. J., amateur golf champion of the United States; Frederick Herreshoff of New York, Arthur G. Lockwood of the Belmont Springs Country Club, Massachusetts; Fraser Hale of Chicago, C. W. Inslee of the Oneida Community Club, New York; Edward S. Knapp of Westbrook, Henry J. Topping of the Greenwich Country Club, Connecticut, and Harold Weber of Toledo, Ohio, and Charles W. (Chick) Evans, Jr., of Chicago, formerly Western open golf champion.

The draw in the championship tournament will take place to-morrow, and, according to the official announcement, is to be conducted as follows: Depending on the number of entries, such number of byes shall be first drawn as shall, after the completion of the first round, leave 4, 8, 16, 32, 64, or 128 players, and one draw shall decide the order of play throughout the competition—those who have drawn byes being placed at the head of the list of winners of the first round and taking their place in the second round in the order in which their names then stand.

WOMEN GOLFERS OUT.

Mrs. H. R. Stockton Wins Gross Score Prize at Montclair.

Despite overhanging skies which threatened rain at any moment, thirty-two players affiliated with the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association teed up yesterday in a one-day tournament over the links of the Montclair Golf Club. Mrs. H. R. Stockton, who made such a good showing in the national championship last Fall, won the gross prize with her 96. The scoring was generally high by reason of the fact that the turf was heavy and the greens unusually keen. For the second time in as many meetings Mrs. Lester Ketcham of Fox Hills took the net award with a card of 114—25—89.

The side attraction yesterday was an approaching and putting contest from three distances to the new punch bowl green, originally meant to be part of the fourth hole. Mrs. J. S. Irving of Scarsdale was the winner with 8 points.

The next tournament of this kind will be held to-morrow at Knollwood, near White Plains. The scores:

Name and Club.	G.	H.	Net.
Mrs. Lester Ketcham, Fox Hills	114	25	89
Mrs. H. R. Stockton, Plainfield	96	3	93
Mrs. J. S. Irving, Scarsdale	103	6	97
Mrs. C. F. Uebelacher, Hackensack	104	7	97
Mrs. C. W. Rendigs, Midland	102	4	98
Miss G. F. Wood, Englewood	112	14	98
Miss Grace Farrelly, Englewood	108	10	98
Mrs. William Chilvers, Dunwoodie	103	4	99
Mrs. W. J. Faith, Wykagyl	131	31	100
Mrs. D. J. O'Connell, Hackensack	126	25	101
Miss Bertha Stratton, Cranford	109	7	102
Mrs. T. H. Thomas, Hackensack	113	11	102
Mrs. Walter Perry, Baltusrol	107	5	102
Mrs. F. E. Donohoe, Montclair	109	7	102
Mrs. Lawrence Swift, Knollwood	106	3	103
Mrs. A. C. Aborn, Montclair	110	7	103
Miss Edith Hillier, Cranford	111	7	104
Mrs. F. B. Ryan, Cranford	112	7	105
Mrs. Donald G. Heddes, Nassau	112	6	106
Miss L. F. F. Wanner, Essex Co.	112	7	105
Miss Julia Bredt, Essex County	120	12	108
Mrs. W. I. Seaman, Richmond Co.	119	8	111
Mrs. W. H. Loftus, Montclair	140	20	120

Entries for the metropolitan amateur championship tournament which begins a week from to-day over the links of the Englewood Country Club will close Saturday noon with Frederick H. Thomas, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, at 71 Broadway. The conditions governing the tournament call for a thirty-six hole qualifying round, the first thirty-two players pairing up for match play for the title. Two other divisions of sixteen each are provided for. There also will be the usual side attractions.

Engineers Play Golf at Bayside.

More than sixty members of the Golf Club of the Engineers' Club of New York competed yesterday in the events of that organization over the links of the Oakland Golf Club at Bayside. In the morning attention was devoted to foursomes, combined scores counting, and in the afternoon an eighteen hole medal play handicap was played in three classes.

C. G. M. Thomas and W. W. Nichols won the first foursomes prize with 216, 48—168, while the second award went to C. I. Earll and H. T. Shriver, with 209, 40—169.

Frederick C. Newton of Richmond County led Class A in the handicap with 81, 3—78, but he could not take both gross and net prizes, so he chose the gross prize, and left the first net for Eads Johnson of Montclair with 93, 7—86. Second was won by Capt. E. M. Sawtelle for his 100, 10—90.

A similar situation was brought about in the second division, except that C. R. Ellicott was the one involved with his 92, 17—75, but he, like Newton, preferred the gross, and it left the net for C. A. Goodspeed with 102, 20—82. J. G. Wright was second with 100, 16—84.

Gross honors in the third division were won by W. O. Wood for his 105, C. G. M. Thomas getting the net with 108, 30—78, and D. A. Fox second net with 107, 18—89.

Rain Stops Fordham Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 12.—Harvard and Fordham were able to play only three innings this afternoon, rain then stopping the game, with the score 3 to 1 in Fordham's favor. The New Yorkers agreed to remain until to-morrow, when it may be possible to play the game, although the field is in very poor condition. Fordham got its runs by virtue of hard hitting, netting six singles in the three innings. A run was made in the first on the combination of singles by Berrigan, Carroll, and Conway, and in the third Kiernan and Kane made base hits against lefthander Frye, Viviano then putting in a double. Harvard's one run was made in the first inning, when Clark's hit and two passes filled the corners, Walsh then forcing home a run by giving another base on balls to Gannett. Milholland then fanned with the bases full.

Fighting Ball Players Fined.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 12.—W. J. Sweeney of the Chicago Nationals and Lee Magee of the St. Louis Nationals, who had a fight during the Chicago-St. Louis game yesterday, were fined $50 each by President Tener of the National League. Notice of the fines was received here to-day.

WANT REGATTA SHIFTED.

Cornell Will Strive to Have Hudson Event Rowed on Cayuga Lake.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 12.—As soon as this year's boat races at Poughkeepsie are over Graduate Manager Kent of the Cornell Athletic Association will lay before the Board of Stewards a proposition to transfer this great regatta from Poughkeepsie to Cayuga Lake.

Another increase in the price of the observation car seats at Poughkeepsie which has caused a howl of protests from hundreds of persons who annually attend the regatta is the impelling force behind this proposed move. The New York Central has increased the price of observation car seats 50 per cent. in the last five years, the latest increase being 50 cents over last year. As the railroad has complete control of the situation the universities which send crews to the Hudson have no recourse except to change the site of the regatta, and this is what Cornell proposes to agitate after this year's regatta is over.

Cayuga Lake has a four-mile course which experts declare is as good as any. The observation train for the Navy day regatta here this year will be thirty-six cars long, and the course has the advantage of having no tide. It will be nearer to Syracuse and Wisconsin than Poughkeepsie, just as near for Pennsylvania, and Columbia alone would be further away if the regatta was shifted here.

Ten Eyck Picks Syracuse Crew.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 12.—James A. Ten Eyck, coach of the Syracuse University crews, to-night announced the make-up of the crew which will represent the Orange in the first eights race at the American regatta in Philadelphia on Saturday. Six of the eight men who rowed Syracuse to victory at Poughkeepsie last June will be seated. The crew will be placed as follows: Stroke, Glass; No. 7, Hilfinger; No. 6, Capt. Rich; No. 5, Propst; No. 4, Robbins; No. 3, Kuehn; No. 2, Landers; bow, Mahan; coxswain, Goes. Glass and Landers, both of whom rowed in the freshman eight at Poughkeepsie, are the only new men. Although it was not decided to send a crew until to-day, Coach Ten Eyck has been drilling his combination at the Henley distance.

CORNELL ATHLETES HURT.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 12.—Injuries to three members of the Cornell track team sustained in the recent meet with Harvard have proved so serious that one of the men, Newman, a sprinter, is out of the game for the balance of the season, while two others, Van Winkle and Millard, will probably be unable to compete against Pennsylvania in Saturday's games. Newman pulled a tendon in the Harvard meet and he is regarded as incapacitated for the rest of the college athletic year. Van Winkle, Cornell's best 220 man, fell in the last ten yards of his race and his muscles and tissues were crusted with cinders so that he had to be carried to the training table. Millard, a high hurdler, fell over one of the hurdles and his legs and thighs were so badly scratched that he was sent to the infirmary.

HARVARD CREW ILLS.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 12.—The Harvard 'Varsity eight, changed frequently during the past three weeks by illness or reversals of form, to-day lost Capt. Reynolds, who was stricken with a severe cold. He will be out of the boat for a week. It is hoped that Schall and Gardiner, who are also on the sick list, will be able to return by next Monday.

With the 'Varsity crew demoralized, Coach Wray centred his attention on the second eight, which is to row at Philadelphia on Saturday. Curtis was taken from the first boat to row in the second, and the following was given as the probable order for the Henley event: Stroke, Lund; 7, Curtis; 6, Parson; 5, Meyers; 4, H. N. Middendorf; 3, Murray; 2, Busk; bow, Saltonstall; Kreger, coxswain.

Montclair Debaters Play Ball.

In a stirring twelve-inning game, in which most of the work devolved on the pitchers, the Rostrum Debating Society defeated the Forums by the score of 5 to 4. Both societies are affiliated with the Montclair Academy. The batteries were: For Rostrum, Pattison and MacHarg; for Forum, Skinner and Hazel.

GOOD ROADS LEAD TO WESTCHESTER

Best Routes to the North of the City Given by A. C. A.—Other Motor News.

For the most part the roads into and in Westchester are in good condition for motoring at present. The Automobile Club of America's bureau of tours reports that a good route to Mount Vernon and Bronxville is by way of Pelham Parkway and White Plains Road. The last-named highway, however, should not be used beyond Bronxville, as it is in poor condition from this point to White Plains. Central Avenue above the city line gives a satisfactory route to this place. A good alternate route is by way of Broadway to 207th Street, across the bridge and over Fordham Road, Pelham Parkway, and the Shore Road to New Rochelle. Then follow the Boston Post Road to Larchmont. Go past the square to the drinking trough, turn left, cross the trolley tracks and run up the hill. Cross the railroad and two-tenths of a mile beyond take a right fork. Turn right into Palmer Avenue, 3.5 miles farther on, and half a mile beyond turn left for one block and then right into White Plains Road. This alternate gives the best going at present.

North Broadway, leaving White Plains for Armonk, Bedford and points to the north, is worn and rough through the Kensico Reservoir section. A good way to avoid this rough stretch and also the heavy traffic on this road is to run north one block from the water trough on North Broadway, then turn right into Lake Street, bear left into the Boulevard around Rye Pond, and then connect with King Street for Armonk. From New York, Broadway is in good condition through Yonkers to Tarrytown, with the exception of a short rough stretch in Dobbs Ferry. Warburton Avenue, which was rebuilt in the late Autumn, now gives fine going and good views of the Hudson from Yonkers to Hastings. From the city limits of Tarrytown the road is in fair condition to White Plains. A good road in this section is from Elmsford to Hartsdale and Mamaroneck. This makes a good connection from Tarrytown to points on Long Island Sound and to the ferries for Long Island.

"Automobile Row" was interested yesterday in the announcement that the Phelps Motor Car Corporation had installed in its salesrooms an exhibition of moving pictures showing the manufacture of Studebaker cars from the pig iron and raw steel to the finished product. The Row also heard that E. O. Sutton whose recent purchase of the property of the Knox Automobile Company of Springfield, Mass., has been confirmed by the court, intended to continue the active manufacture of pleasure cars, trucks, and motor fire apparatus of this make, and that the Paige-Detroit company of New York had introduced a selling innovation by placing on its salesrooms floor new 1914 models of several competitive cars, so that "prospects" might have an opportunity for comparison.

New York Tennis Club Tourney.

The annual open tournament of the New York Lawn Tennis Club will be held on the Columbia Oval May 23 and the following days. The events to be contested are men's scratch singles, men's handicap singles, and the Manhattan doubles championship. There will be first and second prizes for each event, and a consolation prize in the scratch singles. Entries will close at 6 P. M. Friday, May 22, with B. W. Stair, New York Lawn Tennis Club, Columbia Oval, Williamsbridge, New York City. Telephone 160 Williamsbridge. They should be accompanied by the address and telephone number of the contestant, and by the following: Entrance fees, singles, $2; doubles, $3 the team. The matches will be best two of three sets, except in the finals, when the best three of five sets will be played.

The rules of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association will govern the play. Play will begin at 1:30 P. M. on the opening day, and at 3 o'clock each following day, except May 24, when play will begin at 10 A. M. Contestants not present when their matches are called may be defaulted. It is particularly important that contestants in the scratch singles be present on the opening day. No doubles or handicap matches will be played on the first day.

The women's invitation tournament at the Essex County Country Club, at West Orange, which was to begin on May 20, has been postponed to May 26. This was due to the desire of the Essex Club management not to clash with the Pelham tournament.

ENGLAND MAY NOT SEND POLO TEAM

Defection of Major Hunter Causes Crisis in Selection of Challenge Four.

HURLINGHAM TO DECIDE

Whether to Muster a Team to Come to America or Withdraw Challenge —Not Enough Suitable Players.

LONDON, May 12.—Upon the result of the meeting of the Hurlingham Club's Committee to-morrow afternoon will depend the decision as to whether the contest for the International Polo Challenge Cup will take place in the United States this year. Baron Wimborne, who yesterday announced the names of the members of a team which he expected to take to America, had another stroke of bad luck to-day, in consequence of which he was compelled reluctantly to acknowledge that he was now unable to make up the team, and had appealed to the Hurlingham Club, in whose name the challenge was sent to the American team, to decide what is to be done.

Lord Wimborne received the following telegram from Major C. F. Hunter, who had been announced as the "back" on the English team:

"Exceedingly sorry that the condition of my wife is such that I find myself compelled to abandon the idea of going to America. This answer must be considered final."

Lord Wimborne spent several hours in an endeavor to discover a substitute for Major Hunter, but "backs" up to the international polo standard are rare, and he was unable to find one who would join his team. This evening he reported the state of affairs to the Hurlingham Club, with the result that its committee was hastily summoned to meet. The shortness of the time remaining, if a team is to be sent, increases the difficulties of the situation. In order to carry out Lord Wimborne's plans the ponies must be on the steamer by 4 o'clock Friday.

POLICE ATHLETIC GAMES.

Two-Day Carnival in Aid of the Honor Roll Relief Fund.

Many novelties are promised for the Police Department athletic carnival at Brighton Beach race track June 26 to 27. The proceeds of the meet will be applied to the fund started by R. A. C. Smith, known as the Honor Roll Relief Fund, for the benefit of the widows and orphans of members of the Police Department killed in the performance of their duty.

The athletic events will bring out Patrick McDonald, Martin J. Sheridan, John J. Eller, Egon Errickson, Matt McGrath, and others. Andrew Carnegie will be asked to referee the tug-of-war contest and Mayor Mitchel will act as referee of a number of the events.

The committee plans to give a review showing how the police appeared from the early Amsterdam days down to the present day. Officers will be dressed in costumes and carry lanterns, rattles, and staves. Various uniforms have been secured which promises to make this event a very picturesque one. The committee is asking David Belasco to stage this event.

Another feature will be the catching of a thief, with the aid of police dogs and an aeroplane. Officer Murphy, known as "Mile-a-Minute" Murphy, will give an exhibition of how a policeman utilizes an aeroplane in the arresting of an offender. Tickets will be on sale at the committee's headquarters, Room 654, Marbridge Building.

TWENTY BALLOONS IN RACE.

Third American Contestant to be Selected at St. Louis Trial.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 12.—The Balloon Kansas City II. will represent the Kansas City Aero Club in the national elimination balloon race starting from St. Louis, July 7, according to an announcement made by George M. Myers, President of the local aero club.

Two American balloonists—Ralph Upton of Akron, Ohio, and Captain H. B. Honeywell of St. Louis—already have been named to represent this country in this year's international race for the James Gordon Bennett trophy and the contest at St. Louis will be to chose a third American contestant.

The international race will start from Kansas City on Oct. 6 with twenty balloons representing Germany, Switzerland, France, Belgium, Austria, Italy and the United States. Last year's race which was held in Germany was won by Upton in the balloon Goodyear.

Athletic Centres on East Side.

Athletic centres, at which all public school boys can indulge in athletic sport from 3 o'clock P. M. until 5:30 P. M., have been established on the east side with the object of engaging the attention of the youngsters and eliminating the formation of street gangs and cigarette smoking squads. The centres are under the supervision of the Board of Education, and a teacher has been assigned to each of the centres to instruct the juveniles in athletics. The centres will be open on each school day, and tournaments in basket ball, baseball, soccer football, handball, class athletics, and athletic badge tests. The officials selected for these games are picked from the school classes. In this way the teacher in charge not only teaches athletics, but aids the boys in becoming competent officials, such as timers, judges, inspectors, and other positions necessary in running off games. The teacher in charge is required to make weekly and monthly reports to headquarters regarding the progress of the contestant's work.

Salathe Wins Road Race.

G. Salathe was the winner of the final members' handicap road race of the St. Bartholomew's Athletic Club, which was decided last night over a course about four and one-half miles long. He started with a handicap allowance of 1 minute 15 seconds, and his actual time for the distance was 21:40. Ideal weather conditions prevailed and twelve athletes faced the starter. The race was close throughout, and before the finish line was reached two contestants were forced to withdraw. J. Hopkins, the honor man, finished second in 20:32, actual time. The course was from the clubhouse at Third Avenue and Forty-second Street to Seventy-second Street and Fifth Avenue, and return by the same route. This was the final race of the season and gave the "Blues" the season's point trophy, they having accumulated a total of 118 points, as against 112 for the "Red" team. Following is the order of finish: G. Salathe, (1:15,) 21:40; J. Hopkins, (scratch,) 20:32; P. Lockhardt, (2:30,) 23:46; G. Griffen, (1:45,) 22:10; J. Gaddi, (0:30.) 23:42; G. Trombetta, (1:15,) 23:12; C. Larson, (1:30,) 23:00; A. Carlson, (1:30,) 23:10; F. Travers, (1:45,) 23:43; J. Eidt, (2:30,) 29:34.

Cyclist Rutt Seriously Injured.

NEWARK, N. J., May 12.—The injuries suffered by Walter Rutt, the German cyclist, and holder of the world's championship, as the result of a fall last night at the Arena track, in New Haven, are of a serious nature. Rutt has concussion of the brain and a broken collarbone. At first it was believed that his injuries might prove fatal, but, according to Floyd McFarland, the manager for the Cycle Racing Association, who was with Rutt all night, and who returned here to-night, physicians at the Hotel Taft, where Rutt is stopping, say the cyclist will recover. He may be out of the game for two months, and it is not believed that he will be in shape to defend the world's title at Copenhagen next August.

Yale and Harvard Tennis Victors.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 12.—Yale's tennis team had no trouble in disposing of Dartmouth to-day, taking all of the six matches. It was announced that the date of the match here with Leland Stanford University has been changed from May 20 to May 25.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 12.—The Harvard tennis team won every contest in a match with the University of Pittsburgh today. Each of the six events was captured in straight sets. The Crimson players won 72 games to their opponents' 21.

"JOHNSON MAY FOOL 'EM."

So Says Joe Jeannette of the Coming Big Bout.

Joe Jeannette, the colored fighter, arrived yesterday from Paris on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie with his wife and child after being abroad seven months during which se said he had boxed six matches.

"I won five," said Joe to a TIMES reporter on the pier, "and lost one against Balla the Australian who is some fighter, believe me."

"What do you think of the chances of Frank Moran against Jack Johnson?" he was asked.

"Well, I tell you its just this way. If all them stories that's going around about the way he has gone to pieces through drink and other kinds of dissipation are true it ought to be easy for Moran to whip him.

"But," here Jeanette became very impressive in his manner, "on the other hand if them stories ain't true Frank Moran will not win." He spoke as if he felt sad at the prospects of what would happen to the "white hope" if the latter version proved to be correct.

Jeannette was informed by the reporters that there was a prospect of Gunboat Smith going abroad to fight the French boxer Carpentier in July and was asked what he thought of the match as to the winner.

"I think that Carpentier has a good chance," said the colored fighter.

"He is a good boxer and has a very good punch."

"Can he stand punishment well?"

"Yes, he is game enough. In a match I had with him Carpentier stood up, although his face was swollen to an awful size and he could hardly see, but he fought on. I think that he has a good chance to beat Smith."

Jeanette said that he was going to his home in West Hoboken and hoped to remain here for a long time. He had no specific plans, he added.

KURTZ DEFEATS LEWIS.

Newark Boy Gives Away Weight and Beats His Opponent Easily.

Dave Kurtz of Newark gave Billy Lewis four pounds advantage in weight and a severe trouncing at Brown's gymnasium last night in the star bout. Both proved hard hitters and willing, but both have a lot to learn in the matter of clean boxing. Kurtz weighed 154 and Lewis 158. For three rounds Lewis had a chance, but Kurtz, with lightning left jabs and awkward rights proved that he is too fast for Lewis, and held the local man handily after that. Lewis tried all the time, and would have fared better had he stood up and taken a chance. The bout was marred by too much clinching and hitting in clinches. Referee Brown was kept busy breaking the boxers apart and trying to force them to assume cleaner tactics.

Lewis appeared weak in the fourth, and without wonder, for he received several hard wallops in the stomach, which brought his head forward, only to receive either a left jab or a right hook to thwe chin. The fifth and sixth increased Kurtz's lead, and in the seventh, when both had become quite rough and Lewis did a stunt not in the Queensbury rules, Referee Brown sent the men to their corners.

DISPUTES WITH BOXERS.

Managers Must Air Their Grievances in Courts of Law.

The State Athletic Commission, at its meeting yesterday, laid down the principle that it would not interfere in disputes between boxers and their managers, but that such controversies must be settled by the courts of law.

The decision came about on the complaint of Jack Dougherty, who alleged that he was the manager of Soldier Bartfield and that the latter had changed managers and refused to fulfill the contracts which Dougherty had made.

Johnny Daly made demand for money which he said was due him from the Collar Athletic Club of Troy. His testimony was supported by Sam Lewis. There was no decision, pending the hearing of the other side.

Tommy Maloney was warned against entering another contest without medical examination and weighing. Several weeks ago he and Knockout Maloney entered the ring without first passing the physician and the scales. Sweeney will appear next week.

Pete McVey Beats Coaches.

Pete McVey of Washington, in spite of his poor condition, was considerably better than Andy Coaches of Philadelphia last night at the Olympic Boxing Club in Harlem. McVey weighed in at 139 and Coaches at 136 pounds; McVey's extra weight showed plainly, and he would otherwise have made short shift of his opponent. In the first round McVey landed frequently, and in the second closed Coaches's right eye. In the next couple of rounds Coaches came back, and these were the evenest of the contest, but McVey gradually wore him down and finished an easy winner, although Coaches was game to the end.

Young Driscoll Outpoints Kline.

To the surprise of many of the spectators at the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn, last night Young Driscoll outpointed Patsy Kline of Newark. Driscoll scaled at 128 pounds and Kline weighed 127. The bout was fast and very clever. Another excellent match resulted in the ten rounds between Kid Sullivan of Brooklyn and Jim Kendrick of England. These featherweights were busy from bell to bell and the outcome was a draw. Ed Wallace bested Young Stacy after ten rounds of vigorous work in which both knew they had been put to their limit. A four-round draw resulted in the bout between John Reithman and Billy Barker.

English County Cricket.

LONDON, May 12.—Surrey played cricket with Somersetshire at Kennington Oval and gave a brilliant display of batting. Going in first on a perfect wicket they made the big score of 397, to which E. G. Hayes contributed a fine inning of 129. Somerset replied with 270. At their second attempt Surrey again did well, scoring 246 for 4 wickets, and, declaring their innings closed, set the Westerners 373 to win, but having to face some splendid bowling were dismissed for only 120, leaving Surrey winners by 241 runs.

Yorkshire commenced their county programme at Northampton and made a fine start. Batting first they ran up the big score of 378. Northampton could only make 117 for their first inning, and did even worse at their second try, being put out for the small score of 105, giving Yorkshire their first victory by an inning and 156 runs.

Lancashire and Leicestershire played a very close game on the county ground at Leicester, ending in an exciting win for the home club by 34 runs. Scores: Leicestershire, 181 and 170; Lancashire, 168 and 149.

Derbyshire made a splendid start in their first match of the season, beating Worcestershire all ends up by an inning and 158 runs. Scores: Derbyshire, 335 for 9 wickets declared; Worcestershire, 86 and 91.

Kent opposed M. C. C. at Lords and gained an easy victory by an inning and 19 runs. Scores: Kent, 276; M. C. C., 136 and 121.

A. A. U. Meeting To-night.

Several matters of importance probably will come up before the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan A. A. U. at its general meeting this evening at the St. Bartholomew Club. Chairman Stumpf and John Connolly, committeeman, will have a report to make on the tangled A. A. U. affairs in New Haven, caused by the sudden removal of Commissioner Hull. Stumpf and Connolly spent two days cleaning up Hull's business, and now have it in shape for his successor, who will be named soon. In addition to the New Haven matter, the demands for an investigation on the grounds of alleged proselyting made by the Xavier A. A. against the Millrose A. A. will also be considered. The committee probably will not go very deep into the case, but may name a date for a special meeting or turn it over to the Board of Managers. The latter is the most likely move. Other matters of less importance are due for consideration.

Yale First Crew Wins Again.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 12.—The steady development of the Yale crews was indicated to-day when the first 'Varsity eight defeated the second crew in a mile race on the harbor in the fast time of 4 minutes 45 seconds. The second boat crossed the line 3 seconds later. The wind favored the oarsmen, but the sea was choppy. The coaches to-day devoted considerable attention to the second eight, which is entered in the American regatta at Philadelphia Saturday. The oarsmen will leave New Haven Thursday night and will practice on the Schuylkill Friday.

Capablanca Wins in Chess.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 12.—In the chess tourney to-day the Cuban expert, Capablanca, beat Tarrasch, and Marshall lost to Alechine. Present scores: Capablanca, 9; Alechine, 8; Lasker, 7½; Tarrasch, 6½; Marshall, 6.

UTILITY CONCERNS PROTEST

Ask Senators to Exempt Them from Ban on Holding Companies.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Stuart G. Gibboney of counsel for Bertron, Griscom & Co. of New York and Philadelphia; Bernard Flexner of Chicago, counsel for the Middle West Utilities Company, and Charles K. Beekman of counsel for the United Gas and Electric Company, appeared before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce this afternoon in criticism of the Senate draft of the Trust bill. All the witnesses were interest in public utilities.

Following somewhat the line taken yesterday by Judge Lovett with reference to railroads, Mr. Gibboney said that public utilities should be exempt from the bill's inhibitions against holding companies. The public utility, said he, was already carefully watched by State officials, and even through mergers could work no harm. The bill, as it stood, he argued, would cause a tremendous financial upheaval in the control of public utilities, if it were enacted without amendment.

"If holding companies of public utilities," said Mr. Gibboney, "should be held to be engaged in interstate commerce, the effect might be to prevent such a company from acquiring or holding the controlling interest in the gas and electric plants in a particular locality, even though the State commission permitted it. This is the case in New York and other States, such as the Appalachian Power Company, which operates in Virginia and West Virginia. Congress only desires to eradicate evils, and does not wish to injure or prohibit such holding companies as serve a useful purpose, and do not lessen or prevent competition between corporations which are or should be competitive.

"Of the $2,000,000,000 of capital invested in electric light and power companies, 76 per cent. is controlled by holding companies. Of the $1,333,000,000 of capital in artificial gas companies, approximately two-thirds is controlled by holding companies. Street and interurban railway companies represent a total capital of approximately $5,000,000,000, of which it is estimated that two-thirds is controlled by holding companies.

"In the electrical field alone in fourteen years the efficiency of the electric lamp has been increased 268 per cent., while the cost of current has been reduced 61 per cent. The lowered cost of public utility service has been practically the only reduction in the cost of living in recent years."

$35,000 Gift to Home for Aged.

By the will of the late Joseph E. Keene of Bloomfield, N. J., a bequest of approximately $35,000 in property, real and personal, is given to the Job Haines Home for the Aged. Included in the bequest is the Keene homestead, on Heller Parkway, and about two acres of surrounding land.

THE TRUSTS

The present status of the Trusts
By HON. WILLIAM H. TAFT

The New York Times will publish a series of five authoritative articles in which the former President of the United States will explain the effect of the Supreme Court decisions in fixing the position of the trusts and the present status of big business under the law. Mr. Taft will make clear the law against trusts and monopolies as it grew up under the common law, as it was changed by statute, as it stands to-day, and as it has been enforced by the courts. The first article of this series will be published in The New York Times next Sunday.

RUSSIA TO-DAY

The first of a series of instructive articles by KURT ARAM

Kurt Aram is a distinguished German author who knows Russia intimately. Under a commission from The New York Times he has made a special trip to the land of the Czars to penetrate the maze of official red tape and Government secrecy and make a special study of social inequalities, aristocratic domination, race hatred, and other phases of Russian unrest. Mr. Aram's opening article, which will be published next Sunday, is wonderfully illuminating and entertaining. It is without sentiment or prejudice, and is stamped with a clearness of statement which is most convincing.

PHOTOGRAPHS

The New York Times will present next Sunday one of the most interesting picture sections ever published. The photographs of the services in honor of the Vera Cruz dead will be appreciated by tens of thousands who were unable to attend these exercises. There will be photographs also of the May Day exercises at Bryn Mawr and Wellesley; of the famous Auteuil Race Course; of a "posture party" by the girls of Washington Irving High School; a picture of President Wilson's tent on the White House grounds; many recent photographs of well-known people; a page of society pictures and a page of theatrical pictures.

THE FIRSTBORN

By FREDERICK W. ELWELL

At the 1913 exhibition of the Royal Academy "The Firstborn" was the one picture which, perhaps, more than any other attracted the attention of the visiting public. The artist has become deservedly popular abroad through these story-telling pictures, mainly because of his success in balancing evenly in each the little romance or the homely incident which he wishes to create or reveal. By special arrangement The New York Times is permitted to reproduce this beautiful picture. A copy in rotogravure will be presented to readers of The New York Times next Sunday.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Western disturbance has reached the Middle Atlantic Coast and is still moving eastward. It has caused general rains in the last twenty-four hours in Southern New England, the Middle Atlantic States, the region of the Great Lakes, the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys, and the West Gulf States, with strong east to north winds on the lakes. There were scattered snows in Eastern Colorado and Wyoming. In other districts the weather remained generally fair.

Temperatures have fallen decidedly in the Atlantic States north of Maryland and in the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys and the Southern Plains States. Temperature is low but rising in the Northwest and in the Pacific States.

The weather will be unsettled, with probable rains Wednesday, in the North Atlantic States and on the West Gulf Coast, followed by generally fair weather in these districts Thursday.

In all other parts of the country it will be generally fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Considerably cooler weather is probable Wednesday in the Atlantic and Gulf States and Tennessee. Temperature will rise Wednesday and Thursday in the Rocky Mountain region, the Plains States, and the Upper Mississippi Valley, and Thursday in the Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be strong easterly; Middle Atlantic Coast, strong, shifting, becoming north; South Atlantic Coast, moderate variable.

FORECASTS TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, Southern New England, and New Jersey—Rain Wednesday. Thursday fair, slowly rising temperature; strong east shifting to north winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy Wednesday, probably preceded by rain; cooler south portion. Thursday fair, with rising temperature; strong east to north winds.

3 A. M.	42	56	4 P. M.	64	54
6 A. M.	43	52	6 P. M.	58	50
9 A. M.	51	54	9 P. M.	58	45
12 M.	57	57	11 P. M.	55	43

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 52; for the corresponding date last year it was 54; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 58.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 52, at 8 P. M. it was 48. Maximum temperature, 60 degrees at 12:02 A. M.; minimum, 45 degrees at 10 P. M. Humidity, 88 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 76 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.98 inches, at 8 P. M., it stood at 30.03 inches.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The Washington Heights Evening High School for Men and Women, 145th Street, between Amsterdam Avenue and Broadway, will hold its closing exercises of the year at 8:15 P. M. to-morrow.

The Board of Representatives of the Brooklyn Teachers' Association will hold a meeting at 4:15 P. M. next Monday in the auditorium of Public School 15, Third Avenue and Schermerhorn Street. There will be an election of officers and a vote on a proposed amendment to the constitution. There will also be discussions on simplified spelling, the rating of teachers, the reduction of clerical work, and the improvement of blanks and forms.

The special committee which has had under consideration the Howe-Goodnow school inquiry reports will recommend to the Board of Education a plan whereby a small executive board will be authorized to hold sessions to dispose of a lot of detail work.

An effort will be made to obtain the appointment of a man experienced in vocational and industrial training as Associate City Superintendent to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Edward L. Stevens.

The Board of Education at its meeting today will consider plans for the establishment of the new Bureau of Attendance, which will perform the work that heretofore has been done by the extinct Permanent Census Board.

The Board of Superintendents has recommended the reappointment of District Supts. John Dwyer and Henry W. Jameson, whose present terms will expire, respectively, on June 30 and July 7.

The graduation exercises of the New York Evening High School for Women will be held to-morrow evening at 40 Irving Place. The graduation exercises of the East Side Evening High School for Women will also be held to-morrow evening.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The receipt of applications for attendance officer, male and female, in the public schools, will be closed at 4 P. M. on May 26. The duties are to investigate cases of children who remain away from school, arrest them when necessary, and appear in the Children's Court as complainant against them or their parents. The minimum age is 21 years, maximum age 45 years. The salary is $900 a year.

Applications for trade instructor in basketry and mattress making will be received until 4 P. M. on May 15. There are three increases in the Department of Public Charities. The minimum age is twenty-one years. A practical test will be given to candidates in the making of baskets, brooms, mats, and mattresses and in chair caning.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces for June 3 an open competitive examination for assistant in gypsy-moth work, for men only, to fill vacancies at salaries ranging from $900 to $1,200 a year in the Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, for service in the New England States. The duties will be to conduct field investigations of the gypsy and brown-tailed moths and their parasites and natural enemies in the infested territory, and to assist in laboratory work upon the same insects. Competitors will be examined in arithmatic, letter writing, practical questions in general entomology, practical questions in gypsy and brown-tail moth work, and experience in gypsy and brown-tail moth work. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

A Wonderful Contrast

INSIDE . . . A PALACE
OUTSIDE . . WILD NATURE

"FIFTY SWITZERLANDS IN ONE"

Stop at Banff and ride the mountain trails with Jim Brewster; do some real mountain climbing with one of the Swiss guides; go boating on lovely Lake Louise and revel in the sheen of its sapphire blue water, back in the evening to enjoy the gay social life in a hotel where the height of luxury is combined with the charm of an artist's home.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday..3½@4 per cent. for the best names

Now the Harem Kimono.

A kimono style just placed on the market by the largest manufacturer in that line, is said to have been copied from a model worn in the harem of the Sultan. The garment has been named accordingly the harem kimono. The skirt is narrow and French trimming has been used at the throat, sleeves, and skirt bottom. The effect produced by the use of this trimming is on the order of a shawl.

Acceptances vs. Open Accounts.

To the previously mentioned subjects which will be discussed at the annual convention of the National Association of Clothiers, to be held at the Hotel Shelburne, Atlantic City, June 1 to 3, has been added "The advantages and disadvantages of mercantile acceptances under the new currency law, as compared with present methods of open accounts." William Goldman, President of the organization, has sent out a letter urging on members the importance of hearing the views of men who have given deep study to the various questions assigned to them.

Trade Matters at a Banquet.

Addresses on credit systems, trade abuses, mutual liability and credit indemnity insurance and the piece price system in the industry will be made at the banquet of the United Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers of New York, which takes place on Saturday evening at the Hotel Martinique. Among the speakers will be S. A. Schneider, President; William Kerner and Louis Lustig, Directors, and A. Orentley, General Manager of the association. The members plan to install a credit bureau shortly, as well as a form of credit insurance, which will guarantee the manufacturer's account where the instructions of the bureau are followed.

A Week's Exports.

General exports, exclusive of specie, from the Port of New York last week, were valued at $15,436,598, compared with $16,554,488 in the previous week, and $18,373,203 the week before that. The imports the corresponding week one year ago aggregated $18,566,623. The total value of this year's imports to date is $369,860,372, against $364,080,360 in the corresponding period of 1913. Exports of domestics and cotton duck from New York last week were valued at $394,950, against $500,547 the week previous, and $379,726 the week before that. The greatest amount shipped to a single country, $102,254 worth of cotton goods, went to China. The week before, the Philippines led with $188,345 worth.

Needle Trades Insurance.

The by-laws of the Industrial Mutual Liability Insurance Association were approved at a general meeting of the members held yesterday afternoon at the Aldine Club. Previous to this the by-laws of the company, which has been formed to take over the risks in the needle trades under the Workmen's Compensation act, were approved by the State Insurance Department and the Board of Directors. The eighty members drawn from six associations in the needle trades were either actually present or represented by proxy at yesterday's meeting. Morris Silberman, First Vice President, in the absence of Eugene S. Benjamin, presided. Julius Henry Cohen, counsel; S. Herbert Wolfe, actuary, and William R. Corwine, Secretary, were also present.

Gray Goods Trading Fair.

A fair volume of business was put through yesterday in the local gray goods market, though it could by no means be said that buying was active. A few odd sales of 39 inch 56-44s were made at 4 cents, some of the Eastern mills which had been holding out for 4 1-16 cents on these goods joining the Southern mills in this concession. There were further bids of 4¾cents for 38⅛ inch 64-60s, but, so far as could be learned, none of the mills was willing to take less than 4⅞ for them. Some odd lots of 27 inch 64-60s were put through for May delivery at 3 3-16 cents, while 38½ inch 60-52s and 60-48s were steady at 4⅜ and 4 3-16 cents respectively. Two good-sized contracts for low-count sateens were reported for delivery in May, June and July. Sheetings are very quiet at present, and low, being quoted on the basis of 5¼ cents for 48 squares, four yards to the pound.

Local Coal Trade Dull.

"Following the activity in April," The Coal Trade Journal will say today, "which was largely the result of unseasonably cool weather, the local retail trade has become rather dull, and this condition is reflected to some extent in the wholesale market. It is too local a matter, however, to have much effect on the industry as a whole, since the demand in other directions keeps up strong. As a result of the heavy movement elsewhere, shipments to this market are being restricted to such an extent that there is no surplus even with the prevailing quietness in the city trade. In fact, there is a shortage in stove and egg, though the stringency in the latter size has been relieved somewhat in the last week. Chestnut coal is plentiful. The miners in the Central Pennsylvania district having voted to continue the old wage scale for another two-year term, many bituminous collieries that had been closed down since early in April have started up during the past few days."

Of Interest to Beet Sugar Men.

Beet sugar manufacturers in many sections of the country, particularly the Middle West, have filed a protest with the Board of United States General Appraisers, objecting to the action of the Treasury Department in ordering customs officials to take duty on so-called frasers, or circular steel files, used in sharpening the blades of machines employed in cutting up beets. The case, which came before the board for hearing yesterday, is in the nature of a test under the Tariff act of 1913, on the provision referring to beet sugar machinery. E. H. Du Vivier of 30 Church Street, this city, is the protestant of record, but the entire industry is vitally concerned in the outcome of the proceedings. It appears that the frasers wear out frequently, and must be renewed. The Treasury Department is demanding a duty of 20 per cent. ad valorem on the frasers under the provision in the new law for manufactures of metal, not specially provided for. Thomas J. Doherty appears for the Government and ex-Judge Sharretts for the importer.

The tendency of the New York Customs authorities to "try on" higher duties under the new tariff, in instances where two or more provisions of the act are somewhat alike, is illustrated in a notice to importers given out yesterday by Appraiser Sague. The Appraiser states, that subject to the aproval of the Treasury Department, it is proposed to change the classification of ziboline or ripple cloth composed of cotton and mohair, mohair chief value, from cloth in chief value of hair of the Angora goat, alpaca, and other like animals under Paragraph 308, at 40 per cent. ad valorem, to plushes, velvets, and all other pile fabrics, wholly or partly of the hair of the Angora goat, alpaca, or other like animals, under Paragraph 309, at 45 per cent. ad valorem. Last week the Appraiser gave notice that dress stays, allowed to come in free since the enactment of the law, would be taxed 20 per cent. Other changes in classification upward have been made the past few months. It is expected that importers of the ripple cloth will take the matter of classification before the Board of General Appraisers and the Customs Court.

Suitmakers Had a Good Spring.

Local cutters-up specializing in the manufacture of cloaks and suits for women have had a good season this Spring from all accounts, the holdover of cold weather having resulted in the purchase of suits which under normal conditions might have been relegated to the background in favor of dresses. Silk suits are said to have been a somewhat disappointing feature of the season, though a fair initial business was placed on this merchandise. The continuance of cool weather has held back the buying of cotton wash suits for the moment, and by some it is thought that sales of this merchandise may be hampered this year by the leaning of some of the prominent buyers toward very light effects in worsteds. Linens are well thought of in some quarters, but there is a feeling in other parts of the trade that they will not repeat their success of a couple of Summers ago. Fall lines are now under way, and within the next few weeks, it is said, that road men will be in their various territories. Cape effects are expected to hold over into the Fall, and the long hip tunic also is well thought of. From all accounts, Fall skirts will show less draping than those in vogue at present, and will be roomier around the bottoms.

Lace Curtain Sales Hurt.

Complaint is heard among the wholesalers of lace curtains to the effect that sales are being curtailed by the changes that have taken place in the last few years in the size and shape of windows in dwellings. All through the country, it is said, the architects have been using small and irregular-sized windows in the planning of bungalows and suburban houses both of which have had the effect of increasing sales of curtain materials that are sold by the yard. The necessity of broadening the windows of the modern apartment house at the expense of their height, because of the lowness of the ceilings of the average structure of this sort, has had a similar effect. Imported lace curtains are said to be harder hit than the domestic curtains, the makers of the former seeming less willing to conform their product to present needs in this country. Not only has the change in the styles of windows reduced the number of pairs of curtains sold, but it has also made necessary the shortening of the lengths of the curtains that are disposed of. It is said that neither the wholesalers nor the retailers are pleased with the change, the former for obvious reasons, and the latter because there is not the profit in selling and finishing yard goods that there is in selling lace curtains by the pair.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

One Where Importer Must Pay for Stuff Not Received.

The fact that an importer is in possession of a warehouse receipt showing a shortage on an importation, together with a receipt from the steamship company allowing a claim, does not entitle him to relief from customs duties owing to shortage, according to a decision made yesterday by Judge Somerville of the Board of United States General Appraisers. The Mumm Champagne and Importation Company made a claim for allowance in duties on cases of wine alleged to be short on importation. Although the receipts referred to were put in evidence, the board holds such testimony is not sufficient nor is it binding on the customs tribunal. The Collector's assessment on the champagne never received stands.

W. F. Corne, Boston, entered bales of flax waste reported by the Appraiser to be of a grade suitable for spinning purposes. Duty was taken at 10 per cent. under the old law as waste not specially provided for. It was claimed to be free of duty as paper stock. According to the decision the testimony shows that the flax waste in question is used for other purposes than paper making.

Miniature artificial fruits composed of wax imported by Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co. were assessed under the old act at 60 per cent. ad valorem as artificial fruit. The baord sustained the claim for duty at 25 per cent. as manufactures of wax.

G. W. Sheldon & Co. won free entry on importations of old scrap, or refuse india rubber worn out by use, assorted and ground for convenience in remanufacturing. Duty was taken at the 10 per cent. rate as not being specifically provided for. The Collector was ordered by Judge Somerville to reliquidate the entries on the exemption basis.

It was decided that jute waste used chiefly in the manufacture of yarn for gunny bagging and carpets, for padding harness, stuffing matresses and other upholstery purposes, must pay the regular duty provided for waste. Salomon Brothers & Co., New York, made the usual claim for free entry. A somewhat similar protest by the Southern Bagging Company, Norfolk, was also overruled.

M. Welte & Sons were allowed a refund of duties paid on rolls of music missing from a case at the time of importation. Notwithstanding the absence of the rolls Collector Malone exacted full duty. This action is now held by the board to be erroneous.

D. W. Buhl, New York, received a shipment of pineapples, a portion of which arrived in a decayed condition. Full duties were taken under the Tariff act of 1909. Before the board the importer asserted that he filed a notice of abandonment with the Collector within the forty-eight-hour limit. Denying relief, Judge Somerville says the importer failed to establish his contention regarding the time of filing the notice.

B. M. Shipman, New York, contested the right of the Collector to assess certain containers of merchandise imported under the Tariff act of 1897 at the same ad valorem rates as the contents. The board overruled the protest.

High Prices for Wool.

LONDON, May 12.—There were 11,484 bales brought forward at the wool auction sales to-day. The offerings were practically all crossbreds, but the demand was keen at the best prices of the series. The sales follow: New South Wales, 300 bales; scoured, 1s. 4d.@2s. 1½d.; greasy, 6d.@1s. 3d.. Victoria, 200 bales; greasy, 8¾d.@1s. 4d West Australia, 300 bales; greasy, 10½d.@1s. 3½d. New Zealand, 6,300 bales; scoured, 11d.@1s. 11d.; greasy, 8d.@1s. 3d. Punta Arenas, 4,300 bales; greasy, 6d.@1s. 2¼d.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A meeting of the Independent Retail Tobacconist Association will be held to-morrow evening at Terrace Garden, at which will be considered a plan of co-operation between independent dealers in tobacco products and independent manufacturers of them. The plan will be presented by M. Fromholz.

An average of 80 cents on the dollar was obtained at an auction sale of cotton goods conducted yesterday by Van Praag & Co., 15 Greene Street. The stock offered was a staple one, and invertoried at about $25,000. Children's and juniors' dresses to the same value were also sold, and about 65 cents on the dollar realized. The prices obtained were considered very good. A number of out-of-town jobbers and department store buyers attended the sale.

AVERT LOCKOUT OF 12,000.

Truce Is Arranged in Labor Controversy in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—There will be no lockout by the Building Trades Employers' Association against the union workmen in its employ. At a conference to-day it was agreed that the striking painters should return to work at the old rate of wages, $4.50 a day, pending an adjustment of differences by an arbitration board. The lockout was to go into effect effect at 5 o'clock this afternoon, and would have thrown about 12,000 men out of employment.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

HOWARD HULL of 61 East Ninety-third Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,878 and no assets, to get rid of two judgments obtained against him on April 17 by Catherine Cooper for $2,628, and John W. Cooper for $250 for damages for personal injuries in an auto accident.

UNION TOOL AND SUPPLY COMPANY, of 103 Chambers Street, has made an assignment to Walter P. Wells. A petition in bankruptcy was also filed against it by these creditors: Topping Brothers, $200; Tucker Tool and Machine Company, $70; Frevert Machinery Company, $93, and E. P. Reichhelm & Co., Inc., $219. Schedules were also filed yesterday which show liabilities of $8,999 and assets of $7,715, consisting of stock, $1,800; machinery and fixtrues, $500; accounts, $5,365, and cash, $50. The business was started in June, 1907, and incorporated in September, 1911, with capital stock of $10,000, and Ivan Spangenberg is President and treasurer.

CARTER, AGUILAR & BENOLIEL.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Robert H. Carter, Jesus M. Aguilar, and Isaac M. Benoliel, who compose the firm of Carter, Aguilar & Benoliel, exporters and importers of general merchandise, at 17 Battery Place, by these creditors: Murray Kanner, $480; South American Publishing Company, $25, and Unz & Co., $10. It was alleged that on May 11 they admitted in writing inability to pay their debts. Judge Mayer appointed Max Shlivek receiver, bond $750. Liabilities are $5,000 and assets $1,500. The business was mainly in Porto Rico and Cuba. The firm was started on May 1, 1913.

REGENT DRESS SUIT AND SKIRT MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Isidore Pfeffer and Alexander Lambetg, doing business as the Regent Dress Suit and Skirt Manufacturing Company, at 41 West Seventeenth Street, by these creditors: Goldstein & Lazarowitz, $228; Feinstein & Globus, $350, and Philip Holtzman, $15. Liabilities are said to be $10,000 and assets $2,500. The business was started in December, 1909. Judge Mayer appointed Joseph R. Truesdale receiver, bond, $1,000.

HERMAN BAEHR & CO.—Judge Mayer has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on April 14 against Herman Baehr & Co., manufacturers of furs at 22 West Twenty-seventh Street, on a settlement with creditors at 35 cents on the dollar, payable 30 cents cash and 5 cents note, due Jan. 15, 1915. Liabilities were $31,000.

TOBIAS, GREENTHAL & MENDELSON.—Judge Mayer has granted a motion to dismiss the petition in bankruptcy filed on Dec. 9 against Tobias, Greenthal & Mendelson, clothing manufacturers at 740 Broadway, on a settlement with creditors at 100 cents on the dollar, payable 66 2-3 cents cash and the balance in notes. Liabilities were reported to be $180,000.

FLOCK DECORATING AND LINING COMPANY, with offices at 111 Fifth Avenue and factory at 1,006 to 1,014 Clinton Street, Hoboken, has made an assignment to Melancton S. da Costa. The company was incorporated under New York laws on Aug. 22, 1912, with capital stock of $150,000 to manufacture wool flock specialties, and some of the officers were connected with the American Tobacco Company. Assets are estimated at $7,500.

HARRY SAMUELS & BROTHERS, (corporation,) wholesale dealers in millinery at 704 Broadway, have made an assignment to Samuel H. Lummis. This is on account of loss by a fire on April 11 last, which did considerable damage, and they carried $25,000 insurance. Two days after the fire they put their affairs into the hands of Mr. Lummis for creditors pending an adjustment with the insurance companies. The business was started in 1904 and was incorporated on Aug. 6, 1913, with capital stock of $40,000, and Harry Samuels is President. The inventory of Dec. 1, 1913, showed assets of $43,925 and liabilities of $19,925.

TUCKER & CARPENTER ROPE COMPANY, Manhattan, manufacturer of rope and cordage, of 76 South Street, with plants at Tuckertown and New London, N. C., has filed schedules in the assignment, which show liabilities of $396,714, nominal assets of $798,580, and actual assets of $402,297. Among the assets are plants, $350,000; stock, $22,508, and accounts, $21,000. Among the creditors are the Importers and Traders National Bank, $80,000; Bond & Goodwin, $125,057; J. Spencer Turner, $14,473; R. G. Pierrepont, $10,000, and R. L. Pierrepont, $9,000.

Out of Town.

Special Dispatches to The Times.

Increase Your Principal

When it comes to investing your money you should not only take into account the element of dependable income, but you should also keep in mind the idea of increasing your principal. This is to be accomplished, with every reasonable degree of assurance, by purchasing conservative investment bonds now selling at a discount. Our Circular 1436, which describes bonds of this character, should therefore be of special interest, and we shall be pleased to send you a copy promptly on request.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Become Extremely Dull —More Activity in Bonds— Europe's Gold Quest.

Extreme dullness settled upon the stock market yesterday and except in a few inactive issues the price changes for the day were very small. The general level of quotations, however, moved up enough to make the net gain during the last three days exactly equal to the advance which occurred on Monday of last week. That advance was followed by a four days' reaction. A number of matters are in the making capable of producing important results, but at the moment inaction prevails throughout the financial district. In that sense yesterday's record on the Stock Exchange faithfully reflected the status of business and financial affairs.

There was more activity in bonds than in stocks, and at times during the day the Stock Exchange tape was given over almost entirely to recording bond transactions. No new issues were announced; work went forward in preparation for several flotations. The Northern Pacific appears to have made progress with its plan for the creation of a blanket mortgage to provide for its requirements for a long time to come. Announcement was made that all of the $20,000,000 New Haven one-year notes lately offered for subscription had been sold. The proposition to the Missouri Pacific noteholders for a one-year extension at a 1 per cent. advance in interest rate, with the deposit of additional collateral, took definite shape, and it was made known that assurances had already been received that large deposits under the proposed arrangement would be made.

No further gold engagements were made, but the probability of other shipments was much discussed in banking circles. What we have so far sent to Europe on this movement we have been able to spare very easily, but the extent to which a gold movement may run is always a question of interest to the financial community, and that question just now is being closely canvassed. If coin is to be taken, and the supply of bars has been practically exhausted, Europe must bid higher for our gold than it is doing at the moment. There is yet no sign of a cessation of the Continental demand, the French market again taking the bulk of the $3,500,000 new gold which reached London yesterday. But despite the French and Russian eagerness for the metal the Bank of England does not seem disposed to make any special effort to obtain gold in this market. Our bankers have reason to believe that the English institution will not raise its prices for American eagles, and that would be the probable method adopted if the Bank decided to bid what in effect would be a premium for shipments from New York. It adopted that method on some occasions in the past, but the Bank of England is much less disposed than either the French or German central banks to put a premium on gold imports. The latter have at times allowed as much as sixty days' interest for the sake of attracting gold, but at the moment exchange here is high enough to take gold bars without the offering of special inducements by Europe.

It was taken as a good sign here yesterday that the Bank of England, despite the fact that it has not been able to keep any large share of the South African gold arrivals in recent weeks owing to Continental competition, is not adopting any special measures to strengthen its gold holdings. Possibly the end of the Continental demand is foreseen more clearly there than here, or, again, it may be that it is felt that gold will soon be attracted to the London market in ordinary course. The ability of this market to supply a considerable amount of gold to Europe without materially affecting the prevailing interest rates here is not doubted, although our ability to do this depends upon the course of trade. Any substantial forward movement in general business would no doubt quickly advance our money rates to the level prevailing in the English market.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

At the first annual meeting of the Directors of the Western Power Company yesterday F. Lothrop Ames was elected President. Irving W. Bonbright was made a member of the Executive Committee and all other officers were re-elected.

The $20,000,000 New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company one-year 5 per cent. collateral gold notes offered by J. P. Morgan & Co., First National Bank, National City Bank, Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Lee, Higginson & Co. have all been sold, it was announced yesterday.

The $6,860,000 Georgia Railway and Power first refunding mortgage 5 per cent. forty-year sinking fund gold bonds, recently purchased by Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia, are being offered at 92½ and interest in Chicago by Kennett, Cowan & Co., as Western members of the syndicate. The bonds are also being offered in New York by Kissel, Kinnicut & Co. and in Boston by E. H. Rollins & Sons.

City Controller Tyler Parmly of Newark has sold $250,000 of temporary loan bonds at an interest rate to cost the city 3.10 per cent. This is the lowest rate paid by the city in twenty-five years. The bonds were sold to L. von Hoffman & Co. of New York.

Yesterday was the forty-third anniversary of the incorporation of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, originally chartered as the United States Mortgage Company in 1871.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Low Price for Western Maryland.

Between 12 and 2 o'clock yesterday some one with 1,600 shares of Western Maryland to dispose of, put the price down from 24 to 22⅛. The stock closed at the lower figure with a net loss of 2⅛ points for the day. Western Maryland is usually among the inactive stocks, and has little attraction for speculators. Persons who bought into the company when it was learned that Rockefeller had taken control away from the Goulds, and who expected to see the magic Standard Oil repeated, have had little encouragement since. Earnings statements have not been good, and it is understood that the new President of the road, on the occasion of his first trip over the line, saw the need for some large expenditures before certain divisions could be made to pay a profit. The Western Maryland has many problems peculiar to itself., and while it is almost certain that in time these will be worked out in a satisfactory manner, there does not seem to be any prospect of early dividends.

Short-Lived Syndicates.

The termination of the syndicate formed to underwrite the recent issue of $54,000,000 of Southern Pacific 5 per cent. convertible bonds through the sale of the $16,000,000 left in the managers' hands to Kissel, Kinnicut and associates, marks a popular departure so far as most of the members of the syndicate are concerned. For a small house, with limited capital, a syndicate whose life is dragged out over a long period to allow the managers to work off the securities it has agreed to take, becomes an old man of the sea. There have been syndicates which have been kept alive for a year or more, to the embarrassment of some of the members, who would have preferred to take a small loss in order to get their capital out. The Kuhn, Loeb syndicate had several offers for the Southern Pacific bonds remaining and was able to dispose of them at a profit.

President J. M. Hannaford of the Northern Pacific, who was in New York yesterday for one of the company's rare board meetings, said that the agricultural outlook throughout his company's territory was excellent. In the Red River Valley the weather has been cold and wet, he said, but even there it is expected that the wheat can be cut by the fifteenth of this month. The Northern Pacific expects to get 10,000 cars of fruit out of the Yakima Valley this year. The Northern Pacific is biding its time, pending the improvement in business looked for after the harvest, and consequently is doing little improvement work. The company has been retrenching by laying off 5,000 men.

Bonds Taken in Large Blocks.

Active buying of the new Southern Pacific convertible 5s was the most prominent factor in the bond market on the Exchange yesterday, but there was a better demand for bonds generally than on Monday, and prices displayed firmness. The day's turnover of $2,354,500 was more than $740,000 greater than in the preceding session, and of this amount the Southern Pacific issue accounted for $558,000. In comparison with the sluggish condition of stocks the bond department made an impressive showing. Bond brokers said that an increase of transactions in large blocks indicated an expansion of purchases by institutions, to which a check appeared to be given recently by the turn of Mexican affairs.

Changing Aspect of Sub-Treasury.

After twenty-five years in which the interior of the Sub-Treasury was untouched by the hand of the decorator, work is now under way to improve the appearance of the building. The visitor would almost imagine that he stood inside a copper mine when he enters the front door because of the timbers which extend from the floor into the dome. The part that the Sub-Treasuries of the country is destined to play under the new currency system has not yet been defined, but it would seem in the opinion of one who viewed the efforts of refurnishing yesterday, that the local institution would meet changing conditions in its best garb.

Porphyry Mines Increase Output.

With working conditions excellent, the so-called porphyry copper mines have been turning out a great deal of metal this Spring. It was reported yesterday that the Utah Copper Company surpassed the best record of previous months of its history in April with a production of 13,000,000 pounds. In the first quarter of the year the four leading concerns showed substantial increases over the final quarter of 1913, and evidence was thereby supplied that the porphyry group had not established a maximum output in any period of last year. In some quarters of the trade the prediction was made several months ago when the youngest companies were well under way, that they would soon reach their highest limit.

Mexico and Mercantile Bills.

Commercial paper brokers still see evidence in their business of the effect of the Mexican crisis. While the stock market appeared to resume the former tenor of its way after a few days of uncertainty over the fighting in Vera Cruz, the bill market has continued dull under the sentimental influence of the strained state of affairs below the border. If it had not, say brokers, there would have been lower quotations for six months' paper than the minimum of 3½ per cent. for the general run of bills. The ease of money, without any factor to lessen its power for depressing paper rates, would have brought a recession of quotations.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday a generally firm tone was shown, and copper was up ⅛c. for all deliveries up to July. Tin was firm, at an improvement of ⅝c. Other commodities were unchanged.

Closing prices for copper and other metals were:

Copper—	Bid.	Ask.		Bid.	Ask.

London copper market yesterday closed firm, spot advancing 7s. 6d., to £63 3s. 9d., and futures 8s. 9d., to £63 15s. Tin was also firm, and spot, at £153, was £1 7s. 6d. higher, and futures, at £155, was up £1 10s. Spanish pig lead, £18 7s. 6d., up 2s. 6d. Spelter, £21 7s. 6d., unchanged. BOURSES OF EUROPE

Relief in London Due to the Satisfactory Adjustment of a Large Account.

LONDON, May 12.—Money and discount rates were steady to-day.

Most of the $3,500,000 South African gold offered in the open market was taken by Paris at 77s 9d, a reduction of 1-8d.

The fact that a large account had been satisfactorily adjusted created a better feeling on the Stock Exchange, and the commencement of the settlement was smoother than had been expected. Paris also sent more cheerful advices, and prices recovered after early uncertainty, and closed firm and generally higher.

Consols advanced three-eigths on repurchases, but Mexican rails were barely steady.

American securities were quiet and steady during the early trading. Light covering advanced the leaders a fraction before noon, and later the whole list joined in the upward movement on New York buying. The closing was steady.

PARIS, May 12.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, May 12.—The Boerse opened weak to-day.

Bill Drawn to Establish a Board to Prevent Strikes and Lockouts.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Federal Commission on Industrial Relations announced to-day that it had prepared a tentative draft of a bill for submission to Congress creating a National Board of Mediation and Conciliation to prevent strikes and lockouts that may involve the Federal Government. The measure is the result of extended investigations of the workings of similar boards in the various States and foreign countries. The commission at its public hearings in New York City, beginning next Monday, will offer the measure for criticisms and suggestions.

The bill provides strictly for voluntary conciliation, and expressly denies to the board any authority to compel arbitration or prohibit strikes or lockouts. In this way it avoids any question of State or interstate jurisdiction.

A precedent for the formation of a national board is found in the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission of 1902, which settled the strike in Pennsylvania. It is asserted that all efforts at conciliation in recent strikes have failed and that if the Federal Government is compelled to intervene after matters have reached a crisis, it is advisable that the Government should have a permanent board, representing the entire nation and having the confidence of both employers and employes, to intervene at the beginning of such disputes.

Provision is made in the bill for cooperation with State Boards of Mediation whenever a dispute extends beyond the limits of a State.

NOT A FAVORED DEPOSITOR.

Court Says City Must Wait for Its Funds in Northern Bank.

Supreme Court Justice Lehman decided yesterday that the City of New York was not entitled to precedence over private depositors in collecting moneys deposited in the Northern Bank, which closed its doors in 1907. The city had about $200,000 deposited in the bank, and the Corporation Counsel's office began a suit against the State Superintendent of Banks to have the money due the city paid first.

Justice Lehman said that in this instance the city was a municipal corporation and not a sovereign State, and that it was only when the city exercised governmental functions that it was entitled to preference.

BANKS HERE SIGN RESERVE PAPERS

MAY NAME A. B. HEPBURN

The Boards of Directors of the National Park Bank and the Irving National Bank, the two institutions in this city that were designated by the Reserve Bank Organization Committee to sign the certificate of incorporation of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, adopted the necessary resolutions yesterday authorizing their officers to execute the document. The form of resolution had been forwarded to each by the Organization Committee, and before the end of the day they were mailed back with certificates showing their adoption.

As soon as the Organization Committee has received these, with advices of similar action by the other three banks designated to act as incorporators in this district, they will be called to meet at the Clearing House and attach their signatures. The other incorporators are the National Commercial Bank of Albany, the Marine National Bank of Buffalo, and the First National Bank of Syracuse.

When the certificate of incorporation has been signed by all five and filed with the Controller of the Currency, the election of Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank will follow. Six of the nine Directors are to be chosen by the member banks, which in this district, coterminous with the State, means all the national and none of the State institutions.

The Directors of each bank will choose an elector and these electors will vote by groups, according to the division of the member banks into large, medium, and small institutions. The electors of each group will elect one Director of Class A and one Director of Class B, the former consisting of direct representatives of the banks and the latter of persons engaged in commerce, agriculture, or other industrial pursuits, who are not officers, Directors, or employes of any bank.

To the six Directors so chosen by the three groups of electors will be added three to be appointed by the Federal Reserve Board, when it has been constituted, and of the latter three one is to be designated as Federal reserve agent and Chairman of the board and another as deputy agent and Vice Chairman. The President and other officers of the Federal Reserve Bank are to be chosen by the Board of Directors.

The New York banks have been slow to take any steps toward crystallizing sentiment as to the Directors to be chosen by the banks. In most of the other districts informal action has already been taken. In the Minneapolis district a conference of bankers was held some time ago and a committee of thirty-six was appointed, six from each of the six States lying wholly or partly within the district, and this committee has announced a slate for all six of the places, three bankers and three business men. In its district the Philadelphia Clearing House has announced nominations for three of the six places to be filled, apparently leaving the other three to the rest of the territory included.

In this district no formal action has been taken, and, so far as this city is concerned, there has been only desultory discussion of possibilities. The name that has come up most frequently in these talks for President of the Federal Reserve Bank is that of A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the Chase National Bank. It is known that Mr. Hepburn is strongly opposed to being drafted for this place, as he does not care to take on any new responsibilities, but the fact remains that nobody else has been at all generally suggested for the place.

It has been pointed out that Mr. Hepburn is the logical man for the Presidency, unless an up-State man is to be chosen, because it is believed his selection would be agreeable to all elements both in and outside the city. Mr. Hepburn has been State Superintendent of Banks, Controller of the Currency, President of the Clearing House Association, and President of the Chamber of Commerce. He was Chairman of the commision that drafted the new State banking law, and is Chairman of the Currency Commission of the American Bankers' Association, which has taken a prominent part in shaping up banking and currency legislation for several years.

For a non-banking member of the board from this city, Eugenius H. Outerbridge has come in for considerable mention. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and of its Committee on Banking and Currency, and took a leading part in formulating the views of the Chamber on this subject. He is a Director of the United States, Bermuda and Caribbean Steamship Company, the Equitable Life Assurance Society, and Managing Director of the Pantasote Leather Company and the Agasote Millboard Company.

NEW N. PACIFIC MORTGAGE.

It Is Expected to Provide for a Total Issue of at Least $300,000,000.

Directors of the Northern Pacific, at a special meeting held yesterday, are understood to have approved the creation of a new blanket mortgage which will be submitted to a vote of stockholders at a meeting to be called soon. The amount of the mortgage is to bear a definite relation to the amount of stock outstanding, but it is expected to provide for a total issue of at least $300,000,000.

The initial issue under the new mortgage will be $20,000,000 or $25,000,000, of the proceeds of which $10,000,00 will be used to pay off that amount of one-year notes maturing on July 9. The balance will be used to pay for improvements and extensions now under construction.

Other than the $10,000,000 of notes to be taken up in July, the Northern Pacific has no immediate need for funds, and it is understood that there is almost enough cash in the road's treasury to pay off the notes if conditions for a bond sale should not be favorable. The plan for a blanket mortgage has been under consideration for a long time, and has been worked out gradually with a view to careing for the company's needs for a long period to come. Practically all of the existing bond authorizations have been exhausted.

PITTSBURGH BANK FAILS.

Steadily Decreasing Business Closes the Dominion Trust Company.

PITTSBURGH, May 12.—George H. Getty, representing the State Banking Department, to-day took charge of the Dominion Trust Company here after the bank's checks had failed to pass through the Clearing House. The last report, made to the department on Feb. 20, showed the bank had deposits of $245,000 and total resources of $259,000.

Steadily decreasing business was given as the cause of the failure.

Ray Consolidated Copper Report.

The Ray Consolidated Copper Company reports for the quarter ended March 31 a net operating profit of $913,004, and total income of $99[illegible],099. After paying $44,655 interest on bonds and $543,964 in dividends, a surplus of $333,480 was left. These earnings were based on a price of 14.41 cents a pound for copper. The total amount of the metal on hand, sold and unsold, at the end of the quarter was 22,614,122 pounds. The average monthly production for the year 1913 was 4,478,828 pounds.

BEET SUGAR SALES FALL OFF

Gross sales of the American Beet Sugar Company in the fiscal year ended on March 31 amounted to $8,083,696, a decrease of $1,865,950 from the record of 1913. The cost of preparing the product for market was $6,012,774, a rise of $1,818,364, and selling expenses of $1,087,874 were $311,661 more than in the preceding year. Total expense was $7,566,269, a gain of $2,124,192. Net profits, including income from other sources than the operation of the plants, footed up to $644,104, a decrease of $236,950.

The annual report issued yesterday showed that 1,823,901 bags of sugar had been sold, as compared with 1,270,125 in the previous year, and that receipts per bag decreased 46 cents. Net earnings per bag declined 33 cents.

"The decrease in the price received," said President Duval, "was due in great measure to the increased world's production, and the strenuous competition to sell, in addition to which the reduction of the United States tariff of 25 per cent. was a demoralizing force.

"The new tariff has reduced the duty on foreign sugar, and on May 1, 1916, all duty is to be abolished. It is reasonable to believe that this act will be rescinded when, by thorough investigation of the world's sugar production, the President and Congress will understand the uneconomical effect of destroying a domestic food industry which supplies over 40 per cent. of the consumption of the country. The domestic and insular production being destroyed, this country will become dependent entirely upon foreign production, the price of which in past years it has reduced by an annual amount greater than the full tariff heretofore collected. The Governments of Continental Europe impose a high tariff on the importation of sugar for the protection of their beet farmers."

Mr. Duval said that the factories had been kept in the year at the highest possible state of efficiency. The condensed balance sheet showed assets of $24,683,337, of which $638,555 was in cash and $2,511,272 in unsold sugar and other supplies. The company's surplus at the end of the year was $2,828,344.

FIGHT CITY BOND CONTRACT.

New York Bank Note Co. Won't Bid for Printing.

George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company, has written to David Ferguson, Supervisor of The City Record, to protest against the conditions under which the contract for engraving the $65,000,000 city bonds sold recently by Controller Prendergast was awarded to the Hamilton Bank Note Company. Mr. Kendall objects particularly to this provision:

"All steel plates used in fulfilling this agreement or contract shall be the property of the City of New York, and shall be placed in a vault designated by the Controller, subject to the joint control of the Controller and the contractor for a period of ten years from the date of the execution of this agreement or contract, and during such period the Controller shall pay any charges in this respect which may be incurred. The city reserves the right, after the expiration of the ten years to be the sole owner and sole custodian of all the engraved steel plates used in fulfilling this agreement."

On this point the New York Bank Note Company says:

"Rightly or wrongly, we assume that one function of a bank note company is to safeguard forever the plates, so that it is impossible to make a spurious or overissue from them; and we assume, either rightly or wrongly, at least a moral responsibility for the perpetual integrity of any plate that we manufacture. To make a plate and allow it to go where any printing shop can use or misuse it we consider debauching the bank note business, and as being false to the immense trust reposed in us. Under the circumstances of that specification we decline to bid on your work."

Ohio Crude Oils Drop Again.

LIMA, Ohio, May 12.—Following the decline in Eastern yesterday, Ohio and Central Western crude oils were reduced 5 cents a barrel, with the opening of the market to-day. North Lima dropped to $1.19, South Lima and Indiana to $1.14, and Illinois and Princeton to $1.15.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Commission house odd-lots orders made a market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange for a number of stocks of which no sales were recorded elsewhere in the financial district. In this class were United States Rubber at 57¾, Southern Railway at 24½, Bethlehem Steel at 41¾, and Great Northern Ore at 31¾. So far as the general market was concerned, a good undertone was presented throughout the day, although much of the time the trading conditions were more or less of a waiting character. On the 9:30 o'clock opening call the majority of the overnight price changes represented advances from Monday's closing figures.

TO THE HOLDERS OF COLLATERAL TRUST FOUR PER CENT. GOLD BONDS OF 2002 OF Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific R. R. Co.

The Railroad Company having made default in the payment of the interest due May 1, 1914, on the above bonds, it is imperative that bondholders should immediately unite for the protection of their interests. Bondholders who have not already done so should deposit their bonds at once with the Depositary, CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, at its office, No. 54 Wall Street, or at its branch office, Madison Avenue and 42d Street, New York City, under the agreement dated February 26, 1914. Copies of said agreement may be obtained from the Depositary or from the Secretary of the Committee. Bonds in coupon form must be accompanied by the coupon maturing May 1, 1914. Bonds in registered form and registered coupon bonds must be accompanied by transfers executed by the registered owner or his attorney duly authorized. Certificates of deposit will be issued by the Depositary for all bonds deposited, and in due course application will be made for listing such certificates of deposit on the New York Stock Exchange.

The protective agreement permits the deposit thereunder of such of the stock of THE CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY as is not pledged under the trust agreement securing the Collateral Trust Bonds, and holders of said stock are requested to deposit the same or to communicate with the Committee.

Any bondholder desiring further information may apply to the members of the Committee or to its secretary.

Surplus First?

The relation of surplus to dividends constitutes one of the most important problems that railroads have to meet. Read Thomas F. Woodlock's able discussion of this subject in the current Annalist. The Annalist is America's most valuable weekly for men who require latest news of finance, commerce, mining, agriculture, or labor, and complete tables of transactions in securities and commodities. COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

Final wheat quotations were ⅛ to ½c net lower. Offers from Russia and Australia were said to be on a more liberal scale in Europe, and this, together with generally favorable crop prospects, had a depressing influence abroad.

In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at $1.03¼, cost, insurance, and freight, New York; No. 2 red, $1.04, cost, insurance, and freight, to arrive; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.03¼, free on board, afloat, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.03⅝, free on board, afloat.

PLAN GAS BOND ISSUE.

Consolidated Company May Put Out $25,000,000 Worth of Debentures.

In a letter to shareholders notifying them that a special meeting will be held on May 25, the Consolidated Gas Company says that, if the proposed increase of the capital stock from $100,000,000 to $125,000,000 is then authorized, application will be made to the Public Service Commission to issue $25,000,000 debenture bonds for which stockholders will have the privilege to subscribe at par. The bonds are convertible into stock at the end of three years, and those not converted will be paid off in cash at the end of five years. They will bear interest of 6 per cent. a year, payable quarterly.

Shareholders may subscribe for the debentures to the extent of 25 per cent. of their holdings, making payment therefor in three installments. Bonds not subscribed for will be sold at prices not less than par in the open market.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE SUPREME Court of the State of New York, Part I. thereof, held in and for the County of New York at the County Court House in the Borough of Manhattan, on the 17th day of April, 1914. Present, HON. VERNON M. DAVIS, Justice.—In the matter of the Application of THE STRATFORD PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU, INC., for leave to change its name to STRATFORD ADVERTISING AGENCY, INC.

On reading and filing the petition of The Stratford Press Clipping Bureau, Inc., a domestic corporation, duly verified by its Secretary, Landon Humphreys, on the 26th day of March, 1914, wherein said Petitioner prays for an order authorizing it to assume another corporate name, to wit:—the name Stratford Advertising Agency, Inc., and the resolution of the Directors of said Company authorizing this application, and upon reading and filing the certificate of the Secretary of State of New York, annexed to said petition, certifying that the name which said corporation proposes to assume is not the name of any other domestic corporation or a name which he deemed so entirely resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, and upon filing due proof by affidavit showing that the notice of the presentation of the said petition has been duly published for three successive weeks in the New York Law Journal and the Morning Telegraph, which papers are published and circulated in the County of New York, in which County the said The Stratford Press Clipping Bureau, Inc., has its principal office, and the Court being satisfied by said petition and by the affidavits and certificates presented therewith that the petition is true, and that there is no reasonable objection to the change of name proposed, and that the petition has been duly authorized and that a notice of the presentation of the petition, as required by law, has been made,

Now, on motion of Hardy, Stancliffe & Whitaker, attorneys for the said Petitioner, no one opposing, it is

BEGIN DEPORTING STRIKEBREAKERS

PREPARING TO SEIZE ARMS

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, May 12.—The first step in enforcement of the President's edict barring new strike-breakers from Colorado coal mines, was taken by Capt. Johnson, in command of the Federal troops at Aguilar, to-day, when six men employed to work at the Royal Mine of the National Fuel Company were placed on board a Colorado & Southern train at his order and deported. The men were found not to have worked at the mine prior to April 20, when the battles between mine guards and strikers in Green Canon and the surrounding hills began.

Under military escort the men were marched to the railway station and held there until placed aboard a train for Denver.

At Aguilar and other points in the strike zone the surrender of arms continued to-day in a dilatory manner, but no official figures respecting the number received were given out at the military headquarters. Col. Lockett, in command of the Federal troops in the strike zone, began strenuous preparations this afternoon to force compliance with the disarmament order of President Wilson. He made it plain that Sheriffs and their Deputies, as well as all policemen in the district, must comply with the orders. All persons, Col. Lockett announced to-day, who were suspected of having arms and ammunition in their possession at 5 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, would be seized and searched.

The House of Representatives to-day adopted the Persons resolution calling upon Gov. Ammons to extend his call for the special session of the Legislature so as to provide for a thorough investigation of the strike situation. Only two members voted against the resolution. It was openly declared by House members that the Senate would kill the measure in short order. The resolution went to the Senate, but was put over until to-morrow.

The general feeling here is that the special session will adjourn before the end of the week, and that virtually all that will have been achieved will be the $1,000,000 appropriation to pay the State militia. The Administration lost its bill for a State constabulary through public sentiment. The House bill paving the way for a constitutional amendment for compulsory arbitration of labor troubles was sent to the Senate to-day. It is believed the Senate will postpone a vote on the measure until time for adjournment.

Union leaders in the southern strike fields to-day began preparations for the erection of a new tent colony at Ludlow. Men were clearing the site of the old colony, which was destroyed by fire on April 20, when twenty-two people were killed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary Garrison announced to-day that the work of disarming persons in the Colorado strike zone was proceeding, but that the haul of weapons was not heavy. This bulletin was issued by the War Department:

"Major Symmonds says that so soon as the two additional troops arrive in the north district which are on their way, he expects that more arms will be turned in. He will be able to spread his troops over a larger territory, and thus provide more offices and places for the delivery of the arms."

BLEW UP THE BALD EAGLES.

Three Attendants Hurt in Brooklyn Institute Museum.

Three attendants were painfully but not seriously injured yesterday afternoon when an explosion occurred on the second floor of the museum building of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences on Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. The concussion broke glass cases in all directions and some of the exhibits were injured, although the amount of the damage has not yet been estimated.

John Fitzgerald, Eugene Kershaw, and Charles McLoughlin were working with carbon bi-sulphide fumigating the interior of the ten-foot-square case containing the bald eagle exhibit after insects which lodge in the plumages of the preserved birds. Two quarts of the liquid were used, and it is thought a too great amount of gas and pressure upon it caused it to explode.

Electric light bulbs inside the case were shattered, and to this is attributed a fire which followed the combustion. The fire, however, was quickly got under control by attendants and soon afterward the three injured men were taken to the Swedish Hospital. There were 100 persons in the building at the time, but while many were overcome by the sulphur fumes, no one needed medical attention except the three men.

The bald eagle exhibit is one of the greatest losses resulting from the explosion, and R. C. Murphy, acting head of the museum, was making inquiries last night where he can get a substitute for the instruction of school children and the public.

CITY TO PAY BI-MONTHLY.

Although every Borough President except the acting President of Brooklyn voted in the negative, the Aldermen passed yesterday an ordinance providing for the semi-monthly payment of all officers and employes of the city who are now paid monthly. An ordinance giving vacations, with pay, to all city employes was laid over for one week at the request of the Mayor, who is to have a conference with heads of departments on the subject.

Alderman Curran introduced the new billboard ordinance and announced that a public hearing on it would be held in the Aldermanic Chamber next Monday at 2:30 o'clock. A resolution was passed requesting the heads of departments to grant leave of absence, with pay, on Memorial Day to Spanish war veterans in the city employ and also on July 6, 7, and 8, to attend the department encampment.

TITANIC VICTIM'S ESTATE.

C. F. Gregory Asks for Letters—Smart's Children Not Found.

Clarence F. Gregory of 3,675 Broadway asked the Surrogate yesterday to grant him letters testamentary upon the estate of J. Montgomery Smart, who perished in the Titanic disaster of April 15, 1912. Mr. Gregory holds a power of attorney executed by Jeremiah Twomey of Melbourne, Australia, one of the legatees under Mr. Smart's will.

Mr. Smart was President of the American Cold Storage and Shipping Company. He was a widower with two children, a son, 20 years old, and a daughter, 18 years old. When Mr. Smart sailed on the Titanic he had all his personal papers with him in a trunk. They were all lost, and there was no way of telling the whereabouts of his two children. It was believed that they were in some European school, and a wide search was made for them.

Seventeen Horses Burned.

Seventeen horses perished in a fire which destroyed the cooperage plant of Moses Solomon, 142 Morgan Avenue, Williamsburg, early yesterday. Danger to a big gasometer of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company caused a second alarm to be sent in. The damage was $20,000.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Hospital Buys Large Plot in Livingston Place for Ten-Story Building—Seventh Avenue Sale—Twenty-fifth Street Loft in Trade—Active Leasing Market.

The purchase of a large plot opposite Stuyvesant Square by the Beth Israel Hospital for a new building was the important feature of the realty market yesterday. The property acquired included the old four-story houses at 12, 13, 14, 15, and 16 Livingston Place and 322 and 324 East Seventeenth Street, forming an "L" around the old Stuyvesant apartment house on the southeast corner of Seventeenth Street. The purchase of the larger portion of this plot, including the houses at 13, 14, 15, and 16 Livingston Place, was made from Winthrop P. Rutherfurd, as executor, fronting 78 feet on Livingston Place by 120 deep. The house at 12 Livingston Place was bought from Charles J. Nunan, 17 by 100, and the Seventeenth Street plot, five-story houses, from Mabel Minaldi, 50 by 100. The total frontage on Livingston Place is 95 feet, the entire plot containing about 14,000 square feet.

Possession of the property will not be obtained until next May, 1195, and then work will be started for a sixteen-story building. The entire operation will cost about $1,000,000. The present hospital occupies the block front on the west side of Jefferson Street, between Monroe and Cherry Streets. That property will be sold when the new building is completed.

Louis H. May & Co. acted as the brokers in accumulating the property for the hospital. In the deal Mr. Rutherfurd was represented by J. Edgar Leaycraft.

Seventh Avenue Sale.

Seventh Avenue furnished a deal yesterday in the immediate vicinity of Twenty-third Street, where a subway station of the new Seventh Avenue line will be located. The property involved the four-story building at 239 Seventh Avenue, a key to the southeast corner of Twenty-fourth Street. It was sold for the Coleman Construction Company, of which Aaron Coleman is President, to a client for investment. The plot is 19.9 by 80 and is 39.6 feet south of the Twenty-fourth Street corner. M. & L. Hess were the brokers.

Twenty-fifth Street in Trade.

Messrs. Goodale, Perry & Dwight, Inc., in conjunction with Thomas L. Reynolds, have sold for the Gray Realty Company the twelve-story mercantile building at 41 and 43 West Twenty-fifth Street, for $375,000, to Florence Keller. The purchaser has given in exchange her country residence at Shelter Island, covering about two and one-half acres of land, including two cottages, valued at $100,000.

Private House Buyers.

The three-story residence 63 East Ninety-third Street, on plot 14.6 by 100.8, between Madison and Park Avenues, has been sold by Patrick McMorrow to Daniel B. Freedman. In exchange Mr. McMorrow took the four-story dwelling at 5 West 120th Street, on plot 20 by 100.11. Porter & Co. were the brokers.

Thomas J. Goodwin, who bought the three-story dwelling at 322 West 140th Street last week at auction for $5,500, sold by Joseph P. Day, has resold it to J. Romaine Brown. The plot is 15 by 99.11.

Mrs. Sarah Knight has sold 46 West Forty-ninth Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 16.4 by 100.5, Columbia College leasehold.

Tenement Deals.

The five-story plot at 1,460 Fifth Avenue, on the northwest corner of 118th Street, 25.11 by 100, has been sold by Jacob Selig to a Mr. Schwartz. The seller acquired it last month from the Park-Madison Company.

The five-story tenement at 537 and 539 East 118th Street, east of Pleasant Avenue, on plot 40 by 100, has been sold by the Schoen Westchester Realty Company and Mr. Rives for F. Stiehweh to an investor.

A. V. Amy & Co. have sold to a client for Abraham Nelson 856 Ninth Avenue, a five-story double flat, with stores, on plot 25.9 by 70, between Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Streets.

44th Street Lease by Keen's

The four-story building at 107 West Forty-fourth Street, which was remodeled a few years ago as an adition to Burns's Sixth Avenue restaurant, has been leased on a long term by Harris & Vaughn for John T. Du Pont to Keen's English Chop House. The lessees will establish on the ground floor a chop house similar in appointments to the present Keen's in Thirty-sixth Street, near Sixth Avenue. The Forty-fourth Street building has a frontage of 25 feet. It is 100 feet west of Sixth Avenue and adjoins on the west the Stuyvesant Theatre. The Vaudeville Club formerly occupied part of the building, but has just vacated the quarters for its new home in the former Metropole Hotel, on the north side of Forty-third Stret, east of Broadway. The Fellowship Club has been a tenant for some time on the upper floor of the Forty-fourth Street building.

$428,500 Building Loan.

A building loan of $428,500 on the property at the northwest corner of State and Whitehall Streets running through to Pearl Street was made yesterday by the Thompson-Starrett Company to the South Ferry Realty Company, of which William H. Cheseborough is President. The contract calls for a twelve-story building on the corner and a two-story building on Pearl Street.

Bronx Borough.

The five-story flat on the northwest corner of Crotona Avenue and Crotona Park North on plot 35 by 101.2 feet has been sold by the Benenson Realty Company, to Barnehard Solomon Gettenburg.

James T. Barry has sold to the Sherbe Building Company the vacant plot 75 by 100 feet on the Southern Boulevard, east side, 200 feet south of east 172d Street. The purchaser will improve the plot with five-story buildings. George E. Fowler & Co. were the brokers.

Brooklyn.

The three-story dwelling at 194 Prospect Place on lot 20 by 131 feet has been sold by Henry Pierson & Co. to A. Hendes for occupancy.

The single family house at 462 Eighty-first Street, on plot 25 by 100 feet, has been sold by Samuel Galitzka for Michele Receio to Mary E. Kleindienst.

Shampan & Shampan have prepared plans for a six-story apartment on a plot 50 by 144.5 feet on the south side of South Ninth Street, 96 feet west of Driggs Avenue, for the Keap Construction Company, to cost $60,000.

Bayside Corners Purchased.

The Sound View Realty and Construction Company of Bayside, L. I., of which Thomas C. Bell is President, has purchased a plot 103 by 119 feet on the northeast corner of Bell and Warburton Avenues, and a plot 100 by 120 feet on the southeast corner of the same avenues, Bayside.

Sale at Orange.

A plot 60 by 135 at 356 to 360 Main Street, corner of Brooks Place, Orange, has been sold by Harry Berger for Morris Otesky to an investor, and he also sold 181 and 183 Hillside Avenue to Charles Sindelar.

Commercial Leases.

Albert B. Ashforth has leased the building at 150 West Thirty-first Street for the estate of Frances P. Field to Frank W. Loomis, and the store at 5 East Twenty-third Street to Edward L. Seip.

M. & L. Hess have leased for the Fifty-second Street Company to the Hegeman Printing Company the fifth loft at 136 to 146 West Fifty-second Street for ten years, at an aggregate rental of $70,000. Rice & Hill represented the lessors.

Tucker, Speyers & Co. have leased to Louis Spiro the store at 26 West Thirty-eighth Street.

A. W. Miller & Co. have leased for Felix Donnelly the five-story building at 872 Eighth Avenue, near Fifty-second Street, and for B. Hoefer to the Handy Contracting Company 239 West Fifty-third Street, and 243 West Fifty-third Street for the same owner to the W. Lincoln McElraevy Contracting Company.

City and Country House Leases.

Pease & Elliman have leased for Phillips Thompson and Dexter Blagden to John W. Brett the five-story dwelling, on a lot 25 by 100 feet, at 10 West Forty-eighth Street, and for Mrs. Julia Draper McKeever the five-story American basement residence at 122 East Sixty-fifth Street to Henry W. Farnum, and also for Mrs. Catherine Boyle the three-story house at 157 East Forty-fifth Street to Mrs. E. L. Patterson.

James Kyle & Sons have rented the three-story private house at 584 Lexington Avenue for George W. Bonde, Jr., to Andrew E. Blackstrom.

Louis Schrag has leased for Dr. Herman F. Kudlich the five-story dwelling, 151 West Twenty-first Street, to Patrick Conlan for the William A. Boyd estate the four-story dwelling 272 West Twenty-fifth Street to Anna Jones.

John F. Scott has rented for J. Howland Auchincloss his house on Breezy Way, Lawrence, L. I., to E. S. Thurston of Minneapolis.

S. Osgood Pell & Co. have rented, for the season, the property of Mrs. Jayne in Wilson Park, Tarrytown.

Century Theatre Changes.

Plans were filed yesterday for extensive alterations to the interior of the Century Theatre. The orchestra floor will be reconstructed, making a new pitch, reducing the boxes from nine to six, and increasing the seats by 256; the entire foyer circle will be reconstructed, adding 330 seats, and changes made in the first and second balconies. The alterations will increase the seating capacity from 2,006 to 2,858. William H. McElfatrick is the architect, and estimates the cost at $100,000.

Realty Notes.

Porter & Co. negotiated the recent sale of the dwelling 49 West 128th Street for the East River Savings Bank to Rosalina Frandsen. Title has just been passed.

Maximilian Gipkes is preparing plans to alter the moving-picture theatre at the corner of Claremont Parkway and Park Avenue, Bronx, into stores, at a cost of about $10,000. Louis E. Kleban is the owner.

The next regular meeting of the West Side Taxpayers' Association will be held to-morrow evening at Heinebund Hall, 267 West Thirty-fourth Street.

BROOKLYN FOR SALE OR TO LET. | BROOKLYN—FOR SALE OR TO LET.

You See It Is This Way:

(Overheard in the Subway.)

"When my ship comes in I am going to buy one of those beautiful SEVEN-ROOM semi-detached brick houses at Mapleton Park, Brooklyn, for $5,500."

BUT WHY WAIT for the "ship," it may be too late then. Prices will be $6,000 or more—and I will sell you the same house now for $200 cash, with average monthly payments of $27.60, giving you 20 years to pay for it. Right along the line of the

New Brooklyn Sea Beach Subway

Everything that money can buy to make the home attractive is in it. There are large front and back yards, wide verandas, parked streets, sewers, shade trees, stores, churches, schools and movies. All real estate values along the Sea Beach Line are rapidly advancing.

Now you don't believe this, DO you?

BOUCK WHITE'S BAND GUILTY; LOCKED UP

To be Sentenced To-day for Disturbing Calvary Baptist Church Services.

COURT SCENE LIKE A PLAY

Bouck White, dressed in a clerical garb differing from any he had ever worn while presiding over the sessions of the Church of the Social Revolution, which does not believe in either clerical robes or titles for its pastor, was led to a cell in the prison attached to the West Side Court yesterday afternoon, after he, with seven of his followers, had been found guilty of disorderly conduct and disturbing a religious service at the Calvary Baptist Church on Sunday morning.

White and his followers, one of whom was a woman, were remanded without bail to await sentence this afternoon. While Magistrate Campbell, who heard the case, was finding White and his followers guilty, Mayor Mitchel gave out a statement at the City Hall, in which he indicated that the time for leniency toward disturbers of the peace was past, and that he regarded the invasion of the Calvary Baptist Church on Sunday by Bouck White and his associates as the work of "outrageous disturbers."

The trial of White and his followers was marked by many clashes between Miss Martha Rembaugh, one of two women lawyers for the defense, and Assistant District Attorney Lockhart. White tried to make many speeches. Magistrate Campbell cut him short with an order to answer questions with only a single sentence or two. Most of White's followers sought also to make propagandist speeches, but Magistrate Campbell shut them off.

White's defense, as far as it could be made out from the mass of propagandist effort with which he surrounded it, was that he had written a special delivery letter to Dr. Woelfkin on Friday, proposing a joint debate upon the theological question, "Did Jesus Teach the Immorality of Being Rich?" White urged that as he had notified Dr. Woelfkin that he proposed to visit his church on Sunday, and had received no reply stating that he would be unwelcome, he supposed that he would be cordially received as a brother clergyman. The letter, White testified, was signed "Yours in the fraternity of the Carpenter," and was pacific and courteous in tone.

George M. Sage, a lawyer, of 520 West 123d Street, who acted as an usher, and Detectives Geoghegan and Gildea, who arrested White, testified that White was warned to keep his seat, and that when he arose after being warned they seized him and ejected him, allowing him to say only five words of the speech he proposed to make to Dr. Woelfkin. Miss Rembaugh asked that her client be dismissed on the ground that it was proper to ask a clergyman publicly a question in church, and that White had sought the correct time to ask his question since he had put it while the announcements were being given out, and not when it would interrupt the sermon.

Magistrate Campbell overruled the motion, whereupon the defense called Dr. Woelfkin to the stand, and tried to get from him an admission that he received White's letter and should have answered it. Dr. Woelfkin said the letter reached him only Sunday morning a few minutes before the time for service to begin, and that he had never read it. He said it came in a big batch of other mail, and that he did not know how a letter sent to him on Friday by special delivery could fail to reach him until Sunday.

Magistrate Campbell reviewed briefly White's testimony, to the effect that he thought himself justified in expecting a friendly reception at the Calvary Baptist Church and an opportunity to propose his question for debate. The Magistrate said that in his opinion White "had overstepped himself." He found him guilty.

Milo Woolman, who described himself as a short-story writer, and caused a smile by adding that his only source of income was "borrowed money," conducted his own defense. He testified that when the disorder broke out he opened a Bible and read from the New Testament. "I say unto you it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of Heaven." He insisted that he was reading this passage to his wife, but when detectives testified that it was read aloud and added to the confusion Woolman was found guilty.

Mrs. Woolman, who also conducted her own defense, attempted to set up that she had property rights in her husband that were violated when the police started to club him.

"I cried out, 'Don't you hurt my property,' she testified, "when I saw the police hit him on the head and in the jaw." She was found guilty and sent to a prison cell with her husband.

Members of White's Church of the Social Revolution said that the cases against all of those found guilty would be appealed to-day.

MAYOR MITCHEL AROUSED.

Says Its Time the Police Resorted to Vigorous Methods.

The adoption of a new and much more vigorous police policy toward disturbers of the peace and agitators in general was indicated in comments by Mayor Mitchel yesterday upon the invasion of the Calvary Baptist Church by Bouck White and others last Sunday morning.

"You can't handle a situation like that at Calvary Church with kid gloves," the Mayor said. "The police must preserve order and if necessary must resort to vigorous methods to do so. It seems to me that the time for vigorous methods has just about come. We try to eliminate the disorder at the Franklin statue and Marie Ganz leads a crowd to the Rockefeller offices with a threat to kill. It was outrageous for disturbers to go in and break up a church service."

When the Mayor's attention was called to reports that some of those ejected from the Calvary Church were badly beaten by police clubs, he replied:

"I don't know anything about individual cases. I have not yet talked the affair over with Commissioner Woods. I will say, though, that those who want to protest against action of the police should not do so while the police are doing their duty. Persons who butt in and interfere are likely to be roughly handled, too. If bystanders have complaints to make they should make them to the commanding officer and not to officers on the spot."

WOMAN AT ROCKEFELLER GATE

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., May 12.—A woman about 30 years old, tried to get into the Rockefeller place to-day, but was turned away by the guards. She carried a black bag, and about 2 o'clock this afternoon she walked up to the main entrance. When she found the gate locked she went and returned in about an hour. She tried to get in again and failing, walked down the road. She did not talk to the guards and her mission could not be learned.

The guards were looking for Mother Jones, but she did not appear to-day. She will not get in if she does come here. Several strange men were at Pocantico Hills this afternoon, but all failed to get into the grounds. They refused to say what their business was.

The guards on the estate are kept alert. One negro, known as the lookout, sits behind a tree at the junction of Bedford and County House Roads and spots all strangers.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has not been seen around the estate since last week, and it is rumored he has gone away. The rumor could not be verified, but it is known that the workmen have not seen him for three or four days. He has been staying in his father's house on the Hill. Last week, although he was under the doctor's care, he walked out on all bright days, and often stopped to chat with the workmen.

URGES LONGER NIGHT STICKS.

Job E, Hedges Criticises Defenders of Disturbance.

About 200 lay members of the Presbyterian Church who attended the fifth annual convention of the Brotherhood of the Presbytery at the Central Presbyterian Church, in West Fifty-seventh Street, last night applauded loudly while Job E. Hedges, the principal speaker, denounced those who criticised the police for clubbing church invaders, I. W. W. members and anarchists engaged in unpatriotic agitations. Mr. Hedges expressed the hope that night sticks would be lengthened and laid on harder until some form of normal order and quiet could be restored.

"And just to think of it," he said, "there is actually expressed a difference of opinion about the action of the police in ejecting a disturber who invaded only this last Sunday a church edifice during service. The agitator who did that had in his foolish mind a little wild stuff that he thought would get him into the newspapers so that he might gain a living off his dupes. There ought to be no objection to what the police did to him. Indeed he ought to consider himself very lucky that he got out alive."

Mr. Hedges turned from the subject of the church raid to the Tannebaum raids and Union Square meetings at which anarchists had been allowed to threaten the life of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

"It is a shame," he said, "that these anarchists have been allowed to threaten one of our citizens and curtail his personal freedom to move about on our city streets merely because there is an issue in Colorado, the merits of which none of us may presume to know and understand. It is time we stopped this dilettante attitude toward these anarchists and got down to business with clubs and night sticks."

FEMINISTS' MODEL HOME.

Alcan Hirsch Description Makes the Women Laugh.

With much detail and great enthusiasm Alcan Hirsch at the meeting of the Feminist Alliance at 315 East Seventeenth Street last night told how a family of two could live with comfort on $78 a month and spend only ninety minutes a day in doing the work. Mr. Hirsch is on the "committee of mecanic (new spelling) basis of feminism," and the audience, sympathetic, but greatly amused at watching the workings of the masculine mind on this supposedly feminine problem, shouted with laughter at times.

Women will not only have their rights in Mr. Hirsch's model home, his description of which was based on an actual experience, it was announced, but the masculine half of the alliance will get its privileges, for mere man washes the dishes. That was one of the things which amused the audience when it got this reply to a question.

"The dishwashing for three people will take 10 minutes," said Mr. Hirsch, "and this will include putting the silver in plush cases, not because it is necessary, but because the women like to do it. It also includes taking a leaf out of the table, folding the blanket and putting on the doily." Here the audience rudely roared again.

The daily cost of living is something like this: Food 80 cents, ice 6 cents, gas 2 cents, electric lights 10 cents, cleaning woman 10 cents, and, among other things, newspapers 4 cents. The cleaning woman has been educated on the get-things-done-in-a-hurry plan and she comes in only once in two weeks and then does the family wash.

For breakfast there is coffee, biscuit or coffee cake and honey or jam, and a sample dinner will consist of steak, maccaroni and cheese, squash, fresh strawberries, stewed, and tea. There are three people actually included in this cost of living, there being a frequent visitor who does not upset the régime of the household, financial or industrial.

"A husband and wife can do the work if they are industrious and well-trained," said Mr. Hirsch, "but it will take them three or four months to learn. You must have all the modern conveniences, and it takes longer to use some of them than the old way. You have to learn how and the agent after selling goes to the next house without bothering with instructions."

"It takes four minutes to make a bed, and the mattress must be turned every day," said the student of the "mecanic basis of femnism," with seriousness, and the audience again laughed immoderately. "The mending is done on an electric sewing machine and takes fifteen minutes at a time, or an hour a week, but if you buy good material it will not wear out. Have your tools sharp. There is more time wasted on dull knives and looking for things than in anything else."

SIMEON FORD SAYS GOOD-BYE AT DINNER

HUMOROUS TO THE END

Sketches His Career from Connecticut Farm to Proprietor of the Grand Union.

Simeon Ford was ushered from the ranks of active hotel managers last night at a dinner in his honor at the Waldorf by nearly two hundred of his personal friends and members of the Hotel Association of New York. There were numerous quips about the Grand Union Hotel and its manager, quite in the spirit of an occasion closely associated with the personality of Simeon Ford.

The speakers hailed him as a newly made millionaire, but, although the question was suggested once or twice, no one got an answer as to what he would do now that the Grand Union was off his hands.

John McGlynn, President of the New York State Hotel Men's Association was the only one who suggested anything.

"We don't want to think of Simeon Ford as leaving the ranks," he said. "I have a hotel up in Troy. The rooms bring in money, the bar brings in money, and the cigar stand is profitable. So I will give Simeon Ford my restaurant if he will only stay in the business."

The guest of honor, who was presented with a large silver loving cup, told his own version of how he came to get to New York and take up the hotel business. He said:

When I was 15 years old, and had got as far as the fourth reader, and decimal fractions, I decided that any more knowledge would subject my brain to undue strain, so I determined to leave Connecticut and give my genius a chance to expand in some large city. I hesitated whether to favor New York and go into partnership with J. P. Morgan, or go to Boston and tie up with Ralph Waldo Emerson. As the fare to Boston was 50 cents cheaper, I inclined toward a literary career, but while I was wavering a local sport offered me $2 if I would act as chaperon or compagnon de voyage to a bullpup he wanted to send to New York. That decided me. The die was cast.

It was lucky for me he didn't want the dog to go to Hoboken. We came across the Sound—me and the dog—on the night boat, and as I had no money to lavish on a stateroom and the dog was economical, we spent the night down among the freight and tried to keep each other from being homesick. I only relate this incident of early Colonial history to show you how near you came to saving $10. I don't know what became of the dog, but I eventually became a lawyer.

It was a lucky day for me when the admirable woman who is the mother of my children consented, in a moment of temporary aberration of mind, to join her fortunes to mine. At that time I was a poor young lawyer. There were few younger and none poorer. But for this good lady's lack of foresight I would probably be a poor, old lawyer to-day, but now, thanks to the opportunity she gave me, I am the "Queen of the May," and having bouquets thrown at me by my associates in crime.

It is only fair to add that I have been just as poor a hotel keeper as I was a lawyer, but as old Jim Breslin used to say: "You don't have to know anything about hotel keeping in order to keep a hotel. Just open up and the boarders will tell you how to run it."

An hour before we closed the doors a man struck me for a loan of $2. He said he had the promise of a job and wanted to get a shave and a clean shirt. I fell for it. I always have. I have been buying shirts and shaves for bums for a generation. It gratified me to think that this man should imagine that I had spent a lifetime opposite the depot, entirely surrounded by gold brick promulgators and green-goods disseminators and yet retain my virginal innocence and faith in my fellow-man. He said he would return the two the following day, but I implored him not to. I told him I had been lending money to fakirs for thirty odd years and never yet got a cent back, and I wanted to retire with a clean record, as the champion sucker and all around easy mark of the world.

I don't know what I'm going to do without a hotel to worry about, and kicks coming to beguile the tedium of the day. I have become so accustomed to abuse and fault finding that I shall be lost without it. All these years people have been asking why we didn't tear down our old barracks and put up a decent hotel. Of late these same people have been weeping on our bosoms and crying out to Heaven against the desecration of removing such a splendid example of Colonial architecture and monument of New York's early history. They would then hastily conceal a sugar bowl or umbrella stand about their person and retire—deeply affected. "How blessings brighten as they take their flight."

Those who occupied seats on the speakers' dais were Gustav Baumann, President of the Hotel Association; George C. Boldt, Patrick Francis Murphy, George T. Wilson, Fred A. Reed, John McGlynn, George W. Sweeney, F. N. Bain, Gardner Wetherbee, and Charles N. Vilas.

MITCHEL TO SERVICE AIDS.

Mayor Thinks College Men Could Co-operate in Public Affairs.

The conference on Universities and Their Relation to Public Service, which has brought here a number of college professors and others interested in civic affairs from all over the country, was opened yesterday at the City Hall with an address of welcome by Mayor Mitchel. During the afternoon the conference, which is being held under the auspices of the Committee on Practical Training and Public Service of the American Political Science Association, held a session at the Merchants' Association in the Woolworth Building.

In his address the Mayor said he had felt for a long time that there was an opportunity for closer co-operation between the universities and the government of cities for these three purposes: To enable the men who are in attendance at universities to get a practical knowledge of the workings of government that will fit them to take part in it when they enter business life; through the establishment of opportunities for public servants to enlarge their field and the scope of their learning through university courses, and through the co-operative arrangement for the university to render direct service itself to the government of the city in solving technical and other problems. Contiuuing, the Mayor said:

"For the third opportunity we have the conspicuous example of the University of Wisconsin, where, through the co-operative relation with the State Government, many of the most difficult problems presented in that State have been attacked and solved.

"I talked some time ago with Chancellor Brown of New York University, and suggested the possibility of developing such a plan in the city. Chancellor Brown and his associates, I think, have become deeply interested in the matter. At his suggestion quite recently we had a conference, as a result of which he has lent to the Government Prof. Loomis, Instructor in Government at New York University, who is now studying the technical resources of the City Government, and appraising the technical equipment that we have. Prof. Loomis will make a report to us shortly. I am hopeful that the conference will be fruitful in concrete suggestions that can be adopted elsewhere in the country."

"Upbuilding of Governmental Administration—the Greatest Need of American Democracy," was the first subject taken up for discussion. Philander P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, who presided, first introduced Everett Colby of New Jersey. Robert J. Aley of the National Education Association followed, and then came Charles McCarthy, Chief of the Legislative Reference Library of Wisconsin.

John H. Gray, President of the American Economic Association, and Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks of the New York University also spoke.

At the afternoon session Col. Samuel S. McClure spoke on "Public Service as a Career"; Clinton Rogers Woodruff, Secretary of the National Municipal League, on "Civil Service Reform as a Factor in Making a Public Service Career," and Bailey B. Burritt of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor on "The Occupation of College Graduates."

Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, President of the Carnegie Foundation, will preside at the session to be held this morning at 9:45 o'clock in the Assembly Room of the Merchants' Association.

The conferees were guests of the Bureau of Municipal Research at a dinner at the City Club last night.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The early advancement of the United States legations at Argentina and Chile to the rank of embassies was indicated in the House to-day, when a bill to accomplish that purpose for the legation in Chile was passed. The legislation with reference to Argentina has already been approved by the Senate, and now needs only the signature of the President. The bill to elevate the legation in Chile originated in the House, and has yet to go to the Senate, where it is practically certain of favorable action.

MRS. CLAUSSEN UNRULY.

Tells Judge Rosalsky She'd Rather Go to White Plains Court.

Mrs. Ida Claussen, wo is on trial in General Sessions charged with writing a threatening letter to Charles Strauss, proved an unruly witness yesterday when she took the stand in her defense. She started a long argument with Judge Rosalsky and refused to answer several questions which the Judge directed her to answer.

Mrs. Claussen denied that she wrote the letter which was sent from Rome on Easter, 1912. Mr. Strauss had some legal business with Mrs. Claussen and the letter attacked him for taking a part in her divorce suit. Mr. Strauss said he never acted for Mrs. Claussen in the divorce proceedings.

"Somebody has been forging my signature," she said when Judge Rosalsky asked her to identify the letter as one she had written. Judge Rosalsky directed that she write her name, so that the signatures might be compared.

"How are you going to make me do this?" Mrs. Claussen said. "By fascinating me?"

"Let me go back to the court in White Plains; I don't consider your attitude fair."

Mrs. Claussen said that she had known Mr. Strauss in Maine. She testified that a stage coach in which they were riding nearly plunged over a precipice, but she grabbed the reins, thereby saving twelve lives.

The trial will be continued to-day.

WELLS FARGO IN B. & O. DEAL

To Run United States Express Service on That and Other Roads.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 12.—Negotiations are nearing completion by which the Wells Fargo Express Company will take the place of the United States Express Company in the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad system. The former express company has closed arrangements with the Lehigh Valley and other roads which the United States Company has been serving, and is expecting to take over the United States Company's business from other big railroad systems. By means of the Baltimore & Ohio connection the Wells Fargo Company will tap a section of the country it has never touched, namely, the extreme and middle South.

The deal will give Eastern cities a direct coast-to-coast express service, with agencies in all parts of Europe, China, Japan, and South America.

High School Boy Missing.

The police have been asked to find David Fellerman, 15 years old, a student at the Stuyvesant High School, whose home is at 1,607 Bathgate Avenue, the Bronx, who has been missing since April 24. He sold newspapers at a stand in City Hall Park after school hours, and has a brother, George F. Fellerman, who is a clerk in Part I. of General Sessions. David is 5 feet 5 inches in height, weighs 130 pounds, has light hair and blue eyes.
